WHY THEY ARE NOT PURE.

The absolute purity of the Royal Baking Powder is a fact not questioned by anyone; but the questions are frequently asked: Why do not other manufacturers, also, put up pure baking powders, free from lime, alum, and other adulterants? Is it a fact that the Royal is the only pure baking powder made?

There are three classes of these articles: Cream of tartar baking powders, made from cream of tartar and bi-carbonate of soda; phosphate baking powders, in which phosphatic acid is used as a substitute for cream of tartar; and alum baking powders, made from burnt alum and soda.

Burnt alum baking powders are of the cheapest class. They cost less than four cents a pound, are concededly poisonous, and because of their well-known inferiority are never sold under their true colors. Baking powders sold with a prize or gift are of this class.

The phosphate baking powders contain from 8 to 12 per cent. of lime, which is an ingredient of the phosphate used in them as a substitute for cream of tartar. It is impossible to eradicate the lime from this class of powders. This baking powder is next to the alum baking powders in cost.

The cream of tartar baking powders, to which class the Royal belongs, to be pure must be made from absolutely pure cream of tartar. The Royal Baking Powder is made from cream of tartar specially refined and prepared for its use by patent processes by which the tartrate of lime is totally eliminated. There is no other process by which cream of tartar can be freed from lime—made 100 per cent. pure—in quantities practical for commercial purposes. Other baking powder makers, not being able to obtain these chemically pure goods (which are used exclusively in the Royal) are dependent upon the cream of tartar of the market, refined by the old-fashioned methods, for their supply, and by those methods it is impossible to eliminate the lime and other impurities.

These are the reasons why the Royal is absolutely pure, while all other baking powders contain either lime or alum.

The vital importance of absolute purity in the articles we eat as promotive of perfect health is daily more generally being considered. How large a share in producing impure and unwholesome food the lime and alum baking powders have had in the past, is becoming fully recognized.

The absolute purity of the Royal Baking Powder not only renders it more perfectly wholesome, but its freedom from all extraneous substances makes it of higher strength and effectiveness as a leavening agent, and therefore more economical for use. It is accordingly certified by the U. S. Government Chemists as the most wholesome, effective, and perfect baking powder made.

The newest and the best thing that has come into the domestic life of our people is the provision for hiring the family mending done precisely as the sewing or the washing is done. Last winter, one or two "mending" women began this in a small way, and now several will take it up in earnest, the coming season. Calls for the highest skill in the sewing and darning art, but it is a pronounced success from the start. Why has not all this been brought about before? But it is never too late to mend.—Portland Letter.

How to Gain Health and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For consumption, throat affections and bronchitis it is unequalled. A Useful Precaution.

It is a useful precaution for the tourist, the commercial traveler, or the emigrant to the west, to take along Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Invalids who travel by steamboat or rail should provide themselves with it, in order to prevent or remedy the nausea which the jarring and vibration of vehicles in transitu often causes them. Vastly preferable is it for this simple, but needful purpose, to the heady unmedicated stimulants of commerce. On board ship, it not only remedies sea sickness, but neutralizes the pernicious effects of water slightly brackish, which, if unqualified, is apt to give rise to irregularities of the bowels, cramps in the abdominal region and dyspepsia. To the aerial poison of malaria it is an efficient antidote. Sick headache, heartburn and wind upon the stomach, are promptly banished by it. It healthfully stimulates the kidneys and bladder, and nullifies the early symptoms of rheumatism.

The president and party arrived at St. Louis, Mo., at midnight Saturday night. The president and Mrs. Cleveland were the guests of Mayor Francis of that city on Sunday.

Frank C. Swan, apothecary, Haverhill, Mass., says: "Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry sells better than any other cough remedy. I can recommend it. I have used it and sold it for thirty years."

Attorney General Sherman of Massachusetts resigned Oct. 1st, to accept a position on the bench. A. J. Waterman was appointed to fill his unexpired term.

Every woman who suffers from sick headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the easiest of all medicines to take. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in dyspepsia and indigestion; prevent and cure constipation and piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. Price twenty-five cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

Mrs. Hawkins, a wealthy widow, was murdered and robbed in the woods of North Islip village, Long island, on Sunday.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

A Houseful of Snakes.

Years ago a young lawyer of Savannah took his wife and their eldest son to the "springs" in the Barnwell district, South Carolina. In those times, says the Savannah News, even Saratoga had but two hotels, in the shape of large wooden buildings, very unlike the "palatial residences" now erected even at the south; so you may suppose the one in Barnwell was nothing to admire. A dwelling-house with wings and a few small buildings around constituted the "hotel."

When the Savannahian got there no room could be found for him unless he would occupy an outhouse of logs, used for fodder, one-half being supplied with a plank floor, the other being the natural soil. As a party was to leave in two days, these accommodations were accepted—father, mother, and son sleeping in one bed, and the servant-girl where she could. The first night they slept soundly until after midnight, when they became aware of things scampering and gliding in over the floor, overhead, and in one instance over the bed. As the light increased they found that their visitors were rats and chicken snakes, but they disappeared very soon. They determined to risk another night, especially as the strictest search could detect the presence of neither rat nor serpent. About the same hour of the night there was a repetition of the occurrences of the night before, and, having discovered that the serpents were only chicken-snakes, the travelers slept on, although the boy declared that something had crawled over his face toward morning. The father dressed and retired, and the mother got up at the proper time. Her habit was to put her keys, stockings, and bags under her pillow before getting into bed. Slipping her feet into her shoes, which had heels, she put her hand under the pillow from which she had just risen, when she felt the cold skin of the snake. She told the child to jump out of bed, and as he did so she slipped off one of her shoes, held it as a hammer, jerked away the pillow, and as the serpent raised its head struck it a deadly blow. It squirmed to the floor, writhed a little, and lay still. The boy then discovered it to be a moccasin. The house was within fifty yards of a swamp, which abounded with those interesting reptiles. Upon being complimented on her coolness and bravery, she admitted that had she not thought it a chicken-snake she would have acted differently. She was not one of that kind that scream and jump on chairs at the sight of a little mouse, moreover was a Beaufort girl, like her sex generally in Port Royal, able to break a marsh tacky, steer a boat through the surf, play a drum-fish, and then shine in a drawing-room among the brilliant men and women who then abounded on our seacoast from the Santee to St. Mary's.

Snowdonia or Switzerland.

Llanberis has been called the Chamounix of Wales, just as Snowdonia has had bestowed upon it the name of Switzerland of Wales. With regard to Llanberis, if in calling it the Welsh Chamounix the object is to imply that, like the little village at the foot of Mont Blanc, it is the headquarters of tourists, and the starting point of climbers intending to go up Snowdonia, at the base of which it lies, there is no objection to the assimulation. But as regards Snowdonia, there is certainly no reason why it should be compared to Switzerland, with which it has but little likeness. It is very hard to understand why people always will compare one thing with another wholly irrespective of the merits of either. For it is only misleading people into the belief that this part of the principality is similar to the land of William Tell, than which a greater mistake could not be made. The beauties and attractions of Wales are sufficient to induce visitors to come to the principality or they are not. If they are, it is because they have distinctive and characteristic features of their own; if they are not, it is absurd to deceive people by appealing to their recollection of the Alps, as that can only lead to disappointment and comparisons which can not be to the advantage of Wales. Then again to dub Wales the British Switzerland is almost an admission that Welsh scenery has not proved sufficiently attractive of its own merits. Can anything be so unwise? If we were asked what makes the great charm of Welsh scenery, we would for our part, declare emphatically that it is precisely its peculiar appearance, unlike we have seen in the Alps or Pyrenees, and that it is worth seeing if only for that very reason. If Wales were a kind of Switzerland, of Auvergne or of Provence region, the best thing to do would be to give it as wide a berth as possible, and not to go near it on any account, as an imitation, however good, is never equal to the original.—Art Journal.

"And this is to be the end of all?" said O'Reilly de Fere, as he seized the girl's hand. "This is about the size of it," she replied coldly. "You tell me that your employer has refused to raise your salary?" "Yes," cried the youth, eagerly, "but next year——" "Excuse me," she interrupted him with arctic frigidity, "but I am not investing in futures—not this week."—Tid-Bits.

This is to express my sincere thanks for the benefit I have experienced from the use of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup. I had a severe and aggravating cough so that I could scarcely talk—after using one small bottle of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup, it not only cured my cough but strengthened my sore chest. I take great pleasure in testifying to the efficacy of the syrup and heartily recommend it.—W. J. WILLIAMS, JR., 72 Ansor street, Charleston, S. C.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease come on again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. I strongly force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stage. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

KIDDER'S DIGESTYLIN

— FOR —

INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA.

A POTENT REMEDY FOR

Indigestion, Acute and Atonic Dyspepsia, Chronic and Gastro-Intestinal Catarrh, Vomiting in Pregnancy, Cholera Infantum, and in convalescence from Acute Diseases.

Over 5,000 physicians have sent to us the most flattering opinions upon Digestylin as a remedy for all diseases arising from improper digestion.

It is not a secret remedy, but a scientific preparation, the formula of which is plainly printed on each bottle. Its great DIGESTIVE POWER is created by a careful and proper treatment of the ferments in manufacture. It is very agreeable to the taste, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach.

It will positively CURE CHOLERA INFANTUM, Summer Complaints, and CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, all of which are direct results of imperfect digestion. Give your children Digestylin. One bottle may save a life. Not one case of death reported for the past year from above diseases where the patient had taken Digestylin. Ask your Druggist for it. Price $1.00. Large bottles. If he does not keep it, send one dollar to us and we will send you a bottle. Express prepaid.

IT WON'T BAKE BREAD.—In other words, Hood's Sarsaparilla will not do impossibilities. Its proprietors tell plainly what it has done, submit proofs from sources of unquestioned reliability, and ask you frankly if you are suffering from any disease or affection caused or promoted by impure blood or low state of the system, to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. The experience of others is sufficient assurance that you will not be disappointed in the result.

In Memory of Manning.

We notice in the platforms of the democratic state conventions of late, there is paid to the administration the left-handed compliment of a eulogistic resolution about Daniel Manning. However little Mr. Cleveland may relish this, it seems to be regarded as the correct thing to resolve that the administration under Manning was a grand success. Mr. Manning began his term as secretary of the treasury by acknowledging that his republican predecessor was a safe man to follow. While in the cabinet, Mr. Manning steered the administration by the republican chart, and avoided the democratic quicksands. Whatever success the administration had up the retirement of Mr. Manning, was due to the sound sense of the Albany financier, displayed in following the monetary plans of the republicans. It soon became apparent that the country was having a degree of confidence in the administration of President Cleveland, because Mr. Manning, with conservative ideas, was at the head of the treasury, and was de facto the head of the administration. Around him revolved the president and the lesser lights of the cabinet. This at last became so exceedingly patent that Mr. Cleveland, to get back into line, had to cut loose from Manning. The country saw this step with regret. Since Mr. Manning's retirement there has been in the cabinet no minister who has been able to add either to his own reputation, or to the credit of the administration, one iota. In fine, the cabinet is simply regarded as composed of—so far as fitness for their positions may be concerned, we do not mean personally — a mediocre set of men, weaker as a whole, because the chief spoke of the wheel is missed. For the democratic politicians to bring to the fore front of their platforms a proud reference to Mr. Manning's ability and sagacity, is simply to remind Mr. Cleveland that he committed a big blunder in allowing his jealousy of his late secretary and friend's tact and ability to deprive the administration of its strongest hold upon the American people, a representative man in whose financial soundness the monetary interest of the country had every confidence.

The Massachusetts independents over their walnuts and wine, support the president in supporting the dignity, independence and fidelity to civil service reform of the leading federal officers in Boston, the collector and postmaster, and have sent him a dispatch to that effect. The Massachusetts democrats on the other tack are proud of a democratic administration, but blank the custom that keeps any democrat out of any office for which he has a longing. The number of candidates who straddle just now in the Bay state campaign is unusually large.

The president pays the ordinary car fare on his journey, and is "chalked" as to palace-car hire, etc. It is said that the colored porter was approached on the question of placing the signer of the interstate bill on the free list during this electioneering tour. "Can't do dat," was the solid reply of the autocrat of the palace car, "it's against the rules of our association." Col. Lamont sent into the treasury just before his departure, for a supply of small change to meet this emergency, as the president was not intending to be bulldozed by any disciple of Henry George.

A Just and Proper Decision.

In New York last week Judge Barrett of the supreme court decided against District Assembly 91, Knights of Labor, (shoemakers,) in a suit brought against the assembly's executive committee for conspiracy. The executive board had by repeated strikes and boycotts compelled Hanan & Co. of New York city, and Hess & Co. of Baltimore, to discharge certain men who refused to join the union, and for this they were arrested and bailed. Judge Barrett holds that peaceable co-operation to maintain or advance wages is legal, including a strike where no violence is attempted; but combinations of individuals to compel all workingmen to join the co-operative forces, or punish those who are inimical thereto, are not authorized by law. The facts in this case show a deliberate purpose to impoverish and crush a citizen for no reason connected with the rate of wages. They also show acts injurious to trade, and tending to prevent, by threats, the exercise of a lawful calling.

Bennie F. Wheedon, ten years old, of Springfield, Mass., while after doves in the steeple of Trinity church in that city last Saturday afternoon, fell down the cold-air duct to the cellar, a distance of over 100 feet. He was not killed, and managed to crawl to the cold-air box, near the base of the shaft, where he laid unconscious eighteen hours, reviving on Sunday forenoon enough to call "Mamma," which was heard by a man in the cellar, and led to his rescue. He will recover.

Mr. Eastman was a native of Vermont, and came among us, as a peddler, some twenty or more years ago, since which time he has been a resident of York. Mr. Eastman had his failings, and where is the man who has not?

It would be all right to "mark the perfect man," if he could be found, so as to give an opportunity to "mark" him.

A more kindly, generous-to-a-fault, and forgiving disposition, never lived nor never will live.

Better men have died; worse ones are living, and vice versa.

In what respect better or worse? He was a good neighbor, with all the word implies, but he never joined a church and with a long face robbed a bank. Comparisons are odious. Peace to his ashes. F.

The London Times, which so badly defeated the Volunteer before the races, in its issue of Oct. 1st said: "It is now perfectly clear that if we are to beat the Americans in their own waters and bring back the cup, we must condescend to take a leaf out of their book." The London Telegraph of the same date said: "We are whipped and honestly beaten, nor ought a single ungenerous word to be uttered impugning the honor and glory of the victors. We are sorry to record the victory, but the Volunteer is a better all-round racing ship. The Thistle could probably outsail the Volunteer on a long sea voyage. The former was beaten but not disgraced. We hope to repeat the challenge in 1888." A despatch of Oct. 1st from Glasgow, Scotland, announces that "Mr. Muir of Dunbarton, the owner of the yacht Mabel, has determined to build a ninety-ton cutter to compete for the America's cup in America next year, unless Mr. Bell again challenges for it. The designer of Mr. Muir's boat will be M. Fife, Jr., of Fairlee; and Capt. Robert Duncan of Gourock, now master of the Majorie, and formerly master of the Madge, will be her captain."

The secretary of the interior has reversed the decision of Commissioner Sparks, and the Northern Pacific railroad company thereby is confirmed in its title to 1,500,000 acres of land.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. R. BALLOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

FALSE ALARMS.

At a late hour on Friday night the watchman on Market street heard a sound as of some person chipping metal with a cold chisel, and located the sound in Hon. Frank Jones' office. Several other officers were mustered, and the suspicious noise continuing, a key to the office was procured and the place entered, when it was found that the sounds were caused by the steam in the heat radiator.

At about midnight, Saturday night, the burglar alarm in the police station connected with the New Hampshire national bank set up a furious clatter, and the captain of the watch, with what officers he could gather, hastened to the bank, armed and equipped as prudence would direct. On arriving at the bank they aroused the watchman who sleeps in the place, who reported that he had seen no burglars, and the officers were again obliged to go away without capturing anybody. It was afterward found that the alarm was fired off by an electric-light wire.

There was no midnight marauder at either place, but the police were on hand to catch him if he had been there.

UNIVERSALIST CONVENTION.

The annual session of the Universalist Convention of New Hampshire will be held in the Universalist church in this city on Wednesday and Thursday, Oct. 5th and 6th. The exercises will be as follows:

Wednesday, 9:00 A. M., Social religious meeting, conducted by Rev. L. H. Fisher;

10:00, Organization of the convention;

10:30, Reports of fellowship committee, and treasurer;

11:00, Woman's Centenary association, reports and addresses;

2:00 P. M., Report of executive committee;

2:45, Communion service;

3:15, Annual sermon, by Rev. J. Eastwood;

7:30, Address, "The means and the end of Christian endeavor," by Rev. G. H. Emerson, D. D., of Boston.

Thursday, 8:30 A. M., Conference meeting;

9:30, Convention;

2:00 P. M., Address, "Methods of Missionary work," by Rev. F. A. Dillingham; followed by discussion;

3:00, Convention;

3:30, Address on "Education," by Rev. G. Hill, of Dean academy.

Tickets at two cents a mile, good to and including the 7th inst., are sold by the railroads.

The New Hampshire Sunday School convention will hold its annual session in the Universalist church to-day, commencing at 9:00 A. M. with a social religious meeting; 10:00, Organization of the convention; 11:00, Report of secretary; 2:30 P. M., Convention; 4:00, Address, "The helper and the lesson;" 7:00, Praise meeting; 7:30, Address, "Methods of Sunday school work."

The public generally are invited to attend the meetings during the three days.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

A special meeting of the board of aldermen was held on Water street, near Newcastle avenue, Monday forenoon, to hear such objections as might be raised by citizens against the granting of the petition to widen Water street at that point. No one was present who objected to the granting of the request, and it was voted to take the land in question in behalf of the city. The award of damages was postponed until the next regular meeting of the city government.

POLICE COURT.

MONDAY, Oct. 3d: Hodgdon J.

Joseph Ryan, Timothy Falvey, William Hurley and James Hogan were tried for drunkenness. Ryan was discharged, and the other three were fined $3 each, with costs.

Michael Phillips, for assault on an officer in the execution of his duty, was held in $200 for the supreme court.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Jacob Green, formerly of this city but now employed in Boston, is passing a vacation at his former home.

Rev. Solomon V. Gerry, of South Berwick, Me., forty years ago a resident of Portsmouth, passed Sunday in this city.

Rev. W. A. McGinley and wife started on Monday morning for Fairfield, Adams county, Pa., on a visit to Mr. McGinley's father. They will be absent two weeks.

John Lyons, John Reagan and James O'Donnell, left this city by rail on Monday to work for Contractor Shanahan as hoisting engineers at Livermore Falls, Me., where the latter has a contract.

The Army & Navy Register of last week publishes a letter of Sept, 28th from Fortress Monroe, Va., from which we clip the following: "Mr. Harry Brooks, of Portsmouth, N. H., a son of Chief Engineer W. B. Brooks, U. S. N., has been spending the past week with his brother, Lieutenant J. C. W. Brooks, Fourth Artillery. He left on Sunday evening to resume his duties at Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y."

CIRCUIT COURT.

Ex-United States Attorney Burns filed in the office of the clerk of the Circuit court of the United States in this city on Monday a copy of the record of the equity suit of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad instituted in April last to set aside the existing lease of the B. C. & M. R. R. to the Lowell road. This action is removed to the federal court on petition of the Lowell road, the parties being citizens of different states.

The October term of the Circuit court begins at Concord on the 8th inst. Judge Colt is expected to appear on Monday, the eleventh inst., on which day the grand and petit jurors have been summoned to appear.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The sixty-foot turn-table which has been doing duty for the Boston & Maine railroad at Salem, Mass., has been removed to York, Me., and located at the easterly end of the York Harbor & Beach railroad.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Concord & Portsmouth railroad will be held in the common council chamber of the city hall at Manchester on Thursday forenoon, Oct. 6th, at ten o'clock in the forenoon.

The jury at Alfred, Me., in the case of Ruth Hooper of Biddeford vs. Boston & Maine railroad, action for damages for the killing of her husband, Daniel O. S. Hooper, at a crossing in November last, found for the plaintiff in the sum of $4,550. The defendant will appeal to the law court.

Timothy C. Crowley, who has been station agent and telegraph operator at Seabrook for a number of years, has been transferred to a similar position at the station in Lynn, Mass.; and Ernest I. Dow, who was station agent for a short time at Kittery Point, now has charge of the Seabrook station.

The number of miles in length of the Boston & Maine railroad system stands at present as follows: Boston & Maine, old system, 201.65; Eastern railroad, old system, 384.75; Boston & Lowell, and leased lines, 586.90; Manchester & Lawrence, 26.14; total owned and leased, 1,199.44. The roads controlled by the Boston & Maine people are the Portland & Rochester, 52; Maine Central and leased lines, 528; total, 576, making the mileage actually owned, leased and controlled by the Boston & Maine 1,775.44.

MARITIME NOTES.

The Biddeford Journal of Sept. 30th says: "A dredge and two tugs belonging to the Portsmouth Dynamite Blasting company, of Portsmouth, N. H., arrived at the mouth of the river yesterday afternoon to begin work upon the government contract to remove the ledge between the Little islands."

The schooner E. A. Creed, Capt. Raymond, sailed on Sunday for the Isles of Shoals with 5000 bricks, and a quantity of lime and cement, for the building of cottages on Star island for Laighton Bros. Capt. Raymond was the schooner's entire company on this voyage—captain, cook and all hands.

The revenue cutter Bear on Aug. 24th seized the British sealing schooner Ada, with 1900 skins, and the American schooner Allie I. Alger, with 1600 skins. A few days later she seized the American schooner Handy, with 1700 skins. All were turned over to the United States marshal at Sitka, Alaska. The Bear arrived at San Francisco from Alaska on the first inst., bringing as passenger James B Vincent, only survivor of thirty-six men who composed the crew of the whaling barque Napoleon, crushed by ice in the Arctic in May, 1855. From that time until rescued by the Bear, he had lived with a small band of Indians on the Siberian coast. The bear reports the catch of the whaling fleet, up to Aug. 5th, as being seventy-four whales.

A Maine exchange says that on Sept. 30th "the schooner George W. Pierce landed at Portland 25,000 pounds of haddock, the product of one day's fishing. Two of her crew, Samuel W. Blaisdel and William M. Griffin, caught about 9,000 pounds, each working eighty lines. They received $60 for the day's work. This is one of the largest catches ever made by two men sailing from that port in a day. Two other members of the crew caught between 5,000 and 7,000 pounds. The schooner Dreadnought landed 5,000 pounds of cod and hake, and the A. H. Lennox seventy-two barrels of mackerel. Other than these the arrivals were small, owing to the smoke that renders it dangerous for vessels to move."

See Charles E. Simpson's advertisement of new goods in overcoats, ulsters, cardigan jackets, underwear, flannel shirts, rubber and oil clothing, Sawyer's woollens, and other seasonable wear. This old established clothing depot never before had so large and well selected a stock of clothing suitable for fall, winter and early spring, for landsmen, fishermen or deep-sea seaman.

The Woman's Independent Relief Corps, No. 1, will hold their meetings on the first and third Thursdays of each month, the next one occurring on Thursday evening of this week, at half-past seven o'clock. The object of the organization is to assist sick and needy soldiers, sailors and marines of the late war, and their families; and ladies who are eligible are cordially invited to join with them in the good work.

A hearing will be had before the senate committee on incorporations to-day, on the bill to incorporate a company for new water-works in this city.

Wanted,

Every lady to call and see the very large size, strictly all-wool Blankets we are selling for $5.00 per pair. The lot will not last long.

LEWIS E. STAPLES, 7 Market street.

The United Ireland newspaper will shortly be issued as a daily.

Mr. Charles Boynton, a painter, while at work Monday forenoon on the roof of a building corner of Ladd and High streets, slipped and fell to the ground, a distance of about twenty feet, receiving some severe bruises and a fracture of one ankle, besides being covered from head to foot with red paint, a bucket of which he was holding in one hand when he fell, and carried down with him.

The Northern Pacific railway company has voted to join the Union Pacific in leasing the Oregon Railway & Navigation company property.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., Oct. 4th, 1887.

THE WOMAN'S INDEPENDENT RELIEF CORPS, No. 1, of New Hampshire, will hold their meetings at Good Templars' Hall, opposite the Post-Office, on the first and third Thursdays of each month, the next regular meeting being held Oct. 6th at half-past seven o'clock. Members are earnestly requested to be present, as there is business of importance to come before the meeting. Ladies who are eligible are cordially invited to join us in the good work, our object being to assist needy and sick soldiers, sailors and marines of the late rebellion, and their families.

The frontispiece of the October "Century" is a striking portrait of Harriet Beecher Stowe, engraved by T. Johnson from a photograph by Sarony. This portrait is apropos of a paper by James Lane Allen, entitled "Mrs. Stowe's 'Uncle Tom' at Home in Kentucky," which recounts the life of the Kentucky slave of the old time, in a series of typical scenes, pointing out some considerations which it is thought should qualify Mrs. Stowe's point of view. The illustrations, by Mr. Kemble, drawn from life, reproduce characteristically the epoch which Mr. Allen describes. The paper in the series on "English Cathedrals" is this month devoted to Ely, which is called by Mrs. Van Rensselaer "the great queen of the fen lands, always imposing, always superb, always tremendous." "The American Game of Foot-Ball" is the subject of a paper by Professor Alexander Johnston of Princeton college, in which the development of the Rugby game on this side of the Atlantic is described. This paper is admirably illustrated. Mr. Stedman contributes a paper of criticism, entitled "Twelve Years of British Song," being chiefly extracts from the forthcoming supplement to the next edition of "Victorian Poets." "The Hundredth Man," by Mr. Stockton, reaches its conclusion in the present number with a denouement which will be somewhat of a surprise to many readers. The third and last part of Mr. Harris' novelette, "Azalia," is also given. The short story of the number is by John Heard, Jr. The Lincoln History consists of a concise recital of the secession movement as exhibited in Congress, in the cabinet of Buchanan, and in the correspondence of certain of the southern leaders. A chapter is devoted to the secession of South Carolina and to affairs in Charleston harbor, and another to the commissioners from South Carolina, and the growth of the movement in the different states is also rapidly traced. The papers in the War Series consist of "Marching Through Georgia and the Carolinas," by Captain Daniel Oakey; "Sherman's March from Savannah to Bentonville," by General Henry W. Slocum; and "The Battle of Bentonville," by General Wade Hampton. Among the illustrations are "Sherman and his generals," "Sherman's troops destroying railroads," "The storming of the Salkehatchie river," "Crossing the North Edisto," "Ruins of Columbia," and sketches at the Saluda, Juniper Creek, Fayetteville and Bentonville. Portraits of Generals Blair, Wade Hampton, Roke and McLaws are also given. The battle series will close in the November number with the "Appomattox Campaign," other war articles of a general or untechnical nature, including General Sherman's "Grand Strategy of the War," being left over for future occasional publication. The poetry of the number includes contributions by Richard E. Burton, Ellen M. H. Gates, Julia C. R. Dorr, Samuel W. Duffield, Sarah M. B. Piatt, Helen Gray Cone, Louise Imogen Guiney, Robert Burns Wilson, together with "Bric-a-Brac" verse of the lighter type by Harrison S. Morris, Esther B. Tiffany, James B. Kenyon and Winifred Howells. In "Topics of the Time" are editorial articles entitled "Soldier and Citizen," "Personal Records of the War," "The Last Hope of the Mormons," "The Jury System," and "Shall Immigration be Restricted?" There are "Open Letters" on "Christian Union and Baptism," by Rev. Herbert H. Hawes; "Christian Union and Pending Public Questions," by Rev. William Chauncy Langdon; and a note on "Secret Societies in College," by Rev. Charles S. Robinson.

A Strange Freak.

The wife of our esteemed citizen, Mr. John Rowell, while suffering under a severe attack of the blues, tried to commit the crime of infanticide, but was prevented by the opportune arrival of a neighbor. Her case has been considered by the doctors incurable, but her husband was highly pleased, after using a course of Sulphur Bitters, to find she was entirely cured.—Kingston Herald.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had Brown of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scale would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have the disease again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some thought worm, psora, etc. It took ... and ... Blood, Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I feel as clear as any person ever was. The strong force of habit I use my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, from these vile and scavenger sinks, suck up that poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing worth all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical, and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Poor Dunder.

"Sergeant, vash some warrant oudt to arrest me?" softly inquired Carl Dunder, as he tiptoed into the Woodbridge street stationhouse.

"Not that I know of—why?" replied Sergt. Bendal.

"Vhell, two or three days ago a strange man comes in my place. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. Mr. Dunder, I vahs of the board of health, und I like to look in your cellar for dead rats und cholera. Dot seems all right to me, und I light der candle und he goes doun. He vash gone a long time, und ven he comes up he says dot cellar vhas all right. He vahs in New York, Chicago, Toledo, und odder places, und he neafer see sooch a clean place."

"Some swindler, of course."

"Vhell, in der afternoons anoddder mans vhalks in on me. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. Mr. Dunder, vhas dot sewer in your cellar all right? If he wasn't, dot sewer gas fills der whole place und you vhas taken to der boneyard. Dot seems all right, und I let him go down. He vhas gone a good vhile, und he comes oop he says he vas in Buffalo, Cincinnati, Syracuse, und Baltimore, und he neafer see sooch a sewer pefore."

"He was another swindler."

"Vell, dis morning the third man comes in. Vhas I Carl Dunder? I vhas. All right. Mr. Dunder, I vhas the fire commissioner. Maype your cellar vhas all right if you vhas cut off by fire, und maype she needs some fire-escapes. Please light dot candle und I shall see. He vhas gone twenty minutes, und vhen he comes oop he wipes off his shin mit his elbow. Dot put some ideas in my bedt, but he says he vas in Kansas City, Omaha, Milwaukee, und he neafer see a cellar fixed oop like mine. In case of fire he could shump out like a rabbit."

"What a greenhorn you are!"

"Vhell maype I vahs. I go down cellar pooty quick to look arounddt, und I find dot dose fellers drink three bottles of my wine und shteal some more. Dot vhas a game on me, sergeant."

"Of course it was."

"Vhell, I made oop my mind dot der next feller pays for all. He vhas sweet und shmiling. Vhas I Carl Dunder, I vahs. All right. Mr. Dunder, I like to go down cellar to see your—"

"What?"

"Shust aboudt dot time I shump for him, und in two minutes he vhas pulverized. I make a mop of him, und I smash two tables mit his heels. He crawls out doors after a while, und vhen he vash gone half an hour my telephone rings. Hello! Vhas dis Carl Dunder? He vhas. Vhell Mr. Dunder, you half almost killed der mans we sent to read your gas meter und she vill cost you $500 to settle."

"No! And you pounded the wrong man!"

"Vhell, how can I help it? One day a false expressman brings me a shtone in a package, und collects 80 cents. Der next day annoddder man brings me a package, and after I kick him I find she vhas a bundle from der shtove. One man comes in and collects money to build a shurch. He vhas a shwindler, und I look oudt. I gif der next man some awful kicks, und he proofs dot he vhas a preacher. You see, it vhas all pecause nobody vhas like himself two times, sergeant."

"Well!"

"I vhas going home, und go to bedt. I vhas sick all oafer. If ten hoondred men come to shwindle me it vhas all right, und I doan' say a word. If you ring oop my telephone to-night und I vhas hanged by der neck in der wood-shed you can say dot I died because of sooch a queer country."—Detroit Free Press.

Knew All About Them.

An old gentleman, speaking to a young lady and commenting upon her freshness and good looks, remarked:

"Ah, my dear, may you long retain them. Yours is a happy period of life. You know nothing yet of the jealousies, the heartburnings, the contentions, the rivalries that beset the pathway of existence."

"Don't I, though?" she interrupted. "I want you to understand that I belong to a church choir."—New York Weekly.

How Stories Grow.

A little item of news appeared a few weeks ago in a Montana paper stating that the very gentlemanly Piegan squaws had made a handsome fortune the past spring skinning the dead cattle of the ranchmen living around their reservation.

That item started out on its journey, and an Idaho paper stated the Piegan Indians had made $4,000 in the laudable pastime of ripping the hides off defunct bovines somewhere in Montana.

A Utah exchange said the Heigan Bucks had cleared up 1,000,000 hides taken from frozen stockmen up in Montana to the tune of $40,000.

A Nevada exchange said the Pie Gun inguns had struck a bonanza to the charming amount of $400,000 peeling dead carcasses up in Montana.

An Ohio wide-awake journal (and the Buckeye State is generally in the lead in everything) says the Bee-gum Indians of Montana had realized a cool $4,000,000 out of their efforts to strip the cuticle out of the entire animal kingdom.—Boise City (Idaho) Statesman.

At Claremont, a few days ago, the will of Melvin Proctor, a man of some wealth, was drawn up by a lawyer in presence of witnesses, and Mr. Procter, who was in bed ill, rose to sign it, and had written "Melvin" when he suddenly sank back dead. This will raise some new points of law.

An Important Element

Of the success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is the fact that every purchaser receives a fair equivalent for his money. The familiar headline "100 Doses One Dollar," stolen by imitators, is original with and true only of Hood's Sarsaparilla. This can easily be proven by any one who desires to test the matter. For real economy, buy only Hood's Sarsaparilla. Sold by all druggists.

Thomas Lord of Dunbarton, a prominent citizen aged seventy-two years, was killed by a fall in his barn Oct. 1st.

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

I thank God that you ever invented such a medicine for catarrh. I have suffered for five years so I could not lie down for weeks at a time. Since I have been using Ely's Cream Balm I can rest. —Frank P. Burleigh, Farmington, N. H.

A Square Issue.

The brewers in New York state will be assessed one cent on each barrel of ale sold from May 1, 1886, to May 1, 1887, the proceeds to be used to defeat the renomination or re-election of every republican who voted for the Vedder and Crosby high license bills in the legislature. Where there is no show for electing a democrat, a republican favorable to the free sale of liquors without legislative restraint is to be supported, if such can be found. The malters also have to pay $100 for every 60,000 bushels of malt sold in the same period. Some of the brewers do not approve of it but they must pay.

At present there are in round numbers about 5,000,000 barrels of beer and ale sold in that state each year. The proposed tax of one cent a barrel on each of these would yield the handsome sum of $50,000 from this source alone. As at least 10,000,000 bushels of malt are sold annually, about $17,000 more would be raised from this, and enough more it was thought would be obtained from other sources to swell this sum to $25,000, making in all about $75,000, a rather powerful campaign fund. Besides this, the Brewers' Exchange has a sinking fund of $300,000, from which it is said $50,000 was appropriated a few days ago when the resolution to raise at least $50,000 more was adopted. It is understood, of course, that only a portion of this will be expended this year—just enough to make a fair beginning, leaving the major part of the fund for use during the presidential campaign next year, and in the selection of delegates to the national republican convention.

The brewers lead in these matters of legislation because they have designs upon congressional action. They will own several representatives elected by their material aid, and in matters of legislation their interests must be protected, alike against the fanatical prohibitionist and the demands of the whiskey ring. In some districts the plan will be inaugurated, it is stated, copied from the old plan in New Hampshire, of having a prohibitionist run against a republican candidate for the assembly, at the expense of the brewers' association, whose agent selects the candidate and allots the campaign funds. The brewers are quite solid with D. Bennett Hill, who as governor will veto any bill passed restricting the sale of liquor, and in return is to have the support of delegates who are to present the liquor interest's plank in the democratic national convention.

It is thought by some that many democrats will stampede their party lines when the democracy is so openly managed, owned and governed by this interest, which seeks to suppress every representative who votes according to his convictions. The brewers however insist that the issue may as well come at this time as at any. Without their aid, the democratic party, long mortgaged to the liquor interest, cannot move. The brewers claim in New York to hold the first mortgage, and have simply taken possession and hold the party, under their claims to operate it. There is occasional wincing by the old line managers. But little by little, their names cease to adorn the papers accompanying applications for office. They become ousted of chairmanships of committees and conventions, and are quietly tucked away upon the political shelf. The party is to be run by practical men, whose check books show large balances in bank. The issue is rapidly tending between the saloon party, doing business under the name of democracy, and the anti-saloon party, operated by the opponents of the once proud democratic party. The contest, like the struggle between freedom and slavery, will continue until the impractical men in the temperance party cease extending their aid and comfort to the democracy by denouncing republicans and endeavoring to compass their defeat. When these men shall cease these acts and utterances done and promulgated simply to punish the republicans, and combine in practical political work with the opponents of the saloon power, the end will come.

The brewers play for a high stake. They will sow the wind to reap the whirlwind. If the democracy by their aid, obtain the power in Congress to shape legislation, the country will be a land flowing in the product of foreign brews—a result of free trade with which the republicans never threatened the so-called "industries" of the country. The trouble with this organization seems to be that it is controlled, not by clear cut American business men, but by adopted citizens, who fail to see the independence of our legislative systems, and in seeking to escape what is regarded by them, not as a salutary police regulation in the interest of the very brewers themselves, but as an unjust discrimination against a legitimate business, they will evoke a greater calamity upon their traffic. They lack the philosophy which a long-headed Yankee would display in such an exigency, who if in control of their organization would doubtless advise that it were better to "bear those ills we have Than fly to others that we know not of."

The Legislature.

The house on Tuesday adopted a resolution offered by Mr. Moore of Nashua, instructing the judiciary committee to investigate all charges of attempted bribery or improper solicitation of votes in connection with the railroad bills.

A test vote upon a certain amendment to the Hazen bill, taken on Tuesday afternoon, showed a majority of thirty-five in favor of the Hazen measure.

The final passage of the bill, with only amendments offered in the interest of proper legislation, and not for captious purposes, is generally conceded.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

CITIZENS' EXCURSION TO BOSTON.

The Boston & Maine railroad will run an excursion to Boston on Thursday, Oct. 6th. The tickets for this excursion will be good going on any regular train Oct. 6th, and returning on regular trains Oct. 6th and 7th, including admission to the Mechanics' fair, and will be sold at this station for $1.95. This will afford an excellent opportunity for our citizens to visit the Hub and attend a most interesting exhibition, at a low rate.

POLICE COURT.

TUESDAY, Oct. 4th; Batchelder J.

Four persons were brought before the court for drunkenness, and the offence in each case was proved. Two of the offenders were young men of this city employed on the railroad, who said this was their first experience in the line of getting drunk, and the result was so unsatisfactory that they should not pursue the business any further; there was no evidence to disprove their statements, and the mother of one of them appeared in court and said her son was her main support, and appealed for his release. Under these circumstances the magistrate allowed them to go on probation, and we suppress their names.

The third in the list of those who had tarried too long at the bar, or visited it too frequently, was a young man from Eliot, who came into this city on business, and got drunk, which was not the business he intended to transact when he started. Being informed that this young man carried on a small farm in Eliot, and aided largely in the support of several dependant relatives, the judge allowed him also to go on his promise of good behavior.

Joseph Ryan—we give his name, or the name he goes by in this police court, he being an old rounder—was the last of the quartette. He was before Geo. E. Hodgdon, Esq., the previous day, on a similar charge, but managed to squeeze out of it, no doubt to his sincere disgust, he having before visited Brentwood, and being now most likely working his plans to get winter quarters there. He was fined $5, costs $6.90, and sent to jail in default of payment.

PERSONAL.

Miss Abbie F. Parshley, bookkeeper and cashier at Messrs. H. B. Buzzell & Son's store, (and their grand-daughter and niece,) is passing a vacation of a few weeks with her parents, Mr. A. S. Parshley and wife of Rochester, this state.

A PROSPECT FOR ADDITIONAL WATER SUPPLY.

A hearing was had before the senate committee on incorporations on Tuesday, on the question of reporting the act introduced by Senator Langdon, incorporating certain citizens as a corporation to introduce pure water into Portsmouth. The applicants for the bill were represented by Chas. B. Gafney, Wm. H. Hackett and Calvin Page, Esquires. The proprietors of the Portsmouth aqueduct opposed the enactment, and were represented by Wm. H. Rollins, J. S. H. Frink and E. G. Eastman, Esquires. Several witnesses from this city were examined. We were informed by telegraph, Tuesday evening, that the committee voted unanimously to report the bill.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The train from Dover to this city leaving the former place at 10:20 o'clock Tuesday forenoon, was moving at a rapid rate near Pinkham's grove, Dover point, when the flange of one of the tender wheels broke, and it left the rails. The passengers were jounced around and much alarmed, but the engineer soon stopped the train, and no damage was done excepting to the tender.

Much interest is centered in a case that opened Oct. 3d in the district court at Malden, Mass. The defendant is H. A. Trafton, who is sued by the Boston & Maine railroad for a fare between this city and Boston. Mr. Trafton is a commercial drummer. He claims that on April 16th he bought an unlimited ticket from Dover to Boston, and when he tendered his ticket to the conductor on the Portsmouth & Dover road, he stated that he desired to stop over at Portsmouth. The conductor took his ticket, and in return gave him a stop-over check limited to ten days. Trafton accepted the check under protest. On Sept. 24th he got on a train to ride to Boston, and offered his stop-over check in payment for his fare. The conductor would not take it, and Mr. Trafton refused to pay cash. He claims that the stop-over check should be good at any time.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner John Lenthall, after waiting nearly a week, managed to get through the draw of the Noble's Island bridge on Tuesday.

The tug William Kemp, of Portland, bound from Boston to Portland with a number of dredging scows, came up to this city Tuesday forenoon for coal and water, leaving her tow in the lower harbor.

The schooner Majestic, Gross master, from Bangor for York with lumber, went ashore near Fort Preble, Cape Elizabeth, Me., on the morning of Oct. 3d, in a fog. It was thought she would come off with little harm.

The schooners Pearl Nelson and Franklin Woodruff arrived at Provincetown, Mass., Oct. 3d, from Grand bank, with full fares of fish, and with their flags half-masted for loss of members of their crews, the former having having lost three men and the latter five, in the great gale of Sept. 3d

A splendid life-size portrait of the late Gen. John A. Dix of New York, representing him in full major general's uniform, was presented to the state of New Hampshire on the 4th inst. by citizens of Boscawen, where Gen. Dix was born, and some of his personal friends in New York. The portrait was painted by U. D. Tenney, and the face and figure are pronounced remarkably lifelike and striking.

A free lunch of sandwiches and beer was served to all comers at the saloon lately kept by Emmanuel Charlesworth on Congress street, Monday evening, the occasion being a change in the proprietorship. The patronage and encomiums bestowed on the entertainment were most liberal in extent.

A rainbow of rare beauty and brilliancy spanned the eastern sky on Tuesday afternoon between four and five o'clock, during the thunder shower that prevailed; above it was another perfect arch, but of fainter and more subdued tints.

Five or six railroad men went to York beach from this city on a handcar, Saturday night, starting after eight o'clock in the pouring rain, on a gunning excursion. They returned Sunday night in time to go to work Monday morning.

The cattle which haul farm produce and wood into this city from York county are many of them of large size. Among them, besides those of the so-called "native" stock, appear some of the black Dutch cattle, which have been very successfully raised in that section in late years. Large quantities of hay and other produce have been brought to this market by ox-teams this season.

The season at York beach has been longer continued this year than ever. The last boarders have but recently left the Donnell house, and a few still remain at the Sea Cottage. Landlord Grant, of the latter, has lately been absent on a mission to the Christian association of the state of Maine. The Garrison house, although it yet comes under the head of "new," was filled with guests all summer. The private cottages along York sands have not all yet been deserted, and pleasure carriages are still seen driving along the strand.

Biddeford is to have a new fire-alarm bell, which will hang in a tower now being erected for it on top of the city building. The bell is being made at Troy, N. Y., is to weigh 3500 lbs., and will be the heaviest one in York county, the next heaviest, that of the Pepperell mills, weighing 2950 lbs.

Mr. Lebbeus Butler, postmaster of Sanford, having recently died in Boulder, Cal., a petition asking the appointment of Miss Lulu Clark as postmaster in his place has been very generally signed by the republicans and democrats of the town. Miss Clark is the daughter of a prominent and influential democrat, and has conducted the affairs of the office very creditably to herself and satisfactorily to patrons during the past year and eight months that she has been employed as assistant.

NOTICE---W. I. R. C.

PORTSMOUTH, Oct. 4th, 1887.

THE WOMAN'S INDEPENDENT RELIEF CORPS, No. 1, of New Hampshire, will hold their meetings at Good Templar's Hall, opposite the Post-Office, on the first and third Thursdays of each month, the next regular meeting being held Oct. 6th at half-past seven o'clock. Members are earnestly requested to be present, as there is business of importance to come before the meeting. Ladies who are eligible are cordially invited to join us in the good work, our object being to assist needy and sick soldiers, sailors and marines of the late rebellion, and their families.

MARBLES AND GRANITE.

All kinds of CEMETERY WORK, such as Fencing and Curbing, done in the best manner, (none but experienced workmen being employed.) Any at prices not to be outdone by any other firm in New Hampshire.

Mr. Horace McIntire of Beech Ridge, York, in plowing up two acres planted with potatoes obtained five bushels of good ones, or which appeared to be good.——Mr. George Moulton of Beech Ridge has commenced operations at his apple-evaporating works, having received two car-loads of suitable apples from Greenland, N. H.——Mr. Wm. Furbush of Beech Ridge raised this season an immense squash, reported to weigh 162 pounds; he paid a great deal of attention and care to its growth.

It is reported that Mr. William L. Fernald, for some years past clerk with Mr. Walker at York village, contemplates leaving that popular establishment, and going to Massachusetts. If he carries out this intention he will be missed by many friends in York. Mr. Fernald recently sold a good horse owned by him, five years old, to Mr. Currier of Kittery for $125.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scale would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of it, and some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. Now you feel I been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Peoples Skin Diseases (meaning number two, "Diseases of the Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. To those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. It is unrivalled in relieving and in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Horsemanship.

Saddles are almost as various in form and structure as the races of men who use horses, and so are the styles of riding, and the man who dogmatizes about his own saddle and style runs the risk of being brought to shame. Nothing, for instance, can differ more from a cowboy's seat and saddle than a Cossack's or Turcoman's. The cowboy sits straight-legged on his fork, in what is called "tongs on a wall" fashion, in a high-peaked saddle, with his toes stuck out. The Cossack or Turcoman sits as flat as if he were in a chair, his leg forming a right angle at the knee and his feet exactly parallel with the horse's side. All three are superb riders, whether it be for sticking on, or getting over rough ground, or making long marches, or fighting, or running away. If you argued with a Turcoman that he ought not to sit in a flat saddle, with such short stirrups, but get a Whitman and stick his legs out, like Capt. Codman, he would not laugh because that is not his style, but he would inwardly set you down as an idiot, besides being an infidel.

There is also much nonsense talked about the propriety or impropriety of raising or "bobbing up and down" in the saddle during the trot when making a journey, and occasionally a "True American" writes to the newspapers some sad drivel on this subject as a protest against the Anglomaniac dudes who bob up and down on banged horses in the park. On the subject Capt. Codman, too, appears to have been led astray. If you use an English saddle, it is simply cruelty to the horse not to rise in trotting on a long ride, especially in the case of a heavy weight. In an English saddle the rider sits well behind his stirrups, which are rather short, a fashion approaching closely to the Asiatic seat, and if he tries to sit close during the trot he strikes the horse a catapultic blow at every stride in the tenderest portion of the animal's back. When he rises, on the contrary, he descends gently and he keeps his weight steady on the horse by throwing it into his stirrups when his hinder parts are in the air. The principle of the thing is in the fact illustrated by the jockey's practice of standing in his stirrups during a race and the Cossacks or Arabs during a charge. In both cases what is sought is to avoid pounding the horse with a 150-pound mallet when the poor animal is trying to move in a regular trot or gallop.

In a military, or Mexican, or Whitman saddle the circumstances are wholly different. The rider almost stands straight legged in his stirrups when the horse is trotting and keeps his weight on them and at the same time accommodates himself to the horse's motion by an up-and-down spring of the foot. In other words, he has no occasion to rise, and does not come down on the horse with a bang. There is probably nothing about which wide observation is more necessary to make people talk sensibly than about horsemanship. Every nation which rides in the saddle has its own system, and for that nation its own bridles, saddles, bits, and seats are the best in the world. The man who sets about disputing this runs great risk, as we have said, of being brought to shame. —New York Evening Post.

The Eccentricities of Herr Krupp.

It was a standing order to all those who surrounded or approached him that the word "death" was never to be mentioned or referred to in conversation within the precincts of his great establishment. Some years ago a relation of his wife's came to stay with him, and was taken suddenly ill and died. When Krupp heard of it he fled immediately to the neighboring town of Dusseldorf, and would not return until after his relation had been duly buried. This very naturally led to a scene with his wife, the result being that they separated. Mrs. Krupp went to live at Dresden, and not even the entreaties of their son prevailed on Herr Krupp to see her before he died. The same stubbornness was shown by him when his son Fritz, who contested the parliamentary borough (Essen) at the last general election in the interest of the Government, was defeated by the "ultra" or "clerical party." Herr Krupp issued an edict that no employe should take into his cottage or read the local papers of the Ultramontane party. A few days after this edict a poor workman being found wrapping up his "butterbrod" in a sheet of this journal was instantly dismissed.

Hogs Can Swim.

There is an old tradition that hogs can't swim, and on this is probably founded the twice-told tale of the devil entering into hogs in the country of the Gaderenes, causing them to run violently down a steep bank into the sea, where they were choked. The idea is that the sharp cloven hoof of the hog comes up against his throat in his effort to paddle and cuts it. All this is bosh. Hogs, if given half a chance, become expert swimmers. I know of an old sow 8 or 10 years old that has been kept for breeding purposes up among the Naugatuck hills of Connecticut that can rival Boynton as an expert in the water. Her pen is on the bank of Mad river and runs down to the water. Her only way of getting out of it is by water. Once a day during the summer she takes a swim to a little island located in the center of the river, and there she wallows till it is time to take her nightly rations, when at the call of her owner she swims back to her pen.—Cincinnati Times-Star.

ELASTIC

STARCH

The First and Only Starch put up by men who have a practical knowledge of the laundry profession. It requires no cooking, keeps the iron from sticking and linen from blistering while ironing, and gives shirts, cuffs and collars that stiffness and beautiful polish they have when new, which everybody knows keeps them clean twice as long. Beware of imitations. See that the name J. C. HUDNUT, NEW HAVEN, CONN., is on every package. SOLD BY ALL GROCERS.

The schooner Havana was wrecked near St. Joseph, Michigan, in the great gale which swept Lake Michigan on Sunday night, Oct. 2d, and her captain and two seamen were drowned. Four men were saved.

Every woman who suffers from sick headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the easiest of all medicines to take. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in dyspepsia and indigestion; prevent and cure constipation and piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. Price twenty-five cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

Why don't you try Carter's Little Liver Pills? They are a positive cure for sick headache, and all the ills produced by a disordered liver. Only one pill a dose.

Independent newspapers in Hungary express doubt whether the present armed peace does not involve too heavy sacrifices.

Two tramps, one claiming a residence in Bangor and the other in Montreal, were arrested in Saco on the 4th inst. for a brutal assault on Mrs. Abigail Swett, widow of Charles C. Swett. The scoundrels were chased by Mrs. Swett's neighbors, and caught in a brickyard.

In New South Wales, Aug. 29th, Wadham Wyndham, a man of high standing, in a religious frenzy murdered his wife and three children, to whom he was devotedly attached. He said God had commanded him to do it.

Sara Jewett, only a few years ago one of the most prominent actresses in the country, has become so reduced through declining health and her addiction to opium, that on the 3d inst. she applied to the Actor's Fund charity for money to buy the necessaries of life. Manager Palmer, who was manager of the Union Square theatre when Miss Jewett was leading lady there, sent her his check for $150 as soon as he heard of her need.

Mrs. Frances Hawkins, the aged lady found murdered in the woods at Islip, Long island, had quarelled with her son, aged twenty-two years, because he wished to marry a sewing girl, and he has been arrested for the murder.

Vigor and Vitality

Are quickly given to every part of the body by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The blood is purified, enriched, and vitalized, and carries health instead of disease to every organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored. The kidneys and liver are roused and invigorated. The brain is refreshed, the mind made clear and ready for work. Try it.

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

I thank God that you ever invented such a medicine for catarrh. I have suffered for five years so I could not lie down for weeks at a time. Since I have been using Ely's Cream Balm I can rest. —Frank P. Burleigh, Farmington, N. H.

The Legislature.

In the house on the 5th inst. a message was received from the governor calling attention to the necessity of providing for a deficiency of between $130,000 and $140,000 in the state finances that will be occasioned by the prolonged session of the legislature. It was appropriately referred.

Consideration of amendments to the Hazen bill was resumed, the first one taken up giving the legislature the right at any time to annul or modify the provisions of any lease. A roll-call was demanded and the amendment rejected—107 yeas to 138 nays. Ten of the eleven remaining amendments were then withdrawn by the gentlemen who introduced them. The final amendment, offered by Mr. Clark of Manchester, compelling railroads to sell 500-mile tickets at two cents a mile, was adopted on division—134 to 104.

At eleven o'clock A. M. the vote on ordering the Hazen bill to a third reading was taken, and resulted in the third reading being ordered, 163 to 126.

This vote insured the passage of the Hazen bill at three o'clock in the afternoon by practically the same majority.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY POINT, ME., Oct. 3d.

The steam yacht Gipsy, owned by Mr. Starr of Litchfield, Mass., left Kittery Point at six o'clock this morning for Boston, where she will be hauled up during the winter months.

The schooner B. D. Prince, of Lincolnville, Me., arrived in the lower harbor this morning with freight for the navy yard from New York. She took a pilot to the yard this afternoon.

Just before dark to-night quite a procession of crafts might be seen entering our harbor. First, heading up stream was a three-masted vessel, next a coal steamer, following that a tug-boat with four scows in tow, and last of all two coasters. They extended from Fort point out past Whale's-back.

The fishing schooner Gertie C., of this port, Capt. Wm. Patch, is bending her sails and preparing for her winter's work.

Two hundred tons of coal were landed on the wharf of Solon Frisbee & Co. last week, and another cargo is expected soon. The spiles for the new fish house to be built on the same wharf are all driven, and the lumber for building is on the way from Bangor in the schooner Loella.

The hotels are all closed but the Pepperell, and that closes Tuesday. Never before have there been so many summer boarders in Kittery Point. It is rumored that another season will see another hotel erected within the limits of "the Point." The elm-shaden streets of Sir William Pepperell's day are fast gaining a name in the outside world, and people come from all parts of the United States to spend a few days or weeks in Kittery by the sea.

A short time since the steam yacht Gipsy took a party of fifteen from this place on an excursion up the Piscataqua. The day was clear and bright, the waters danced and sparkled, and the frost-touched foliage on either bank made up a picture to be remembered.

The Christian church has been thoroughly repaired and cleansed, and newly carpeted. Services will be held there next Sunday.

The ladies of the Freewill Baptist church will give a harvest supper in their vestry, Wednesday evening.

Mrs. Wm. J. Call moved her little family and household goods to Malden, Mass., last week, where her husband is employed all the year.

Kittery Point has again been robbed, and this time we know who robbed us. A man from York came across the river and carried away with him one of the fairest daughters of our town. We wish he had stayed at home and learned the commandment "Thou shalt not covet," for we haven't any daughters to spare, and mourn the loss of this one from our social gatherings, and religious services. If anybody else wants a wife they needn't come to Kittery Point for one, for the little brothers are getting out their pop-guns to keep the robbers away.

Mr. Wm. C. Williams, from Boon island, arrived with his family on Friday. He reports smoke and fog so thick that the mainland could not be seen for ten days. He has brought in a load of fish, but most of them were sold before they got here.

Elmer Peterson, aged twenty-one years, son of Daniel and Emily Peterson of Somerville, Mass., was buried here today. Services were held in Somerville.

The maples are all turning, and now is the time to preserve autumn leaves for Christmas decorations.

AUNT MOLLY.

KITTERY, ME., Oct. 4th.

Mrs. Frank Bartlett has harvested nearly all her potatoes the past week, and has found scarcely a rotten one among the whole lot. The land on which they were planted is high and warm, and the potatoes ripened before the wet weather set in. The crop this year is of unusually smooth, fine-looking tubers.

Mr. Albert Bowden lost a valuable cow on Monday evening; the animal was being driven from pasture, and was struck by the engine on the York Harbor & Beach railroad, and thrown a considerable distance.

The Good Templars of North Kittery will have a harvest supper in the vestry of the 1st Methodist church on Thursday evening, the 6th inst., if fair weather; if stormy, the first fair evening following.

Miss Estelle DeNavarra of Chelsea, Mass., is visiting in the family of her cousin, Mr. Oliver Hatch, at North Kittery. SUB ROSA.

The apothecary store of E. C. Eastman in South Berwick was entered on the night of the 2d inst., a hole being cut in the cellar door large enough to admit of an arm being put through to slip back the bolt; the change in the money drawer, a small amount, was stolen, and also some knives and cigars. On the same night a hole was cut in the back door of Henry Willard's dry goods store, but the thieves were unable to undo the fastenings. The house of William Thompson was entered and ransacked, and the intruders made free with what eatables they found, but it is not known that they stole anything else at this place. It is believed that the numerous offences of this kind which have recently taken place in South Berwick have been perpetrated by boys or young men living in the vicinity, there being little evidence of the "professional" in the manner in which the jobs have been done.

Charles Sweet, Esq., of New York city, has given the New York yacht club formal notice that he intends to challenge for the America's cup. Mr. Sweet is a Scotchman and a lawyer, and has law offices in London and New York; he has been a member of the New York yacht club, but has resigned his membership to give this challenge; he is still a member of the Royal Thames yacht club and the Yacht Racing association of England, and will probably give the formal challenge as a member of the Thames club. Nothing has been announced as to the size of the yacht that will be sent across the Atlantic in the endeavor to win the cup, but she will be designed by Mr. Watson, the designer of the Thistle.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. A COMPARISON.

The following is a comparative table of the standing of the public schools of this city, the record for the month of September this year being compared with that of the same month in 1886. It will be seen that there has been a tendency toward general improvement during the year the school system has been under the direction of a superintendent, the number of pupils enrolled and the average daily attendance having increased, while the average daily absence has decreased:

	Sept. '86.	Sept. '87.
Number of pupils enrolled,	1293	1369
Males,	696	725
Females,	597	644
Average number of pupils,	1177	1316
Average daily attendance,	1090	1247
Average daily absence,	88	69
Per cent of attendance daily,	926	947
Number of tardinesses,	434	440
Number of dismissals,	160	144
Not absent, tardy or dismissed,	373	573

A REQUEST WHICH SHOULD BE GRANTED.

The directors of the Cottage Hospital have in circulation a petition to the city government, signed by the directors, all the visiting physicians, and citizens generally, asking for an appropriation of $500 for the support of two beds. There have been thirty patients within the past year, thirteen of them remaining in the hospital from two to six weeks, who would have been a charge to the city if they had not been placed in this institution. This shows that as a mere matter of business economy, entirely setting aside official convenience and humanity to the sick, the very modest appropriation asked should be promptly granted by the city. The unselfish efforts of those who projected and have sustained this beneficent charity should be supplemented by a reasonable degree of aid from the general public.

PERSONAL.

Col. John H. Bario, United States post-office inspector, was in town on Wednesday.

Mr. True W. Priest left on Tuesday of this week to go on the Raymond tour from Boston through central New York via the Hoosac tunnel.

Mr. Martin Hoyt left this city on the 4th inst. for California, where he will pass the winter for the benefit of his health, which has not been so robust of late as he and his relatives and frinds—we being among the latter—could wish.

THE COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

Second annual report of the board of Directors and Treasurer:

Trustees:—T. Salter Tredick, Esq., President, Com. C. W. Pickering, U. S. N., Hon. Daniel Marcy, Rev. Charles A. Holbrook, John Hatch, Esq., John S. Rand, Secretary and Treasurer, Rev. Henry E. Hovey, Rev. Wm. A. McGinley, Joseph H. Thacher, Esq., Dr. Francis E. Langdon, Edward P. Kimball, Esq.

Directors:—Mrs. Daniel Marcy, President, Mrs. E. P. Kimball, Mrs. R. C. Pierce, Mrs. F. W. Miller, Mrs. H. E. Hovey, Miss Kimball, Secretary and Treasurer.

Matron:—Miss A. L. Miller.

The close of another year affords the Directors of the Hospital a special opportunity, in the rendering of their second annual report, to assure the many friends of the institution of the continued prosperity of the work. During the year more than double the number of patients admitted last year have been under treatment, and including the out-patients, treble the number. The number last year was fifteen; the number this year reported is forty-five. This includes nine out-patients, those who came in for day treatment only. If any one is disposed to compare the other statistics of the institution with last year's, he will find them equally encouraging. The year indeed has added many new proofs of the blessing which this charity is to our community, and has renewed the promise of yet greater blessing in the future. The fact that the support of the work has not diminished the support of other beneficent and older institutions of mercy here, but that their receipts have rather been augmented since the opening of the Hospital, is not only cause for common congratulation, but demonstrates the truth of the almost divine axiom, that the more we do the more we can do.

If the Hospital were endowed, as the Directors trust that it will be at some not far distant day, its usefulness would, of course, be largely increased. An endowment would rapidly spread the knowledge of its existence and value and multiply applications for admission. It would enable the Directors to make the many needed improvements pointed out in last year's report, and by thus attracting a much greater number of paying patients, it would very considerably increase the revenue which is at present small compared with the expenses, although those expenses are reduced to the lowest point compatible with a generous care of the afflicted inmates. As the Hospital is not endowed, it must of necessity require a much longer time to build up a reputation which with an honest faith in God and their fellow-men, the Directors doubt not can be done. The facts, it is believed, in regard to most hospitals which are unendowed is that they are behind, rather than in advance of, ours in growth and usefulness.

Not in deprecation of possible failure therefore, but rather in assurance of permanent success, the directors would beg the consideration of the whole community, and bespeak for the work the continued interest and multiplied benefactions of those friends for whose past generosity they are so deeply indebted.

Not much need be said of the internal affairs of the Hospital. Miss Miller, who is both matron and head-nurse, and who came here as the last report stated, with the highest recommendations as thoroughly trained and fitted for her position, has entirely fulfilled the expectations of the Directors, who feel that the management of the Hospital cannot fail to command approval while it is in hands so faithful and efficient. Although Miss Miller has been urgently called to a most flattering position elsewhere, the Directors have been able to secure her services for at least another year. Last spring Miss Dibblee whose tireless and conscientious labors as nurse were so highly appreciated, was obliged to go away for a prolonged rest, and her place has since been satisfactorily filled by Miss Cook. The young ladies in charge of the basket supplies have continued their weekly duties. The Directors are sincerely grateful for their faithful cooperation, and the generous baskets received have testified to a thoughtfulness in the donors which demands especial recognition and thanks.

It would give the Directors pleasure to publish the names of the individual contributors belonging to the organizations supporting beds in the Hospital, but learning that many of them earnestly desired that their names should be withheld and being unable to ascertain the wishes of all it was almost necessary to refrain from publishing the names of any.

In pleading once more at the close of this report for the future support of the Hospital, the Directors feel that it is its own most eloquent petitioner; its very existence a continual appeal to every compassionate heart; and to those who have been prostrated for weary weeks on beds of pain or who through days and nights, perhaps of harrowing suspense, have watched and striven to relieve the sufferings of others, the appeal can hardly be in vain. May the time come very soon when all who can will co-operate in this work so especially commended by our Blessed Lord of ministering to sufferers in His Name.

HARRIET MCEWEN KIMBALL,
Secretary of the Board of Directors.

Portsmouth, N. H. Oct. 1, 1887.

An excursion train of seventeen heavily loaded cars faom North Conway for Boston passed through this city on Tuesday, Oct. 4th.

A poor woman residing on Washington street has recently lost eight hens by poisoning, it is said. Mighty mean business for somebody.

At a meeting of the selectmen of ward three, held Tuesday evening of this week, John W. Huntress was drawn as petit juror to attend the October term of the supreme court to be holden in this city Oct. 18th.

Another new freight engine, the "Cape Ann," was delivered to the Boston & Maine railroad on the 4th inst. by the Portland Locomotive Works; it weighs forty-eight tons, and is a mate to the new "Sandown" and "Epping." Three more of the same size will be sent out from the works in a few days.

Mr. John P. Sweetser has fitted up a portion of his extensive stove and kitchen-furnishing store on Market street in a very tasteful manner for the display of chandeliers, lamps, lamp shades, fire grates, screens, andirons, etc. The walls are papered, the floor carpeted, and there are numerous decorations; and the elegant goods which Mr. Sweetser has in stock may now be displayed to good advantage.

Wanted,

At the close of the war Gov. Frederick Smyth had issued a memorial to the soldiers and sailors who made up the state quota during the war. The naval veterans, not knowing that the memorial was intended for them, and thinking that it was only for the army veterans, never applied for copies. It has been given out that the naval veterans are entitled to them, and now after a lapse of twenty-five years the men who fought on the sea are applying through the adjutant general for them, and quite a number have already been given out.

KIDDER'S

DIGESTYLIN

—FOR—

INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA.

A POTENT REMEDY FOR

Indigestion, Acute and Atonic Dyspepsia, Chronic and Gastro-Intestinal Catarrh, Vomiting in Pregnancy, Cholera Infantum, and in convalescence from Acute Diseases.

Over 5,000 physicians have sent to us the most flattering opinions upon Digestylin as a remedy for all diseases arising from improper digestion.

It is not a secret remedy, but a scientific preparation, the formula of which is plainly printed on each bottle. Its great DIGESTIVE POWER is created by a careful and proper treatment of the ferments in the stomach. It is very agreeable to the taste, and acceptable to the most delicate stomachs.

It will positively CURE CHOLERA INFANTUM, Summer Complaints, and CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, all of which are direct results of imperfect digestion. Give your children Digestylin. One bottle may save a life. Not one case of death reported for the past year from above diseases where the patient had taken Digestylin. Ask your Druggist for it. Price $1.00. Large bottles. If he does not keep it, send one dollar to us and we will send you a bottle. Express prepaid.

By reason of its central position, connections for principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines as terminal points West, it is the shortest, quickest, and only true middle link in the transcontinental system, which institutes and controls through traffic in a direct direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, LaSalle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Denver, Leadville, Ogden, St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The History of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars (serving excellent meals), Leadville, Denver, Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—reclining Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. It overlooks points noted for beauty. Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior accommodations for passengers between Council Bluffs, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, travelling without children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, courtesy and kindly treatment.

A Useful Precaution.

It is a useful precaution for the tourist, the commercial traveller, or the emigrant to the west, to take along Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Invalids who travel by steamboat or rail should provide themselves with it, in order to prevent or remedy the nausea which the jarring and vibration of vehicles in transitu often causes them. Vastly preferable is it for this simple, but needful purpose, to the heady unmedicated stimulants of commerce. On board ship, it not only remedies sea sickness, but neutralizes the pernicious effects of water slightly brackish, which, if unqualified, is apt to give rise to irregularities of the bowels, cramps in the abdominal region and dyspepsia. To the aerial poison of malaria it is an efficient antidote. Sick headache, heartburn and wind upon the stomach, are promptly banished by it. It healthfully stimulates the kidneys and bladder, and nullifies the early symptoms of rheumatism.

The democratic New York Sun says the two speeches which the president delivered in Indiana were "filled bodily from the American Encyclopædia."

Economy and strength are peculiar to Hood's Sarsaparilla, the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true.

Ministers, lawyers, teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and biliousness. One is a dose. Try them.

Four persons were killed and one severely injured by a boiler explosion in St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 3d.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injures the complexion, induce pimples, sallow skin. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Try them.

Monsignor O'Brien, papal ablegate, has reached Quebec on a mission, it is believed connected with the Knights of Labor question.

How to Gain Health and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For consumption, throat affections and bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thomas Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

The Chicago Tribune keeps a sharp lookout for the city's good name. It says: "Several exchanges in other places have alluded to the unprecedented divorce business transacted in the Chicago courts last Saturday. In so doing they have done injustice to the city. This may have been unintentional, but it is none the less grievous. In almost every instance they have spoken of the number of divorce cases as 100. Unless we are greatly mistaken the actual number was 105. Fiat justitia. Give us a fair count."

By a vote of ninety-seven to twelve the West Side turner society of Milwaukee, the most influential in Wisconsin, declined an invitation to join the procession on the occasion of President Cleveland's visit. The reason assigned was that the honors to be paid the president smack too much of the homage paid royalty in Europe. The South Side and Vorwaerts societies of Milwaukee took similar action.

There were twenty-seven persons on board the Canadian steamer California, wrecked on Lake Michigan on the 3d inst.; twelve escaped with their lives, and fifteen perished.

A Strange Freak.

The wife of our esteemed citizen, Mr. John Rowell, while suffering under a severe attack of the blues, tried to commit the crime of infanticide, but was prevented by the opportune arrival of a neighbor. Her case has been considered by the doctors incurable, but her husband was highly pleased, after using a course of Sulphur Bitters, to find she was entirely cured.—Kingston Herald.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ..., and ..., Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. Are you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis ("Treatise on Skin Diseases, and Their Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active as at any time from youth; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system has not, through its veins and arteries, sucked up the poison that has caused undermine and shake up indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Mr. Rider Haggard's Models.

A list of the books which Mr. Rider Haggard has never happened to see might be made by the curious from a perusal of the works that gentleman has written. "She" demonstrates to conviction that he never looked at Moore's "Epicurean," "Allan Quartermain" proves that he has not read "Kaloolah," a rather well-known romance by a not inconsiderable writer, who calls himself "Dr. Mayo;" also that he has failed to acquaint himself with Mr. Bell's wonderful narrative of the discovery of the great Canon of the Colorado river. His ignorance is doubtless, in these two instances, a boon to the public; for had it not existed Mr. Allen Quartermain's "original" conceit of a white race inhabiting the interior of the African continent, and the same surprising personage's underground river voyage (beginning, too, with his being sucked into a cavern), with its glimpses of distant light through a rift in the stony roof, would perhaps have been suppressed or modified, as having already served the turn of previous writers. The white race is to be found in "Kaloolah," and Mr. Bell described that grim voyage by subterranean river several years ago in the columns of All the Year Round.—London World.

Why Am I a Heathen?

The main element of all religion is the moral code controlling and regulating the relations and acts of individuals toward "God, neighbor, and self;" and this intelligent "heathenism" was taught thousands of years before Christianity existed or Jewry borrowed it. Heathenism has not lost or lessened it since.

We heathen are a God-fearing race. Aye, we believe the whole Universe creation—whatever exists and has existed—is of God and in God; that figuratively, the thunder is His voice and the lightning His mighty hands; that everything we do and contemplate doing is seen and known by Him; that He has created this and other worlds to effectuate beneficent, not merciless, designs, and that all that He has done is for the steady, progressive benefit of the creatures whom He endowed with life and sensibility, and to whom as a consequence He owes and gives paternal care, and will give paternal compensation and justice; yet His voice will threaten and His mighty hand chastise those who deliberately disobey His sacred laws and their duty to their fellow-man.

"Do unto others as you wish they would do unto you," or "Love your neighbor as yourself," is the great Divine law which Christians and heathen alike hold, but which the Christians ignore.

This is what keeps me the heathen. I am, and I earnestly invite the Christians of America to come to Confucius. —Wong Chin Foo.

Apaches on a Spree.

No drink-loving old topers ever enjoyed their liquor so much as have the Apaches whenever they could procure it, a vice, however, that is rapidly subsiding as the tribes are concentrated at agencies more directly under the eyes of watchful authorities. Mezcal, made from that plant by the Mexicans, found its way in days gone by when population was scattering and the law lax, into Apache maws with every trade and dealing between the two races. From corn they made a fermented drink called tiz-win, which is not as strong as the corn whisky of civilization, but their peculiar method of drinking it compensates for its lack of strength. For some three days before it has reached its highest point of fermentation not a single piece of food is swallowed. At the end of that period they fill themselves to their utmost capacity with the unclarified tiz-win. Although half starved, it takes but a few moments to make them feel as if they had a major-general's rations for six months previous, while the most conspicuous effect is to swell their bump of combativeness to an inordinate degree. If a large number have indulged in this liquor, serious outbreaks and disturbances are almost sure to ensue, especially if other bands of Indians or any whites are near enough for them to reach before this temporary, stimulated combativeness has worn away. In fact, after having, when sober, decided to go on the war-path, by far the most important preliminary is the manufacture of huge quantities of tiz-win. Its peculiar composition, and the no less peculiar manner of taking the liquor, gives it a most lasting effect upon the system, and an Indian with his stomach distended with it is said to have ahead of him a six or eight days' "spree," and during all this time his warlike qualities are sure to be most conspicuous.—Minneapolis Tribune.

The Parrot and the Mocking Bird.

In a home on St. Charles street, overlooking a lovely rose garden, there swings a parrot; near by the cage is a young mocking bird. The other evening such a flood of melody burst from the throat of the mocking bird that Polly was quite overcome. Am I, thought he, "to be cast entirely in the shade by this youngster who, in his first song, bids fair to be a very marvel among birds. O, no, O no! I'll shut him up," and thereupon the parrot raised his croaking voice and sang, "Pretty Polly Hopkins, how do you do to-day!" over and over, each time growing louder until he completely silenced the young singer, who has not since dared to sing a note before his less musical but more confident companion.—New Orleans Picayune.

A Useful Precaution.

It is a useful precaution for the tourist, the commercial traveller, or the emigrant to the west, to take along Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Invalids who travel by steamboat or rail should provide themselves with it, in order to prevent or remedy the nausea which the jarring and vibration of vehicles in transitu often causes them. Vastly preferable is it for this simple, but needful purpose, to the heady unmedicated stimulants of commerce. On board ship, if not only remedies sea sickness, but neutralizes the pernicious effects of water slightly brackish, which, if unqualified, is apt to give rise to irregularities of the bowels, cramps in the abdominal region and dyspepsia. To the aerial poison of malaria it is an efficient antidote. Sick headache, heartburn and wind upon the stomach, are promptly banished by it. It healthfully stimulates the kidneys and bladder, and nullifies the early symptoms of rheumatism.

Arthur Ridley of Meriden, Conn., went to Melbourne, Australia, a little over a year ago with $8000 capital, which he invested in skating rinks. He now owns fourteen, which netted him $75,000 in the last year.

Every woman who suffers from sick headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the easiest of all medicines to take. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in dyspepsia and indigestion; prevent and cure constipation and piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. Price twenty-five cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

The October "Wide Awake" will delight the boys who love a humorous story about one of themselves, for in it Maurice Thompson tells an irresistible story about one of his own boyish escapades, entitled "My First Voyage."

Why don't you try Carter's Little Liver Pills? They are a positive cure for sick headache, and all the ills produced by a disordered liver. Only one pill a dose.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Peculiar in its good name at home, which is a "tower of strength abroad," peculiar in the phenomenal sales it has attained, Hood's Sarsaparilla is the most successful medicine for purifying the blood, giving strength, and creating an appetite.

In an oration at Limerick, Ireland, Father O'Leary of St. Louis declared that Patrick Sarsfield was a socialist and a rebel at heart, as was every true Irishman.

When I began using Ely's Cream Balm my catarrh was so bad I had headache the whole time and discharged a large amount of filthy matter. That has almost entirely disappeared and I have not had headache since.—J. H. Sommers, Stephney, Conn.

I thank God that you ever invented such a medicine for catarrh. I have suffered for five years so I could not lie down for weeks at a time. Since I have been using Ely's Cream Balm I can rest. —Frank P. Burleigh, Farmington, N. H.

Aaron Farnham of East Rochester was kicked in the stomach and bad one hip broken by a horse at the fair grounds on the 29th ult.; he tumbled against the animal's hind legs when drunk. A Few Facts.

Allcock's are the only genuine porous plasters. They act quickly and with certainty, and can be worn for weeks without causing pain or inconvenience. They are valuable in cases of spinal weakness, kidney and pulmonary difficulties, malaria, agne cake, liver complaint, dyspepsia, strains, rheumatism, sciatica and nervous debility. Other lasters blister and inflame the skin so that the pores are closed and often cause serious injury. You risk health and waste time and money by buying inferior plasters made to sell on the reputation of Allcock's.

The Democratic Revolt in Maryland.

The revolt against the Gorman-Higgins ring is spreading day by day in Baltimore. The latest sensational development is the resignation of W. Benton Crisp as president of the democratic city convention. In his letter withdrawing from this office, Mr. Crisp uses language fully as emphatic as that of the address of the Democratic Reform League, and bases his resignation on the same grounds. He charges in plain terms that the men who control the city convention have restored systematically to fraudulent methods, to maintain their power, that they have perverted the registration lists, robbed the ballot boxes, and used the patronage of office for the same purpose.

The Legislature.

The final vote on the Hazen bill was taken in the house at three o'clock P. M. on the 5th, and resulted in its passage by a vote of 167 to 130, a majority of thirty-seven.

In the senate, Oct. 6th, the Atherton and Hazen bills were introduced, read twice, and referred to the railroad committee. Bills ratifying the lease of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad by the Boston & Maine, and authorizing the latter road to assume the obligations of the lease of the Northern railroad to the Boston & Lowell, were read and referred.

In the house a resolve was adopted requesting the Rockingham county delegation to report on the 11th inst. on the bill for redistricting this city.

CHAMPERNOWNE'S ISLAND.

PETTERELL HOUSE, KITTERY POINT, Sept. 30th.

Among the progressive movements at Kittery Point, we notice the erection of a tasteful dwelling on one of the so-called Thaxter lots, on Champernowne island, it having been recently purchased by a retired merchant from New York city. The tastes of the tourists are gratified to see that the avenue leading over the island is being improved by the planting of forest trees along the way, while graceful groups here and there diversify the landscape. A substantial stone wall is being raised on either side, and we would compliment the work of the builders in contrast to the stiff and artificial wire fences that are disfiguring this picturesque region; and we would take occasion to remark that we think our country friends are making a sad mistake in replacing the stone walls of their ancestors by that wretched product of modern manufacture—a wire fence.

From Champernowne avenue we see fair meadows, teeming with a plenteous harvest, and beyond, fine pasture slopes, if we may judge by sleek-looking cows and portly oxen. Among the desirable lots now offered for sale on the Thaxter and Raynes farms, is one which, besides having a charming location, overlooking a hickory grove on the one hand, and the Atlantic on the other, is of especial interest, as it contains the grass-grown cellar of a cottage, long since gone, built by the renowned Champernowne as a hunting lodge, in what was then the heart of an almost unbroken forest. We learn that he often spent a week here with his guests, fishing in the stream, and hunting the game which at that early day abounded. Proofs of these excursions, it is said, have from time to time been unearthed in the mud and debris of a spring near by. Just beyond, we find the immense natural fireplace, consisting of a single bowlder, hollowed by the hand of nature to form an ideal hunter's hearth. The blackened traces of those festive fires have not been entirely effaced by the rainfall of two centuries.

We cannot but conclude that the charms of nature were appreciated by this ancient settler, for it would be hard to find a more delightful location for a country residence, and we heartily congratulate the purchaser, who, we learn, proposes to build a small stone cottage hereabouts in the spring. Two centuries have materially changed the aspect of the island since Champernowne's time, and on the site of his colonial home stands a stately and picturesque mansion of mediæval style, and on its beautiful lawns charming groups of shrubbery, the offshoots of those carefully-guarded shrubs transplanted here from English soil.

We are informed that the owners of these fine old farms on the avenue carefully cherish all traces of the romantic life of this ancient island, no less with an eye to the fact that they practically enhance its value, than the mere gratification of taste. And we, "the weary seekers after something new under the sun," often seem nearest the goal, when we pause awhile to trace the fragmentary record of former men and manners.

Table Etiquette in Zanzibar.

Talking of eating reminds me of the way the operation is preformed by the Arabs. Five of them seat themselves round a large bowl of rice, surmounted by a skinny fowl, all being curried. Two seize the wings with their fingers and two the legs, and simultaniously tearing these off leaving the carcass to the fifth, afterward taking out the rice by handfuls and dexterously conveying it to the mouth with a peculiar jerk. One mark of hospitality shown to guests when at table consists in the chief's rolling up some rice into a ball in the palm of his hand and aiming it at the guest's widely distended jaws. On one occasion this piece of civility was shown to myself, but not being a adept in the art of swallowing rice balls when so projected the effect was anything but what my kind entertainer anticipated, for, independent of being nearly choked, the grains were scattered, or rather sputtered, over the table in a manner that elicited roars of laughter even from the very grave Arabs. This, of course, was the last experiment of the kind tried upon me. —Overland Monthly.

Mexican Soldiery.

At La Guarda an armed escort is provided by the government for every diligencia, because "knights of the road" are believed to be still lurking in the lonesome regions beyond with an eye to business. The said guard consists of four ragged soldiers in scanty cotton garments, with sandals upon their feet, straw hats upon their heads and rusty muskets of antiquated pattern in their hands. As the coach dashes away at the topmost speed of nine-mule power the gallant "escort" is obliged to shuffle along on foot at a lively rate or be left behind to the tender mercies of the bandits, a fate which they appear to dread. —Mexican Letter.

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. If you suffer from scrofula, salt rheum, or any disease of the blood, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, or kidney and liver complaints, catarrh or rheumatism, do not fail to try

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

Mary Crowley, complained of as being a common drunkard, was ordered to the county farm for sixty days, and to pay $6.90 costs.

George A. Alton, drunk, fine $10, costs $6.90; county farm in default of payment.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S ASSOCIATION.

The annual meeting of the Young People's Association of the North Parish was held in the chapel on Middle street on Wednesday evening, the 5th inst., the attendance being larger than at any previous occasion of the kind. The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Edward C. Matthews, president; George B. Chadwick, vice president; Everett L. Marston, treasurer; Miss Grace Brown, secretary.

MUNICIPAL AFFAIRS.

In board of mayor and aldermen, Thursday evening, Oct. 6th, Mayor Hodgdon in the chair:

Present the full board.

Petition of Charles H. Mendum and others for relay of sidewalk on Daniel street was referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Leave was granted C. H. Mendum and other to open Gardner street to lay drain.

On the petition of John H. Wells and others for the widening of Water street near Salter street a hearing was ordered on Oct. 22d, at ten o'clock A. M.

Superintendent of fire alarm asked an increase of $50 per annum on his pay, on the ground of increase of duty and expense. Referred to committee on fire department, to report.

Voted that $20 be allowed for land taken to widen Water street, near Newcastle street.

The matter of the alleged encroachment on Pine street was referred to the committee on streets to report.

City marshal asked for an additional policeman, to protect Market and Congress streets; action deferred to next meeting.

Bills amounting to $6,293 were ordered to be paid.

Bill of G. J. Greenleaf, $5, for a wheel burned on the 4th of July by boys, was ordered paid.

Communication from Mark H. Wentworth in relation to the conduit of the reservoir at the Universalist church, was received and laid on the table.

City marshal's quarterly report was accepted and filed.

In regard to locating a schoolhouse at the junction of State and Summer streets, the city solicitor was directed to prepare a bill to be submitted to the legislature, authorizing the taking of the required land at a fair compensation.

There was considerable discussion regarding the non-admission of certain children to the public schools. The mayor announced his resignation as a member of the board of instruction, and it was voted that the vacancy be filled at the next meeting of the board of aldermen.

Adjourned for two weeks.

ATTEMPTED HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

On the 4th inst. Aaron Pinkham drew from a bank in Dover $400 with which to pay the men employed in his brickyard at Dover point, and was driving toward his home between nine and ten o'clock in the evening, when near St. Mary's Catholic cemetery three men waylaid him, one catching hold of the horse's head while the other two stood at the side of the carriage and demanded Mr. Pinkham's money. Mr. Pinkham gave one of the fellows a cut with the whip, and a stroke of the lash caused the horse to break away from the man holding him, and start off at a furious rate, but not until Mr. Pinkham had received from one of the footpads a blow on the side of the head which partially stunned him and caused him to drop the reins, the horse running nearly home before the driver recovered the lines. Mr. Pinkham believes the highwaymen knew he had the money with him.

CONCORD & PORTSMOUTH RAILROAD.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of this corporation was held at Manchester on Thursday. Hon. S. N. Bell, president of the corporation, presided. Messrs. Eastman of Concord and Cilley and Parker of Manchester were appointed a committee to receive, sort and count the votes for directors; 1339 shares were voted upon, and Samuel N. Bell of Manchester, Joseph B. Walker of Concord, Walter M. Parker of Manchester, John J. Pickering of Portsmouth, John J. Bell of Exeter, William A. Peirce of Portsmouth and Moody Currier of Manchester, each received all the votes cast, and were declared elected directors.

Hon. Samuel C. Eastman of Concord offered a resolution that the directors be instructed to present the question of the present relations of this corporation with the Concord Railroad Co. to the directors of that corporation, and to ask for a modification of the present contract so as to produce a larger permanent income. The resolution was unanimously adopted. The meeting then adjourned.

The directors subsequently re-elected Hon. Samuel N. Bell president, and William H. Backet clerk.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Robert King arrived home on the 5th inst. from a highly enjoyable tour of two weeks, during which he visited Niagara falls, Quebec, Montreal and other places. At Montreal he saw Harry P. Kent and Charles Sise, both formerly of this city, and found both filling responsible and lucrative positions, and well satisfied with their future prospects. Mr. King speaks very highly of the courtesy and attention shown the members of the Raymond tourist parties.

Mrs. Charles W. Badger, of Richards avenue, started on Thursday last with her child and nurse for Florida, where she will pass the winter with relatives and friends.

Hon. George E. Hodgdon of this city has been elected representative to the supreme lodge, Knights of Honor, of the United States.

Mrs. Frank W. Miller and Mrs. William Day leave this city to-day for Kennebunkport, Me., on a visit to relatives.

Mrs. John H. Slater left this city on Thursday for Lowell, Mass., where she will pass the winter with her sister.

Rev. Edward Robie, D. D., of Greenland, sailed from New York on the 6th inst. for Hamburg, Germany, where he attended school for two years nearly half a century ago, intending to be absent two months.

Mr. Leander White, light-keeper at Cape Porpoise, Me., formerly keeper of Whales's-back light, was in this city on Thursday last.

Mr. Bert J. Rowe is now absent from this city on a gunning and fishing expedition in Ossipee, Wakefield and surrounding towns.

Station Agent W. T. Perkins, of the Boston & Maine station in this city, is now enjoying his annual vacation in the west. During his absence Mr. W. C. Goodwin, freight clerk, is acting as station agent, and Mr. Brown, formerly clerk at the Rockingham and Wentworth hotels, is doing clerical duty at the freight office.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner yacht White Wing, Capt. Charles S. Browne, left New York on Wednesday, the 5th inst., for this port.

The schooner Unison, Hutchins master, from Bath, Me., for Boston, went ashore on Ram island on the 2d inst., but came off next tide.

The schooner Majestic, Gross master, from Bangor for York with lumber, before reported as having gone ashore in a fog on the 3d inst. near Cape Elizabeth, Me., was hauled off by a tug the same day, and beached at Cape Elizabeth. She was full of water, but was thought to be not much injured.

The three-masted schooner City of Green Bay went ashore about two miles from South Haven, Michigan, on the night of Oct. 2d, and was soon broken to pieces by the waves, six of the seven men on board her perishing; one seaman, named Slater, clung to a piece of the wreck until rescued by the life-saving crew. The City of Green Bay was in this port six or eight years ago, coming here from New Orleans with a cargo of 1300 bales of cotton for the Cocheco Manufacturing Co. of Dover, to which city she proceeded in tow with her full cargo on board. She was a queer-looking craft to the eyes of deep-sea sailors, her length being out of all proportion to her breadth of beam, and her masts so far apart that her sails did not half fill the intervening spaces. She had on that trip made the passage down the Mississippi river to New Orleans with a cargo of wheat, and there loaded cotton for this port; and from here she went via the St. Lawrence river and Welland canal to the great lakes again. She registered 346 tons, and was built at Green Bay, Wisconsin, in 1872.

The venerable old fishing schooner William Tell, of Bucksport, Me., which was supposed to have gone down with all hands in the great gale of Aug. 27th on the Grand bank, arrived at Bucksport on the 5th inst. with a big cargo of fish, and as might be supposed there was great rejoicing in the town over her safe return.

A Winter in California.

Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb's annual series of winter trips to California have from the first been considered the perfection of pleasure travelling. Excellent as these have been in past years, the enterprising firm will introduce many important improvements the coming season. The Pullman Palace Car company is building two entire trains of vestibuled cars for the use of Messrs. Raymond & Whitcomb in their California and Mexico business. These will embody many new and luxurious features, and are to be the finest cars ever seen. Every train—and there are to be twelve different trips over three different routes—will have a Pullman palace dining-car attached. Passengers will thus be sure of obtaining first-class meals at regular hours. The first of the vestibuled trains will leave Boston Thursday, Nov. 10th. This will be the date of departure of the first party of the series, and the new and elegant hotel, the Raymond, at East Pasadena, will be reached within a few days after the opening of its second season. The scope of the excursions will be considerably widened this year, and all the leading resorts on the Pacific coast will be included; while the independent tickets, so successfully introduced last year, will give the greatest possible freedom to persons who desire to look about the Pacific coast on their own account and without any fixed programme. There will be nineteen different parties returning, with a choice of five different routes, and all tickets are good to return independently on any train until July 1, 1888. A descriptive circular of 192 pages, giving every required detail of these magnificent tours, can be obtained by addressing W. Raymond, 296 Washington street (opposite School street,) Boston.

DIGESTYLIN
— FOR —
INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA.
A POTENT REMEDY FOR
Indigestion, Acute and Atonic Dyspepsia, Chronic and Gastro-Intestinal Catarrh, Vomiting in Pregnancy, Cholera Infantum, and in convalescence from Acute Diseases.
Over 5,000 physicians have sent to us the most flattering opinions upon Digestylin as a remedy for all diseases arising from improper digestion.
It is not a secret remedy, but a scientific preparation, the formula of which is plainly printed on each bottle. Its great DIGESTIVE POWER is created by a careful and proper treatment of the ferments in manufacture. It is very agreeable to the taste, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach.
It will positively CURE CHOLERA INFANTUM, Summer Complaints, and CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, all of which are direct results of imperfect digestion. Give your children Digestylin. One bottle may save a life. Not one case of death reported for the past year from above diseases where the patient had taken Digestylin. Ask your Druggist for it. Price $1.00. Large bottles. If he does not keep it, send one dollar to us and we will send you a bottle. Express prepaid.

The New England League contest was ended on the 5th inst by a game on the South End grounds in Boston between the Lowell and Portland clubs, the Lowells winning the game, and consequently the championship pennant, they having previously won two games in the five ordered to be played by the two clubs, which closed the regular season of the league with the same number of games won and lost. The score on the 5th was as follows: Lowell 7, Portland 0. The Lowell club received an ovation on their return home in the evening, being met at the railroad station by a great crowd with a band of music, and many buildings being decorated and illuminated. The standing of the five clubs which finished the season is as follows:

The quarterly conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union was held at the Methodist church in Greenland on the 5th inst., and was largely attended, many ladies from this city being there. The exercises were of more than ordinary interest.

The Baltimore & Ohio telegraph has passed into the control of the Western Union.

Patrick Dunne and Dennis Morton of Elizabeth, New Jersey, aged fourteen and eighteen respectively, were shot and mortally wounded Oct. 2d by assassins who escaped. The boys were picking berries, and say that some men, who were gunning, deliberately fired at them.

There is trouble between negroes and whites about twenty miles from Brook Haven, Miss., on the line of Pike and Lawrence counties. About three hundred men of each color are said to be under arms. The origin of the quarrel is not stated.

Wm. Twombly's house at Knox marsh, Dover, was struck by lightning during the thunder shower on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 4th, and a hole big enough for a man to crawl through knocked in one corner near the roof. The inmates of the house were for a few moments unable to move, but the effects of the shock soon passed away.

"There's no terror, headache, in your threats," for I am armed so strong with remedy that I pass pain by, as an idle word, which I respect not since the discovery of Salvation Oil. Twenty-five cents a bottle.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injures the complexion, induce pimples, sallow skin. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Try them.

Mrs. Emily L. Everton, eighteen years old, died in Malden, Mass., a few days ago, from a fall down stairs as her husband reported, but an autopsy disclosed criminal malpractice as the cause of her death. She was married in April last to a man twenty-six years her senior.

A Strange Freak.

The wife of our esteemed citizen, Mr. John Rowell, while suffering under a severe attack of the blues, tried to commit the crime of infanticide, but was prevented by the opportune arrival of a neighbor. Her case has been considered by the doctors incurable, but her husband was highly pleased, after using a course of Sulphur Bitters, to find she was entirely cured.—Kingston Herald.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $300.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my rails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thou. nd dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man; had been rich to be envied once; some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If I had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture twenty-two, "Eczema Chronic Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I think you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is to undermine and wreck you, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, certain in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Bob Ingersoll's Wedding.

A pension examiner in Illinois was required to take the deposition of an applicant for a pension who seemed very positive about the date on which he contracted a severe cold, which resulted in a chronic difficulty, for which he claimed the bounty of the Government. His positiveness as to the date led to the inquiry how it was he could swear to an incident which was comparatively trivial when it occurred. He said:

"I know that the cold was contracted on the 21st of February, 1862, because Bob Ingersoll was married on the following day. How do I come to remember that so well? Why, Bob was the Colonel of our regiment. I was on guard duty near Peoria on the night of the 21st. It was as cold as I ever felt it, and as I stood at my post Bob came along, and after saluting him I said, 'Bob, if you don't give me an overcoat, a bottle of whisky, or relieve me from this duty I will freeze to death.' He replied. "I'll do all three.' With that he took off his overcoat, which had been made as a portion of his wedding outfit, and handed it to me, then from his inside pocket he hoisted out a flask of prime old red-eye and chucked that over, too. After that he left me and returned to his quarters, and I'll be blamed if he didn't issue orders for the relief of the entire guard, as he said it was too cussed cold for guard duty that night. You see that event impressed dates on my memory, and I am not likely to soon forget Col. Bob's wedding."—Buffalo Times.

Another Anecdote of Herr Krupp.

The German papers continue to publish numerous anecdotes of the late Herr Krupp. The Emperor William when visiting the Essen works, displayed great interest in the working of the steam hammer, and Herr Krupp took the opportunity of speaking in high praise of the workman who had special charge of it. "Ackerman has a sure eye," he said, "and can stop the falling hammer at any moment. A hand might be placed on the anvil without fear, and he would stop the hammer within a hair's breadth of it." "Let us try it," said the emperor, "but not with a human hand—try my watch," and he laid it, a splendid specimen of work set with brilliants, on the anvil. Down came the immense mass of steel, and Ackerman, with his hand on the lever, stopped it just the sixth of an inch from the watch. When he went to hand it back, the emperor replied kindly: "No, Ackermann, keep the watch in memory of an interesting moment." The workman, embarrassed, stood with outstretched hand, not knowing what to do. Krupp came forward and took the watch, saying: "I'll keep it for you if your are afraid to take from his majesty." A few minutes later they again passed the spot, and Krupp said: "Now you can take the emperor's present from my hand," and handed Ackermann the watch wrapped up in a thousand mark note.

The Cork-Oak In California.

The growth of cork-oak in California is not a matter of experiment; its success was demonstrated long ago. The distribution of cork acorns by the patent office about twenty-five years ago may not have accomplished much in other parts of the country, but it gave us a start, and there are now trees yielding cork and bearing acorns at a number of different places in the State. There are trees growing on Mr. Richardson's place at San Gabriel. There were samples of cork and acorns shown at the Sacramento Citrus Fair by H. A. Messenger, of Calaveras county. There are trees of similar age in Sonoma, Santa Barbara and Tulare, and perhaps other counties. The State University is growing seedlings from California cork acorns, and will be likely to have the trees for distribution next year. There is no doubt about the adaptation of the tree to the State as the widely separated places named above all furnish proper conditions for its growth. It is of course a crop of which one has to wait some time to gather, and therefore needs patience in the planter.

All the corkwood of commerce comes from the Spanish Peninsula, where the trees abound, not only in cultivated forests but also grow wild on the mountains. The tree is like an American oak, with leaves similar to the oak, and acorns. It takes ten years after the bark to become a proper thickness to be manufactured into bottle-stoppers, life-preservers and seine-corks. When stripped from the tree it is to be boiled for two hours, cured in the sun for a week and pressed into flat pieces for baling and shipping. The denuded trunk, like a hen robbed of her eggs, does not sink or quit the business, but throws out a fresh covering for a fresh spoliation. One tree has been known to yield half a ton of cork-wood. One pound of cork can be manufactured into 144 champagne corks, the baled bark is sold to cork manufacturing centers. The most extensive manufactory in America is at Pittsburg. Besides the ordinary demands for cork-bark, a good supply of the buoyant material, after being burned to make it still lighter than the original bark, is shipped to Canada and New England, where it is made into seine corks. The average annual importation of cork-wood into this country, entirely at the port of New York, is 70,000 bales a year. A bale weighs 160 pounds and is worth on this side of the water $20, making a total value of the importation of $1,400,000. It comes in duty free.—Pacific Rural Press.

Terrible are the Ravages

Upon the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inability of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and security into the vitally important secretive action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. A fever complaint, constipation, nervous ailments and rheumatism, are likewise conquerable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure in a damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and lost energy after undue fatigue.

The Albany (N. Y.) Journal says: "should the water consumers detect a carbonized-gaseous taste to the water they need not disturb themselves, for it is caused only from the Patroon's creek water being used to quench the burning coal pile at West Albany. After being used it is allowed to run back into the creek."

Every woman who suffers from sick headache, and who dislikes to take bitter doses, should try Carter's Little Liver Pills. They are the easiest of all medicines to take. A positive cure for the above distressing complaint; give prompt relief in dyspepsia and indigestion; prevent and cure constipation and piles. As easy to take as sugar. Only one pill a dose. Price twenty-five cents. If you try them you will not be without them.

Socialists have just held a three days' conference in St. Gall, Switzerland, and the police knew nothing about it until the affair was over. The name of the place was appropriate. The socialists have gall.

Set Traps for Them.

One hundred feet of the Nashua company's canal bank at Nashua was washed out last Thursday morning, causing the mills to shut down, the water flowing into Nashua river from the canal. The mills will be shut down for several days, and the loss will amount to considerable. The break was caused by muskrats, which dug holes in the bank, thereby letting through a small stream, which quickly assumed larger proportions, cutting out the immense bank in a twinkle. The water took away trees and the embankment several feet below the level of the canal bottom.

Col. Bob Ingersoll appears to have been retained for the defence in the case of the decent democrats against Gorman, Higgins and Cleveland in Maryland. The colonel says everything is lovely in Baltimore politics; it is the best-governed city he ever visited, and the talk about thieves is silly. Of course a man who believes there is no sort of a hell anywhere would incline to take a roseate view of the Maryland democracy. The best evidence of the demoralized results of Gorman's hold on Cleveland is seen in the action of leading democrats to crush out the evil. These men are moving in this not to gratify a present ambition, but to purify their party by administering it a rebuke in the shape of a defeat.

The democratic New York World says: "Since the celebrated Know-Nothing era the politics of Belimore have been corrupt. They have been dominated by a gang of protected bullies, who have been backed up by weak registration and election laws. Thirty-seven criminals to-day practically control the elections of that city. They carry upon their registration lists 30,000 false names. They stuff ballot-boxes, count out candidates and defy public opinion."

—If "the labor movement" would start all lazy men to working we would have a big improvement along the line.

A Popular Novelist in "Love."

Love is like a flower in the desert. It is like the aloe of Arabia that blooms but once and dies; it blooms in the salt emptiness of life, and the brightness of its beauty is set upon the waste as a star set upon the storm.

It hath the sun above that is the spirit, and about it blows the air of its own divinity.

At the echoing of a step Love blooms, I say; I say Love blooms and bends her beauty down to him who passeth by.

He plucketh it, yea, he plucketh the red cup that is full of honey and beareth it away—away across the desert—away till the flower be withered—away till the desert be done.

There is only one perfect flower in the wilderness of life. That flower is Love.

There is only one fixed star in the midst of our wandering. That star is Love.

There is only one hope in our despairing night. That hope is Love.

All else is false. All else is shadow moving upon water. All else is wind and vanity.

Who shall say what is the weight or the measure of Love? It is born of the flesh, it dwelleth in the spirit. From each does it draw its comfort.

For beauty it is as a star.

Many are its shapes but all are beautiful; and none know where the star rose, or the horizon where it shall set. —H. Rider Haggard, in "She."

They Sat Down on Her.

A Cleveland girl who had a great liking for lying around on the beach thought it great fun to have herself buried in the sand by her companions. She was made comfortable and fast, and her straw hat was thrown over her face to keep the sun out of her eyes. She enjoyed it so much that she fell asleep. She won't say how long she lay there, but she was wakened by an awful pressure. She was held so fast with the sand and the strange additional weight that she couldn't budge, but she continued to let out an awful shriek from under her straw hat. The pressure was instantly removed, her hat knocked off her face, and a young man and his sweetheart were gazing down upon her with an expression of amazement and horror. She was gotten out of her sandy bed in a jiffy and hurried off to her bath-house. Her companions had gone away and quite forgotten her. The stranger and his pretty sweetheart, strolling along the beach had mistaken her for a sandy mound and sat down on her to say their sweet little sayings, but they had hardly begun when the yell of fright under them knocked all the life out of sentiment. The story got out of course, and the Cleveland girl is so embarrassed that they say she is going to leave. They say, by the way, that there is a great want of quiet little nooks at the Cape this year, where two beings who find their world in each other may be free from disturbance by other wandering bodies. However, trust to sentiment. It will find an eyrie always, somewhere far from unwelcome eyes.—Philadelphia Press.

Preventing Sunstroke.

"Got any more of those cigars like you sold me yesterday?" asked a perspiring citizen of a Hanover street vender of the weed.

"You mean dose fine imported goods, five for a quarter," said the dealer with a gratified smile. "Louis, make me down from der shelluf a box of dose imported cellarboros."

The smoker grimly answered the smile and then said:

"Jest put one in my hat, will yer? I read in the paper that a cabbage leaf in the hat'll prevent sunstroke."

And he got outs de just in time to be missed by an empty cigar box.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

"The Boston bicyclist never takes a header," says the Transcript. But if asked if he ever was "projected from the periphery of his circular steed" a gleam of intelligence overspreads his face.—Philadelphia Call.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner J. R. Smith arrived at this port on the 7th inst. with 1052 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co. She discharges at the Concord railroad wharf.

The schooner Lizzie J. Call of this port, Call master, arrived at the Concord railroad wharf Friday forenoon with a cargo of coal. This is her first visit to this port since she went away on her first trip, Nov. 26th of last year.

The brickers D. K. Ham, Triton, Hattie Lewis, Garnet and G. W. Raitt arrived at this port on Friday from Boston, and all proceeded up river to load. The Satellite sailed for Boston the same day. The brick-carrying season by water is drawing toward its close, and the schooners engaged in the business are not gathering any grass on their bottoms now by lying idle when there is a chance to make a passage.

During the recent cyclone which passed along the coast of the Gulf of Mexico the lighthouse tender Mignonette, with fifteen persons on board, was blown out to sea from a point near Brazoria on the Texas coast. It has now been nearly two weeks since the vessel disappeared, and as no tidings of her have been received the lighthouse board fear that the vessel and its crew are lost. The Mignonette was a schooner of 130 tons register.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Clarence Parmenter, for several years past in the employ of R. H. White & Co. of Boston, has returned to this city, and entered Mr. L. E. Staples' store as a salesman.

At a meeting of the selectmen of ward one, held last Thursday evening, Messrs. Charles H. Garrett, William Andrews and Isaac Furber were selected as petit jurors for the coming term of the supreme court.

A DIVIDEND ON EASTERN.

Apparently the payment of a dividend on Eastern is no longer a matter of doubt. According to the best information obtainable, the Eastern will, as the result of the operations of the fiscal year, receive from the Boston & Maine $436,000, from which $100,000 is to be deducted for the sinking fund requirements, while another $100,000 is to be paid out in taking up notes for borrowed money. Last year $100,000 was borrowed for the sinking fund, and the trustees may decide to pay up the loan. Should they do so, about $236,000 will then be applicable to dividends. On the capital stock this would be four per cent. The last previous dividend was in July, 1873. Then followed years of depression, the stock ran down almost to the vanishing point of value. It was picked up at $3 or $4 a share by clear-sighted speculators who saw the great possibilities of a system which had been a valuable property, and might have been kept valuable but for the folly that swayed the councils of its management.

In their report for the fiscal year ending Nov. 30, 1875, the directors had to confess that the corporation was on the verge of bankruptcy. Its debt, other than stock, was placed at $14,359,048.-98, and this on a system of patches held together by leases. In the ten years 1865-1875 the debt of the company had grown from $2,413,837.20 to the vast amount sorrowfully presented by the directors as the indebtedness the stockholders were called upon to meet. In a report unique in New England railroading, not only for its candor, but for the startling exhibit of mismanagement it contained, the directors enumerated the losses and misfortunes which had brought Eastern so low. Though this exhibit is ancient history now, it may be all the more interesting for that very reason, since many have forgotton that period of Eastern's experience, and it teaches lessons of enduring value to railroad stockholders and managers. From a review of the road's affairs from its organization to its threatened collapse, the directors fixed the amount of the actual and estimated losses at $8,245,980. Some of the items of the table are especially suggestive, as, for example, Lawrence branch $850,000, defalcation of William S. Tuckerman $232,780, removal of passenger station from East Boston to Boston $600,000, Revere accident $510,000, Lynn depot and lands $300,000; Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway, including discount on bonds, $750,000; Wolfeborough branch $800,000, Essex branch $100,000, Portsmouth & Dover railroad $125,000, direct competition with the Boston & Maine $1,200,000.

Some of these losses time has since made good, notably in the case of the Swampscott branch. Some were perhaps unavoidable. Railroads must be prepared to give away a great deal of accommodation to hold public favor. But other losses were directly due to the blundering incompetency of the Eastern management. Their policy was to increase burdens under the delusion that they were doing more business whenever they added to the machinery of administration. They built branches everywhere, leased them, and the more money they lost the more they were persuaded they were competing with the Boston & Maine. The latter road went to work and built its own line from Berwick Junction into Portland. Then it was free from the vexatious and unreasonable hostility of the Eastern, and the latter's absorption became but a question of time. This was realized by the clever speculators who picked up Eastern stock for a few dollars a share and held it for lease or consolidation. They have reaped or can reap a golden harvest on their speculative planting. To the unfortunate stockholders of the Eastern who held its certificates when the reorganization was brought about in 1876 the announcement of a coming dividend is meaningless except as a reminder of what they lost and have yet to lament.

That consolidation of the Eastern with the Boston & Maine is not far off is the conclusion of all who study the railroad situation. Consolidation is the best thing possible with the Eastern. It can be readily brought about whenever Massachusetts gives its legislative consent, and will be but the formal ratification of an accomplished fact. The Eastern to-day is but a division of the Boston & Maine, and from a nominal division to an actual division would be an easy transition. While it would be for the benefit of Eastern stockholders, consolidation would not be detrimental to the interests of its patrons. The Boston & Maine, like all other corporations, would strive to make the most money possible out of all its divisions. The Eastern is a great paying property, and the policy of the Boston & Maine would be to make it a better paying property. To accomplish this, accommodations would have to be kept up to the public demand. It is only fair to say that the Boston & Maine gives the residents along the line of the Eastern better accommodation and better service than they ever enjoyed before. This is the more welcome as the competition between the two lines had affected the patrons of both, and those of the Eastern apprehended reductions of train service, which apprehensions happily have not been realized.—Boston Transcript.

James A. Bray, a veteran of the Mexican war who recently died in North Danville, Va., at the age of sixty-three years, was a native of this city.

B. F. Haley & Co., of Newmarket, have been awarded the contract for making the uniforms for the three regiments constituting the first brigade of New Hampshire state troops.

The death claims paid by the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York during the week ending Sept. 30th, amounted to $49,008.73; endowments, $12,202 31.

In these days of doubt and distrust, when so many enterprises are being scrutinized, we are glad to be able to call the attention of our readers to a solid New England investment. This desideratum may be found in the Bath Water Bonds described in another column, and offered by Basset, Whitney & Co., bankers, of Boston, as also by the First National bank of Bath, Me.

Noel Mott, alias a lot of other names, who was at Rye beach for several weeks last summer, also at Newport, R. I., and other places, cutting a grand swell and paying his way with checks not worth the paper on which they were written, has turned up in Portland, where a few days ago he passed off a check for $60.-75 on the New Hampshire national bank of this city, signed F. Jones. He is apparently making a circuit of the country, tendering bogus checks in payment of small purchases for the sake of the cash he gets in change.

During the nine months past of the present year the Concord railroad has handled 22,000 tons more freight in this city than in the same months last year. The business last year was the largest ever done here by the company. The increase this year is remarkable.

The Dover Democrat says: "The talk of a double railroad track through Dover is assuming definite shape. The Boston & Maine company are talking of buying the property on Pierce street for that purpose. They think that it will cost $35,000 for the property there, and then the buildings will be moved to their lots near the freight house, and rented as tenements by them. They already have a two-track bridge across Broadway. The space between Pierce street and the railroad will be filled with tracks. The double track from Portland to Boston is not a very distant affair. It will take nearly a year to complete the Salmon Falls bridge, and six months to rebuild the arch in this city; then the worst of the work is done. By that time the necessary grading will be completed. The moving of the present depot back towards Third street will be another of the improvements made. All of this we have from good authority."

Sale of Collateral.

WILL be sold at Public Auction, at the office of Calvin Page, Esq., on Market Street, Portsmouth, on Saturday, October 23d, at 12 o'clock noon, a mortgage given by H. Lombard to James Janvrin, dated October 31, 1874, to secure the payment of a note for $1158 of the same date duly assigned to W. H. Hackett, adm. de bonis non of estate of Susan S. March St. Clair, by said Janvrin as security for the payment of said Janvrin's note for $500 dated June 12, 1877, payable to the order of Wm. H. Rollins, trustee under the will of J. Howard March, in six months after date, due Dec. 12, 1877, on which note has been paid interest to June 15, 1878, and one hundred dollars, and on which will be due at the time of sale $588.55 in addition to the expenses incident to said sale. The mortgage is in process of foreclosure and is in shape of a writ of possession for the mortgaged premises, a two-story house and land on Mount Vernon street occupied by said Lombard; the amount due on said judgment is $1236.30 and interest from Jan. 26, 1887, and costs of suit $10.00, besides costs of levy.

G. A. Wiggin, lightning rod manufacturer of South Berwick, Me., has been arrested on complaint of Seth C. Austin & Co., lightning rod manufacturers of Concord, for breach of the New Hampshire law in selling rods without a license. Austin & Co. are said to be the only parties in New Hampshire who pay a license. The general belief is that the law is unconstitutional. Wiggin promises to fight the case to the bitter end. He was arrested while putting rods on the new Cocheco Manufacturing Co.'s building in Dover, and gave bonds for his further appearance.

A short time ago Albert B. Lamper of Wolfeborough received notice of the death of his brother, John E. Lamper, near Greeley, Col., with the information that he was killed by lightning. Later information is to the effect that he was murdered, and Theodore C. Kemp has been arrested and confessed the crime.

—"You are looking fine this morning, Judge," said the prisoner, as he smiled and nodded to the gentlemen on the bench. "Looks are deceiving," remarked the judge; "in your case I am looking imprisonment. Ten days."

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines and Kansas City, and continuous lines at terminal points West, North-west and South-west, is the only road that can offer transcontinental sleepers, directions and facilities travel and freight to all points in Nebraska, Colorado, Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Colfax, Joliet, Ottawa, Streator, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Iowa City, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Adel, and branches Boone City, Council Bluffs, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Leavenworth, Topeka, Lawrence and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneota, Ortonville, Watertown, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel rail. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience approved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The history of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River carry Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars, providing excellent meals, and—mark!—Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—runs Reclining Chair Cars free.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

is the direct, time-saving line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route, solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Southern Minnesota. The wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown, the only desirable route, via Sioux and Kankakee, offers significant inducements to travel between Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Chicago, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Pacific points. All classes of passengers, especially families, ladies and children, receive the efficient care of employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and best attention.

DIGESTYLIN

— FOR —

INDIGESTION & DYSPEPSIA.

A POTENT REMEDY FOR Indigestion, Acute and Atonic Dyspepsia, Chronic and Gastro-Intestinal Catarrh, Vomiting in Pregnancy, Cholera Infantum, and in convalescence from Acute Diseases.

Over 5,000 physicians have sent to us the most flattering opinions upon Digestylin as a remedy for all diseases arising from improper digestion.

It is not a secret remedy, but a scientific preparation, the formula of which is plainly printed on each bottle. Its great DIGESTIVE POWER is created by a careful and proper treatment of the ferments in manufacture. It is very agreeable to the taste, and acceptable to the most delicate stomach.

It will positively CURE CHOLERA INFANTUM, Summer Complaints, and CHRONIC DIARRHŒA, all of which are direct results of imperfect digestion. Give your children Digestylin. One bottle may save a life. Not one case of death is reported for the past year from above diseases where the patient had taken Digestylin. Ask your Druggist for it. Price $1.00. Large bottles. If he does not keep it, send one dollar to us and we will send you a bottle. Express prepaid.

A newly elected Congressman said last week, speaking of a old friend who had voted against him. "Now there's nothing mean about me, for when I saw that fellow suffering with a terrible cough, I forgave his going back on me and told him to use Dr. Bull's cough syrup.

Col. A. W. Quint hung himself at Manchester on the 7th inst., while despondent over the death of his wife.

Two things which a base ball player needs,—a bat and a bottle of St. Jacobs Oil.

Joseph Mills, who on a recent Sunday criminally assaulted a little girl in West Concord cemetery, where she had gone to lay flowers on her mother's grave, was on the 7th inst. sentenced to twenty years in state prison.

Ministers, lawyers, teachers, and others whose occupation gives but little exercise, should use Carter's Little Liver Pills for torpid liver and billousness. One is a dose. Try them.

Advices from Berlin say the Bismarck-Crispi interview resulted in a written arrangement between Italy, Germany and Austria. Italy has full power to take independent action in the Mediterranean, and should Italian interests conflict with those of France or Russia, Italy will rely upon the support of Germany and Austria.

Derangement of the liver, with constipation, injures the complexion, induce pimples, sallow skin. Remove the cause by using Carter's Little Liver Pills. One a dose. Try them.

Ship Charmer has arrived in San Francisco from New York, winning the ocean race upon which she started with the ship Seminole, from New York on May 10th.

A Strange Freak.

The wife of our esteemed citizen, Mr. John Rowell, while suffering under a severe attack of the blues, tried to commit the crime of infanticide, but was prevented by the opportune arrival of a neighbor. Her case has been considered by the doctors incurable, but her husband was highly pleased, after using a course of Sulphur Bitters, to find she was entirely cured.—Kingston Herald.

Chicago's reception to the Presidential party was most enthusiastic. Nearly 30,000 men took part in the parade, and Mr. Cleveland shook hands with 6,000 people. During the procession Mrs. Cleveland fainted, but quickly recovered.

How to Gain Health and Strength.

Use after each meal Scott's Emulsion; it is as palatable as milk and easily digested. Delicate people improve rapidly with its use. For consumption, throat affections and bronchitis it is unequalled. Dr. Thomas Prim, Ala., says: "I used Scott's Emulsion on a child eight months old; he gained four pounds in a month."

Despatches from Massowah say that King John, of Abyssinia, has ordered General Rasalula to attack the Italians as soon as they emerge from Massowah. Native spies employed by Italians report that the Abyssinians disagree as to the advisability of reopening hostilities, but King John has determined upon war, and has issued a proclamation in which he seeks to justify his action.

In gathering wild flowers, autumn leaves, or picnicking in the woods, we are more or less exposed to danger from poisoning by ivy or other wild vines and shrubs. The poisoning is under certain circumstances readily absorbed by the blood and painful swellings or eruptions are caused. Such affections Hood's Sarsaparilla readily cures, as it expels all impurities from the blood. Even in cases of poisoning by Paris green, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been remarkably successful. It should be kept constantly in the house for all blood disorders. Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood Co., Lowell, Mass., and is sold by all druggists. 100 Doses $1.

Wm. P. White jumped from a train on the evening of the 5th inst., as it was passing rapidly through Durham on the way from Dover to Boston. He expected to land all right, but in the darkness miscalculated, and went end over end down the embankment, finding himself lying there about an hour later, and very stiff and sore. He made his way to a farmhouse and hired a conveyance to Dover, where a physician found that one arm was badly sprained and the little finger broken, and there was a long flesh wound on one side of his head, probably made by striking a rock. His clothes were badly torn and the crystal of his watch broken. He will probably refrain in the future from jumping from trains at full speed, at least in the dark.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,sat,o

Terrible are the Ravages

Upon the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inactivity of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and activity into the vitally important secretive action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. Liver complaint, constipation, nervous ailments and rheumatism, are likewise conquerable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure in a damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and revives strength after undue fatigue.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

Delegates from the shoe worker's national trade assembly, Knights of Labor, were refused admission at Minneapolis because they were not duly chosen.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please. Try them.

The Dominion government has passed an order in council prohibiting the importation of any kind of rags from the Mediterranean, on account of the cholera scare.

"Mr. Howells is Right."

A friend sends to the editor the following experience, which has the merit of being at once amusing and suggestive: "One pleasant afternoon of last week I was walking along the high and breezy eastern bank of the upper Mystic Lake. My companion was a young lady who had then, for the first time this summer, escaped from the city.

"'See,' said she, pointing across the lake; 'there is a tower on the other shore, among the trees. I will be a prisoner there and you shall come and rescue me. You will stand at the foot of the tower, under a great oak tree, an hour after sunset. You will sing and I shall hear you and come. We will steal down to the border of the lake to where your boat lies hidden—over there in that little cove—and there we will sail away, you and I together to fairyland, as they do in the romances. When I am out in the country, like this, I believe the old romances. But, oh, dear! when I go back to the city I think that perhaps Mr. Howells is right after all.'

"'My dear,' said I, 'that is not a tower over there; that is a chimney. I know the gentleman who lives in the grounds. He doesn't like people to wander about his house at night singing. My boat is at home in the stable because it leaks. But even if it were in the little cove, all taut and trim, the gate-keeper has orders not to let any boats pass the dam—not even two lovers fleeing from the enchanted tower to the fairy country in the south—West Medford, I think it is down there.'

Antiquity of Man.

At a meeting of the Christadelphians of Boston recently, the subject of the discourse was the question: "Has man been on the earth more than 6,000 years?" The subject was illustrated with a chart showing mathematical calculations. This chart was drawn up on the assumption that the existence of the human race upon the terrestrial globe has continued uninterruptedly for 50,000 years. The speaker, however, denied that this claim was founded on any tenable scientific hypothesis. Beginning his calculation with two human beings, and allowing for the number of persons being doubled every 500 years during the first ages, he showed that there would exist at the end of the first 10,000 years 2,094,152 persons. The computation at the close of 50,000 years would show in existence such myriads of human beings as would be inconceivable to the human mind. To express the number would require a row of figures running into the nonillions. The population of the earth at the present day, he said, is 1,400,000,000. He contended that the human race could not possibly be 50,000 years old. Whenever evidences of the occupancy of the earth prior to the Adamic period had been discovered they were the remains of a race which had tenanted this world and become extinct before the times recorded in the book of Genesis. That such a race had existed and had been destroyed could be maintained, the speaker said, from the Scriptural writings of Peter and Jude and from Paul's Epistle to the Corinthians.

Speaking of the argument against the resurrection of the body which is made by those persons who assert that space could not be found on the surface of the globe sufficient to assemble the resurrected bodies at the day of judgment, the speakers figured out that all the bodies of all the human beings who have peopled the earth since the time of Adam could be collected in a space not larger than the State of New York, and he did not think so large a territory would be required.—Boston Globe.

When They Would Pay.

"Did you see Time & Tide about that account?" "Yes, sir." "Did you tell them we couldn't and wouldn't wait a day longer about it?" "Yes, sir." "Who did you see, and what did they say?" "It's all right: I saw Mr. Time." "Did he say he would pay it?" "Yes, sir; he didn't question the bill at all; he was perfectly satisfied, and said right away they would pay it." "H'm; I was afraid they'd kick like steers. When will he pay, did he say?" Collector looks through his memorandum-book carefully: "I've got it down here somewhere; oh, yes, here it is: When he 'gets a mighty good ready.'"—Brooklyn Eagle.

Sure to Say It.

John Drew told me a story about Oscar Wilde and Whistler, the artist. It was much chaffed about in England that on Oscar's lecturing tour in America he introduced a great many clever things which had really been originally said by Whistler, Dante Rossetti, Godwin, and others of the esthetic circle in London. After his return he was at dinner with the coterie, and many bright things were said. After one brilliant remark by Whistler which was very successful, Oscar looked up and said:

"Whistler, how I wish I had said that."

"Never mind, Oscar," said Whistler, quietly, "You will."—San Francisco Chronicle.

The Alleged Bribery Investigation.

It is natural for every one, from the small boy who receives his first licking from his playmate, to the old politician who has been vanquished in his last contest, to attempt to account for the result of the battle.

If the proceedings now being conducted as an investigation at Concord, mean an attempt in good faith to discover any and all infractions of law incident to a prolonged legislative struggle, every lover of good government will second the effort.

If it is begun, continued and ended for the purpose of influencing members of the other branch of the legislature, or for an effect upon the governor, then it is unworthy the laborious endeavors of the projectors.

The gentlemen who come with reluctance to the front and mention the high rates at which their virtue was estimated, who imagine but are not quite sure there were attempts to seduce them from their paths of representative rectitude, give rather an implication than a direct statement. The hearing, we are told, is without cross examination on the part of the side reported to have committed the wrong. Messrs. Jones and Sinclair are reported to be men of wealth, as well as of a reasonable degree of gumption. They are at times liberal in their expenditures, and broad in their donations, but never before have been suspected, much less accused, either of reckless prodigality or lack of ingrain sense in their business relations. Nor is such a man as Fred Barker of the type who would be likely to "approach" a stranger with a bribe very much as a New York confidence man begins upon a new arrival from the rural regions.

The unfairness in the conduct of the case is seen in allowing witnesses to testify without allowing cross examination or rebutal by the accused at the time their testimony is given. Mr. Jones, it seems to us, was quite right in his request to be heard, and it was a mistake not to grant it. The telegraph sent the news all over the country, with a one-sided, prejudicial statement of the case. Mr. Jones may be a very bad democrat, viewed by some of his political opponents, but he is a citizen entitled to not only a full, but prompt opportunity to be heard when his integrity is called in question. Of course in law it is presumed he is entirely innocent of any connection with an improper attempt to influence members in the mode indicated. The trouble is, a lie will fly all over the United States while truth gets on its boots preparatory to a start to overtake it. It was for this reason that the request of Mr. Jones was reasonable, and it is to be regretted that the committee did not see fit to grant it. An investigation is a careful searching for facts, and should in no sense be ex parte when the whole truth can be ascertained in one enquiry.

Unique Rascality.

Henry W. Smith, an elderly resident of Keene, committed suicide some time ago, and Capt. James M. Smith, his only son, erected a tombstone, which in addition to the usual inscriptions, bore the following: "Here lies an honest man." Recently the words have been obliterated, and in their place cut the following: "He chose his death and broke the sixth commandment." The work was evidently done by an experienced stone cutter. No motive is apparent, and no clue to the vandal has yet been obtained.

The Seal Fishery Dispute.

The Dominion government has received the full text of the demurrer filed by the attorney general of British Columbia, who conducted the case of the seized sealers. It is a clear statement of the contention that Behring sea is an open sea, and that Canadian sealers have equal rights outside the three-mile limit with the vessels of the Alaska Fur company. In 1822 Russia claimed absolute territorial sovereignty over Behring sea for a distance of 100 miles from the coast. The United States protested against this assumption, and in the convention of 1825 between Russia and the United States the former abandoned its claim. This claim was so successfully resisted by both Great Britain and the United States that Russia never again put it forward, and it is contended that it was never heard of again until after the purchase of Alaska from Russia by the United States, and that Russia could not sell what she had long ago renounced all claims to. A prominent Dominion official says the government will fight it out to the bitter end.

It has been definitely decided to repair the practice-ship Constellation at this navy yard, and the naval constructor was on Saturday engaged in inspecting the condition of the ways, preparatory to hauling her out. After the ship is placed on the land the work of repairing the dry dock will be commenced, and carried on as far as the niggardly appropriation of $26,000 will admit; three times that amount could be expended on the dock, to good advantage.

Civil service reform of the Higgins-Cleveland brand struck the Charlestown navy yard last week, and John Cate, clerk in the department of steam engineering, and Darius A. Green, chief clerk in the construction department, were dismissed; the chief clerk in the equipment department, George M. Burr, received notice of his retirement Oct. 15th, when he will be succeeded by the second clerk, James M. Howard. The dismissed clerks are all men of the highest efficiency and clean records, and the only reason for their removal is that democrats want their places. Their removal is right enough, but it is not in accord with the civil service pretensions of the president and the mugwump saints.

Mary McNalty of Biddeford, aged nineteen years, who has been doing housework for a wealthy family in that city, disappeared on Sunday night, Oct. 2d, leaving no clue to her whereabouts. She had no money, and took away no clothes besides what she wore.

Mrs. Alamasan Clark, aged fifty-six years, sister-in-law of Massen A. Clark, the millionaire real estate dealer of New Haven, Conn., killed herself at his residence last week by shooting herself four times. She had been prostrated with grief since the death of her husband last August.

A Great Victory
A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by
Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, Oct. 8th.

Joseph Rogers, a transient drunk, was allowed to go on his earnest appeal for leniency, supplemented by a promise to leave the city at once.

George Brown and Edward (otherwise "Juba") Lolley, for drunkenness, were assessed $9.90 each, fine and costs, and both ordered to the county farm in default of payment.

CIRCUIT COURT.

The October term of the United States Circuit court began at Concord on Saturday. The jurors will appear on Tuesday.

There is but one United States case for trial, that against G. S. Leavitt of Exeter.

NO CHANGE IN THE WARD LINES.

The sub-committee of the Rockingham county delegation in the legislature, to whom was referred the bill for the re-arrangement of the ward lines of this city, after full hearings in this city and Concord, on Thursday last unanimously reported that it was inexpedient to legislate in the matter. The sub-committee consisted of Representatives Conn, French and Cronin of this city, Brown of Hampton Falls, and Templeton of Exeter,—three democrats and two republicans; we believe the report of the sub-committee to be in accord with the majority of the republicans of this city, and should be adopted by the legislature. It will be remembered that when this bill was introduced into the legislature, that we stated that we were unaware that there was any necessity to tinker the ward lines of this city; our opinion it appears has been endorsed by the committee, who have heard all that was to be said on the matter.

DEAF, DUMB, AND WICKED.

An Auburn officer brought to this city and lodged in jail Friday morning, a deaf and dumb tramp who was caught the previous night burglarizing a house in that town. He had succeeded in getting into the house, finding a $50 watch and chain which he appropriated to his own use. There was a sick person in the house who gave the alarm, and the burglar was captured before he could escape from the building. The watch was found on him when arrested. This same man was a lodger in our police station one night last week, and was driven out of town the next day.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner E. A. Creed, Raymond master, sailed from this port for the Isles of Shoals on Sunday with bricks, lime, cement and sand to be used for building purposes at the islands.

Arrived at this port on Saturday, the schooner Atalanta, Pinkham, from Rockland with lime to John H. Broughton. On Sunday, the British schooner Alice S., with 20,000 feet of hemlock boards, 100,000 laths, and 490,000 shingles, to the same.

The schooner Maggie Mulvey, which arrived at this port on the 7th inst. from Port Johnson, brought coal to E. F. Sise & Co. The Florence Randall, which arrived on the 8th from Baltimore, brought 1108 tons to J. Albert Walker.

The sea on Sunday (and for several days previous) was as smooth as a millpond, there being not a ripple to be seen, and so little swell that a landing could have been effected by boat on the rocks anywhere along the coast adjacent to this harbor.

The sloop yacht White Wing, Capt. Charles S. Browne, arrived home at this port last Saturday evening at 6:45 o'clock, from New York city. She left New York on Wednesday, the 5th inst., at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, and arrived at Vineyard Haven on Thursday; left there on Friday, and had to beat all the way from Cape Cod to Cape Ann, with moderate winds.

The fishing schooner Peregrine White, of Gloucester, Mass., which arrived at her home port on the 7th inst., while cruising off Cape Sable found a large, grayish mass floating on the water. It was picked up and taken to a chemist in Gloucester, and was pronounced to be ambergris. The specimen found weighs 125 pounds; it is very valuable, the find being worth $30 an ounce, or $59,800 in all.

The Canadian department of customs states that smuggling between Boston and the maritime British provinces is greatly on the increase. Within the past ten days four coasting schooners plying between ports in the maritime provinces and Massachusetts have been seized by Canadian officers for smuggling American goods into Canada. These officers believe that a still larger quantity of contraband goods is finding its way into Boston and other Massachusetts ports through the same channel. The smuggling is done mostly by vessels carrying cordwood.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The late train from Dover for this city, last Saturday evening, ran on to a side track at Sawyer's Mills, because of a misplaced switch, and telescoped a freight car. It was a narrow escape from a terrible accident. Had the train been going very fast it would have gone over an embankment. Gov. Sawyer and a party of friends were on board. The locomotive was somewhat damaged, and the passengers were considerably shaken up, but no serious harm resulted.

A bill passed by the state senate last week to regulate the heating of passenger cars in this state, provides that no railroad car on any railroad shall be heated by any method of heating unless such method shall have been approved by the board of railroad commissioners; that in no event shall a common stove be allowed in any such car; that any railroad may, with the permission of said board, make such experiments in heating their passenger cars as the board may deem proper; also that the provisions of this act shall not apply to mixed trains, or trains which consist of freight and passenger cars. Any railroad corporation violating any of these provisions shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $500. This act shall take effect January 1st, 1889.

A gentleman of Boston is to put up a summer residence to cost about $10,000 on the point at the mouth of Sagamore creek, on the northwesterly side; the work of putting in the foundation has been commenced by Mr. Jos. R. Holmes, the contract for the building having been taken by Mr. Wm. A. Hodgdon.

A dead horse on Chestnut street, at its junction with Court street, attracted the attention of passers-by on Sunday night between nine and ten o'clock. The animal was a fine looking black one belonging to one of the stables, and died of colic while being led around.

Hon. Frank Jones is putting in about 7,000 feet of sub-drainage in the meadow to the southward of his mansion on Newington road.

The New Hampshire Branch of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Board of Missions of the Episcopal church, meets at Manchester on Tuesday, the 11th inst., at eleven o'clock A. M.

The Unity club of the Unitarian church is to meet at the chapel on Court street, Tuesday afternoon.

Two teams were driven at a furious rate along the lower end of Water street, where the proposed widening is to take place, on Saturday; they went along side by side, and took up the whole street; they were racing. One was driven by the gentleman whose name headed the petition for the widening, and the other by the alderman who induced him to put in the petition. Is the widening of the street at that point desired that it may be utilized as a race-track?

The Augusta Van Doren drapatic company, which performed the comedy of Charlotte Russe at Music hall on Sept. 19th, has disbanded.

The valuable and highly-valued watch-dog lately owned by Mr. John W. Stott is no more. Saturday evening, owing to the electric light at the junction of Hanover and Bridge streets being out, the dog, which had always been kept in the store, was inadvertently allowed outside; and as a party of boys were playing on the sidewalk, where the dog was lying, one of them (a son of Robert Ducker) trod on one of the animal's paws, and was bitten on the leg. The wound was dressed by a physician, and the dog killed by the city marshal, with the full consent of Mr. Stott, who however felt very badly over the affair. Had the light been showing, the dog would not have been allowed outside the building; and if he had got out, the children would have seen him and avoided trampling on him.

B. D. Whitcomb, who has a stable in Dover and a stock farm at Stratham, reports that on Thursday night of last week a mare valued at $1000, and two colts valued at $500 each, were missing from his Stratham farm. On Friday the dead body of one of the colts was found on the Boston & Maine track near Newmarket junction, killed by the cars. The mare and the other colt are still missing, and it is supposed were stolen by horse thieves.

The hearing at Raymond in the case of Joseph H. Cate, arrested some days ago for shooting Eddy Harrison at Mount Delight, Deerfield, took place in the town hall in Raymond on Saturday forenoon, County Solicitor Samuel W. Emery appearing for the state, and Lawyer Topliff of Manchester for the defence. Cate was ordered to recognize in the sum of $1500 for his appearance at the October term of the supreme court, and in default of sureties was brought to this city and committed to jail.

Mr. Charles Williams of Manchester, of the governor's council, passed Sunday as the guest of the governor at York beach.

In Cleveland dry-goods houses girls using slang are fined a penny per slang. One girl who was fined $17.50 in seventeen minutes said to another employe: "You bet they won't fine me again, and don't you forget it," and she put on her hat and coat and went home.—Norristown Herald.

South-Sea Islander—So you came out here to save me? Missionary—Yes. South-Sea Islander—And if you had not come I could not have been saved? Missionary—No. South-Sea Islander—What a lucky thing it was for me that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company was organized.—Tid Bits.

"Mr. Brown, your dog has broken his chain and has bitten your neighbor's little boy." "What! that Smith brat?" "No; the Jones boy. "O, you don't know how you frightened me. That Smith boy is as full of scrofula as an egg is full of meat. I would not have anything happen to that dog for money."—Boston Transcript.

"I'm a writer for an undertaker's journal," said Graves, when asked his occupation. "Do you ever have any of your contributions rejected?" asked his friend. "O, yes," was the ready response; "but when they are returned as being too gloomy I remail them to a comic paper, and they are accepted with thanks."—Drake's Traveler's Magazine.

"I'm sorry I can't accommodate you, Mr. Paperwait," said Mrs. McKerrel, shaking her head resolutely, as she often did of a Saturday evening, "but all my boarders settle weekly; my motto is, 'Pay as you go.'" "O, yes," exclaimed Paperwait cheerfully, "so is mine, so is mine. But I'm not going yet, you know; I'll be here six months yet." And a happier man never vetoed a bill. —Burdette.

Snifkins—Mr. Swiggins, I must thank you for the rendition of that last song. I don't remember when anything sounded so grateful to my ears. Swiggins—Yes; I have been very much complimented on that little piece. —Snifkins—It was splendid. You sang so loud that Mrs. Coldcash couldn't hear a word of what I was saying to her daughter in the corner. Do sing again!—Tid-Bits.

Said an old bachelor; "After boarding in a good many different houses I have come to the conclusion that where the table is wretched the people are amusing and jovial. Where it is good the boarders are apt to be more than ordinarily stupid and uninteresting. I account for the fact on the well-known physiological principle that a full stomach makes a stupid brain." "What a full stomach yours must be then," said his landlady's daughter who chanced so overhear his remark.—Philadelphia News.

A MARVEL OF PURITY.

Royal Baking Powder a Perfect Leavening agent, absolutely free from lime and alum.

The Royal Baking Powder is considered by all chemists and food analysts to be a marvel of purity, strength, and wholesomeness. It is a perfect leavening agent, making bread, cake, rolls, muffins, and other pastry light, delicious, and wholesome. It has superseded the use of cream of tartar and soda, and of soda and sour milk, in the work of the best cooks, whenever once given a trial. Hot food raised with it will not cause indigestion, but may be eaten with impunity by those with the most sensitive digestive organs.

Furthermore, the Royal Baking Powder is now the only baking powder before the public free from lime and absolutely pure. This is due to the improved method by the use of which it has been made possible to produce a perfectly pure cream of tartar, from which all the lime has been eliminated. This chemically pure cream of tartar is exclusively employed in the manufacture of the Royal Baking Powder, so that its absolute freedom from lime and all other extraneous substances is guaranteed.

Professor McMurtrie, late chemist in chief to the U. S. Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., says:

"I have examined the cream of tartar manufactured for and used by the Royal Baking Powder Company in the manufacture of their baking powder, and find it to be perfectly pure, and free from lime in any form.

"All chemical tests to which I have submitted it have proved the Royal Baking Powder perfectly healthful, of uniform, excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East, Northeast, and Southeast, its terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only route that traverses the continental empire which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, La Salle, Streator, Peoria, Keokuk, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Council Bluffs, Harlan, Guthrie Center, and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron, and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted, its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it, it has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The Equipment of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—on the Kansas Division, Atchison and Kansas City—roofed Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, Kansas and Kansas City. Superior accommodations to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Dakota points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich in to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took . . . and . . . Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any one to whom you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one DOUCHE AND INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

A Great Showing.

George G. Kimball of Washington is in Maine, engaged in the work now being carried on under the direction of the bureau of labor, collecting statistics of divorce. The work covers the divorces of the last twenty years, and, when completed and tabulated, will present an array of very interesting figures, showing the causes for which the divorces were granted, the length of the terms of married life, etc. Mr. Kimball went to Maine about six weeks ago, prepared with blanks to report about 2000 divorces for the state. He has completed twelve of the sixteen counties, and calculates that if the remaining counties hold out in the same ratio, instead of 2000, the state will foot up the interesting total of 10,000 divorces during the twenty years from 1867 to 1887.

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

Two out of five of the Utah commissioners, in a minority report, disagree with the opinion of the other three that it would be dangerous to allow Utah to become a state. It is likely, however, that for the present a majority of Congress will consider it inexpedient to give the Mormons their own head. With Utah once a state, the Mormons would have everything their own way, and might take monogamy out of their constitution and make residence uncomfortable for the Gentiles. The two commissioners who favor allowing Utah to become a state, have a keen eye to the fact that the Mormons are democrats every one.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

Three Boston sportsmen up in Penobscot county, Maine, have just paid $1800 for four deer. They shot the deer in close time, and paid the money into the public treasury. The animals cost them just $450 apiece. Maine deer are apt to be exceeding dear at certain times of the year.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please. Try them.

In 1859 the United States government imported a small herd of camels into Texas, with the idea of using them and their progeny to cross the so-called American Desert. The camels prospered and multiplied; but when the war came they were scattered through the state of Texas and in Arizona, and many of them became wild. Railroads have solved the Great American Desert problem, and the camels have fallen into innocuous desuetude. Some of them are to be exhibited at the coming Texas state fair.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them were three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch and ease in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter decides the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other earthly enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant relief, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

Railroad Commissioner.

The term of Mr. E. J. Tenney, one of the board of railroad commissioners, has expired. Several gentlemen in the state would like to be appointed as Mr. Tenney's successor. Mr. Tenney has the advantage of experience in the office, is a gentleman of integrity, and no suggestions are made that he is not in every way competent for the position, or is in any degree lacking in proper requirements. He is, we are told, quite willing to be reappointed.

The office is an important one. The interests of the people of the state demand that such places should not be "claimed" as rewards for service, or given because a candidate is a "good fellow," or needs an office. In days when the office was elective and commissioners had far less responsibilities and labors than at present, the office went to the man who could secure a majority of votes in a state convention of the dominant party. To-day, the executive has the responsibility of appointing a competent man of clean record, who will render the state service instead of benefitting himself only, in the office.

Mr. Tenney comes from the western part of the state, a section of our commonwealth entitled to a representative upon the board. With the other two members in the central part of the state, it would be proper to go west for the third man. We believe in letting well enough alone. If there is in the state no civil engineer who can afford to take the office, let us have Mr. Tenney, who is a practical man with common sense ideas, and who has proved a valuable man in the position. The state cannot afford to lose the benefit of the experience gained by Mr. Tenney, simply that some good fellow may secure a place. The executive too cannot afford to commit such a mistake. There are positions where the continuation of a man trained in the discharge of the duties is imperatively demanded. Incumbents of offices where the duties can be quickly learned by almost any competent man, may be fit subjects for frequent rotation, but we incline to the belief that the people and the railway interests of the state cannot profit by frequent changes in the office of commissioner of railroads.

A Hard Lot.

The independent democratic movement in favor of the republican ticket in Maryland makes headway. Nearly two hundred prominent citizens, all democrats, appear on the list of vice presidents of the mass meeting held at the Baltimore opera house. The address adopted has no uncertain sound; it says that the democratic party of Maryland "has appointed to public office thieves, burglars, express robbers, murderers and men stained with every crime. It has burned the ballots when in the custody of the clerk of the court, and the perpetrators of the act have publicly boasted of it. Indeed, every one connected with that act has been rewarded from the public treasury. It has secured places in the government employ for the two most notorious election thieves in the city. It has garrisoned a ward with ruffians, and kept them in the city's pay. Of twenty-three city, state and federal employes in the second ward we have found nineteen whose names appear on the criminal records of the city."

It should be remembered that the foregoing statements are made, not by "radical slanderers" but by men who have always been democrats, and prominent ones, who are tired of seeing their party controlled by thieves, murderers and ballot-box stuffers, and victories won by the most nauseating frauds and outrages on the purity of the ballot.

The following is addressed by John K. Cowan—a leading democrat of Baltimore who believes in supporting honest men for office in opposition to criminals, even though the former should be republicans and the latter democrats—to the Baltimore Sun, which deprecates the bolt and urges that all good democrats should fall in behind the Higgins-Gorman crowd, "for the good of the party:"

And now, for some time past, you have been the apologist, open or silent, for the most disgraceful regime that the city ever knew. Election after election has been carried by bare-faced fraud. The city's pay roll is gradually assimilating to the police records. Murder, pure and simple, is recognized as a political service to be rewarded in both national, state and municipal appointments in the positions of trust. Bussy, Buchheimer, Koenig, Burke, Kennedy and Goodrich! Think of the list! Seven murderers! A host of others known to us all, who have not taken life, but only tried to do so—Owens, Carter, "Butch" Murphy, Mike Murphy and a long line—swell the roll and disgrace our city. A murder is planned and carried out with sensational deliberation, merely to stop a bolt in an important ward. The "party" shows its hand in the attempt to get rid of the state's witnesses, made by a man high in its counsels. Nineteen men of criminal record draw pay from the city for their activities in one ward. Twice does Gov. Lloyd allow the ballot boxes of this city to be looted, and, in spite of the scandal, has a third time refused minority representatives on the board. His supervisors twice fill the polling places with judges from the very scum of the earth—men whose bleached faces tell you, as you look in the polling places, that they are of the class who sleep by day and not by night—the spawn of the brothels and small gambling dens of the city.

From this showing there is little to wonder at in the revolt of the better element of the Maryland democracy against the continuance of the Higgins-Gorman domination.

The democratic New York World says the democratic superintendent of streets of Baltimore has been indicted nine times, and has been put in jail thirty-eight times, twice for attempts at murder, nine times for rows at the polls, and four times for assaulting police officers. He is evidently a first-class all 'round criminal, but then he is an ardent and enterprising supporter of Gorman, Cleveland and reform.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

COTTAGE HOSPITAL.

The following items of interest in relation to the Cottage Hospital were inadvertently omitted from the recent annual report of the institution: Number of days of hospital care during the year covered by the report, 807, of which 415 were entirely gratuitous. Visiting days for the patients, Wednesdays, Saturdays and Sundays, from two to four o'clock P. M.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

Rev. W. W. Fay of Weymouth, Mass., preached yesterday to a very large congregation in the Congregational church, in exchange with Rev. Mr. Ross.

An unusually large number of visitors are spending this loveliest of months, the bright and beautiful October, at the seaside. Nearly all of the cottages are rented for the autumn sporting season, taking seabirds on the wing. Mrs. Joseph Ruman and her nieces, Misses Morris and May Perkins, with Miss Smith and Mr. Wm. Smith of Seabrook, have taken the pleasant Centennial Cottage, and will make a cheerful and happy circle for the enjoyment of a few weeks by the music of the sea.

Dea. James Perkins, nearly ninety years of age, narrowly escaped serious accident returning from church Sunday night, an Exeter carriage colliding with his.

A grammar school pupil cut her hand badly in a broken pane of glass last week. Dr. Merrill promptly dressed the wound, stopping a profuse hemorrhage.

HAMPTON, Oct. 10th.

NEEDED CAUTION.

The numerous Rockingham county farmers who have just had suits entered against them in the United States circuit court for alleged infringement of a driven-well patent, and the New Hampshire cities which are fighting a claim for damages for the use of a valve on fire engines purchased in open market, and openly manufactured without any claim of a patent being set up until after the alleged patent had expired, will appreciate the following from the Detroit Free Press:

A Detroit peddler took out some egg beaters on his last trip, and as the price was only fifteen cents each, and they worked on a new principle, he calculated on big sales. His first experience will answer for all others. He drove up to a farmhouse in the western part of Wayne county and took a beater in to exhibit. The people liked it exceedingly well, but the old farmer said:

"I have none."

"Then your written authority to make sales."

"Don't need any."

"Then you must give me a bond, with two securities in the sum of $1000, that you will stand between me and any trouble."

"But I can't do that."

"Then I can't buy. I've just had to pay royalty on a driven well, damages for using an infringement on an open gate, and have a lawsuit about a hayfork and another over a windmill, and we don't even buy a dishpan without a bond that it don't infringe on somebody's patent bathtub."

PERSONAL.

Rev. Lee H. Fisher, pastor of the Universalist church, left this city on Monday for a visit of two weeks to his parents at Charlotte, Me.

Capt. I. H. Washburne started on Monday for a visit of a week or more to Woodstock, New Brunswick, to be supplemented by a shooting excursion in the woods of eastern Maine.

Mr. J. M. Tebbetts and wife returned last week from New York, where they purchased their stock of fall millinery goods. They are now busily engaged unpacking goods and preparing for their fall opening.

Our evening contemporaries remark that Mr. Plumer Spinney, who had his left leg badly broken just above the ankle ten weeks ago through the falling upon it of a stove he was unloading from his job wagon, was on the street last Saturday for the first time since the accident. Mr. Spinney ceased being a boy many years ago, and it would be no cause of wonder if he took over ten weeks to mend a leg so badly smashed as his was; but the fact is that he was on the street in the neighborhood of his home at least a month ago, and will probably be on the Parade with his team again before this week expires.

"The Streets of New York" will be presented in Music hall next Friday evening by an excellent company under the management of E. M. Gardiner. Special scenery will be one of the great features of the entertainment.

Mr. Frank W. Hackett, of Portsmouth, N. H., has had printed in a handsome pamphlet a transcript of the earliest town records of that place, covering the years 1653 to 1656, inclusive. The reprint is accompanied by an introduction of a dozen pages and many explanatory notes, showing much research, and of considerable value to persons interested in the history of one of the oldest towns in New England.—New York Times.

"Jim the Penman," under the management of A. M. Palmer of the Madison Square theatre, of New York, will be presented in Music hall on Thursday evening, Oct. 20th.

At the grand reception to Gen. Paine and Mr. Burgess in Faneuil hall last Friday evening, upon the wall at the back of the stage, between the busts of John Adams and John Quincy Adams, was placed as a suitable decoration a ship's bell clock, a counterpart of the one in the Volunteer's cabin, which strikes the "bells" instead of the hours. This clock is the invention of Henry H. Ham, Jr., of this city.

The annual session of the Rockingham Christian Conference will commence in North Hampton on Thursday, Oct. 15th, with the Christian church there, and continue over Sunday, the 15th. Round trip tickets from this city will be fifty cents each.

The Grand Lodge of Odd Fellows of New Hampshire meets in Concord to-day.

Two double teams came into collision on Vaughan street last Saturday evening, the darkness being so intense, owing to the street lights being out, that the drivers could not see each others' teams. One of the teams was being driven by Wm. H. Dennett, hackman, and the other by N. P. Ordway of Greenland; and one of Mr. Dennett's pair of handsome black horses was badly injured by the pole of Mr. Ordway's carriage penetrating and tearing his neck.

The Kennebunk Eastern Star of last week says: "'Jockum,' the Portsmouth pauper who is so well known here, was arrested at Sanford on Wednesday for breaking and entering." Jockum is not very well known around here; in fact, nobody seems to know anything about him at all.

Ground was broken last week for the foundation of a new boiler and coal house at the Jones brewery, to be 112 feet long and sixty wide, and one story high, and built of brick; it is to have seven large boilers, and storeage capacity for several hundred tons of coal.

The Dover Democrat of Saturday says: "The Lasters' Union are somewhat worked up over some odd things that have happened in their midst during the past few days, and more than probable they will make a very thorough investigation, and will have something new for publication." The Lasters' Union of Dover will hardly be able to stand many more rackets of the Crosby-lottery-steal pattern.

A piece of merchandise brought from Hudson, Mass., to this city, cost for freight by express from Hudson to Boston, thirty miles, on the Fitchburg railroad, $1; from Boston to Portsmouth by Jackson's express, fifty cents.

The Newmarket Advertiser says: "Miss Blanche Dearborn of Epping, who has achieved more than local fame as an adept with the rifle, has been stopping at Meredith, and in a recent trip down the bay shot two loons through the head with a Winchester rifle, at a distance of 250 yards, without a rest." Either a good story, or mighty good shooting.

MARITIME NOTES.

Among the arrivals at this port on the 9th inst. were the British schooners Magellan and F. & E. Givan, from Moncton, New Brunswick, with ties to the Boston & Maine railroad, and the Loella, Amee master, from Bangor with lumber for Dover. The schooners G. W. Reitt, Hattie Lewis, D. K. Ham and J. Chester Wood, with bricks from the up-river yards, sailed for Boston the same day.

The centre-board sloop yacht Fanita and the cutter Uldis, of the New York yacht club, had a race last week around Long island, about 250 miles, which was won by the sloop, she arriving in late on Saturday night, 4h., 11m., 30s. ahead of the cutter.

The schooner Fair Dealer, Capt. Wm. R. Hammett, with lumber from Ellsworth, Me., for Boston, was wrecked on Foley island, off Cape Porpoise, Sunday night. The vessel is a total loss. The crew and part of the cargo were saved.

The Russian authorities have seized three sealing vessels on the Siberian coast this year, one American, one British, and one of which the nationality is not given.

Eleazer Mann, of Sanford, Me., aged about twenty-eight years, has become insane on religious topics, and thinks himself commanded by God to go forth and preach. About three weeks ago a female evangelist visited that place, and gave a series of social religious talks, at which Mann was a constant attendant. It was not until then that he developed traits of insanity, and it is believed that her exhortations brought on the singular illness. He has been taken to his home, and with rest and care will probably recover.

The leaders of the German societies of New York have concluded to support the democratic ticket this year in order to obtain open beer shops on Sundays. The prohibitionists will support the democratic party in order to advance the temperance cause.

At Hurley, Wis., the bodies of seven unknown men, all evidently murdered, have been found in a ravine behind an old dance house. Another Old Bender horror.

On the grounds of the Passaic Athletic club of New York city, Oct. 9th, W. J. M. Barry broke the record in throwing the twelve-pound hammer, throwing it 122 feet. The previous record, Frank Lambrecht's, was 115 feet, 7 1-2 inches. He also broke the record of ninety-five feet for a one-hand throw, covering 114 feet, and throwing in the Irish style, with one turn, he covered 139 feet 11 inches, beating the record nearly twenty feet.

Admission to Primary Schools.

Such a misunderstanding exists with regard to the admission of new pupils to the public schools that a few words of explanation seem necessary. The following rule was adopted by the board of Instruction July 12, '85, "The time for admitting new scholars to the lower grade of the primary school shall be at the commencement of each term." This rule is as just as the one admitting new classes to the high school only at the beginning of the year.

The reason for the rule was this; children entering at all times gave the teacher almost as many classes as there were children, and with that state of affairs our city schools could be no improvement over the ungraded country school. Imagine a school of forty pupils, all beginners in the art of reading; at the end of a month one new one enters who cannot read at all. That one has to recite by himself, that is, the teacher has to give him private lessons, neglecting the forty meanwhile for the sake of the one. Another and another enters, making more classes, and the forty have to be more and more neglected for the sake of these late comers.

No pupil who has ever been to school, or who can read is prevented from entering school at any time. Only those who have never attended school, or who cannot read, are not allowed to enter except three times a year; viz: one week at the end of each term. The dates for receiving beginners are Sept. 5-12, 1887, Jan. 2-9, 1888 and April 16-23, 1888. If a child of five or six is not ready to enter at the first of these dates, it surely is no great hardship for him to wait eight or ten weeks rather than to submit a whole school to inconvenience by his admission in the middle of the term. But let it be understood this rule applies only to beginners, All others can find some class for which they are fitted.

Secretary Board of Instruction.

The "Boycott" a Crime.

In Washington, D. C., Oct. 8th, the trial of eight members of the Washington Musical Assembly, K. of L., for conspiracy in boycotting a non-union band, was concluded. Judge Snell, who had had the case under advisement for over a week, to the surprise of the defendants found them severally guilty, and imposed a fine of $25 each, or imprisonment for thirty days. The judge in rendering his decision says substantially that the members of the assembly, in pursuance to instructions given them, visited beer gardens and other places and endeavored to induce the proprietors not to employ Krause and his associates, and in some cases offered pecuniary inducements to break contracts made by Krause, and to otherwise injure his business. This in itself was illegal. Counsel for defendants has appealed.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

Six boys, aged from thirteen to seventeen years, have been arrested for numerous burglaries in Roxbury, Mass., and have confessed. They had a club room which was well supplied with cigars and flash literature, and ornamented on the walls with cheap pictures, firearms, a sandbag, etc.

Save Your Doctor's Bill.—When Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry will cure coughs, colds, bleeding at the lungs, and arrest the fell destroyer, consumption, it does more than most physicians can do. The use of a single bottle will satisfy the incredulous that they need look no further for the required aid.

At Yellow creek, Bell county, Ky., in a feud between Lee Turner and Gen. Sowders, brothers-in-law, five persons have been killed—three of the Turners, one of the Sowder faction, and a sheriff's officer. Life is lively in Kentucky.

Always avoid harsh purgative pills. They first make you sick and then leave you constipated. Carter's Little Liver Pills regulate the bowels and make you well. Dose, one pill.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease come on me. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ... of ... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I took the liberty to inclose in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years. It got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not absorb its own impurities from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is the mild and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Vigor and Vitality

Are quickly given to every part of the body by Hood's Sarsaparilla. The blood is purified, enriched, and vitalized, and carries health instead of disease to every organ. The stomach is toned and strengthened, the appetite restored. The kidneys and liver are roused and invigorated. The brain is refreshed, the mind made clear and ready for work. Try it.

Another Railroad Disaster.

A freight train on the Chicago & Atlantic railroad telescoped two cars at the rear of a passenger train near Kouts, Indiana, on the night of Oct. 10th. The railroad officials in Chicago refused to give any information whatever, but a despatch from Hammond, Ind., on the 11th, reported fourteen bodies, all but one burned beyond recognition, as having been taken from the wreck, and that thirty other persons were wounded.

The Travelling Candidate's Speeches.

There has been no little criticism upon the character of President Cleveland's western-travel speeches,—that he should have informed the people of Chicago of the Chicago fire, of St. Louis that they had often been mentioned as rivals of Chicago, and of other cities as to dates of incorporation, population, and other patent statistics. This was part of the plan arranged before leaving Washington. The president as a candidate is different from the president as the chief magistrate. He wants votes. His interests in different sections of the country are varied. If the traveller should make a free trade speech in a community which did not hold to the free trade notions it would be a blunder. Silver coinage may be a good subject in mining regions, but a dangerous topic in a thoroughly business atmosphere. The tax on whiskey has more interest in being discussed in Kentucky than in Maine; and thus the president was cautioned to preserve a strict neutrality on every topic save the glittering generalities of local compliment. Mr. Cleveland as a candidate cannot afford to discuss politics or economic measures. He can admit that the towns he visits have gained rapidly, that the number of inhabitants is as stated in the census reports, but to discuss measures tending to develope the growth of the country, or to say anything outside the beaten path of commonplace assertions, is not in keeping with the object of the excursion.

A Spirited Actress.

At the McKendree church, the leading Methodist Episcopal church of Nashville, Tenn., last Sunday, the pastor, Rev. W. A. Chandler, delivered a very severe and bitter sermon on the subject of the theatre. Miss Emma Abbott occupied a seat in the rear of the church, and at the conclusion of the sermon arose, and, in a short speech, entered her protest against the pastor's denunciation. She declared the minister's charges unfounded, and said that her life was as free from blame as that of any living woman. In all the operas of the previous week, to which the minister referred, there was no impure or improper thought. The great lights of the stage, she said, such as Jenny Lind, Modjeska, Albani, and countless others, had been good women, model wives and mothers. She defied any one to say that aught had ever been said against the fair fame of Emma Abbott. There was considerable applause at the conclusion of her remarks. Before it subsided Mr. Chandler answered that he could not answer the lady because she was a lady. During the day as the affair became known, a great many ladies who had met Miss Abbott called on her and commended her spirited defence of herself and her profession.

HAMPTON JOTTINGS.

HAMPTON, Oct. 10th.

Rev. R. A. DeLancey has been preaching in different cities and towns for several Sabbaths past, two very eloquent sermons each day.

Rev. W. W. Fay's very able address last Sunday in the Congregational church was from these words: "Endure hardness like good soldiers." After the evening discourse all were eager to congratulate him, and shake the hand of their former pastor.

We learn that a furnace is to be put into the Congregational parsonage; also one at the Union house.

The attraction for this evening is a concert by the Norfolk Jubilee Singers at the Town hall; and for Thursday evening, many people will see the play "Streets of New York" at the Exeter opera house.

Many of Hampton's fair daughters are soon to leave home and friends, launch out on the uncertain sea of matrimony, and dwell in far distant cities.

The recent camp-fire here was a perfect success, and the Woman's Relief Corps deserve much credit.

A course of Lyceum lectures has been decided upon, the first to be given Oct. 31st.

A report has been received at Madrid, Spain, from Gen. Terrero, governor of the Philippine islands, regarding the revolt of the natives of Ponape. He says that some time ago a man who was a strong Catholic was appointed governor of Ponape. The governor found that the American Methodist missionary, Mr. Doane, who had lived in Ponape for thirty years, was very popular with the natives. The governor declared that Mr. Doane's title to the land upon which his church, schools and houses stood was insufficient. A quarrel ensued, and the missionary was arrested and imprisoned, and afterward sent to Madrid. In Madrid Mr. Doane appealed to the American consul, and lodged a complaint with the Spanish authorities. The latter found that Mr. Doane had a right to the land in question, and sent an order to the governor of Ponape to appear in Madrid and explain his conduct. In the meantime, however, the natives had revolted and killed the governor. Two Spanish men-of-war have been sent to Ponape to restore order.

ARRESTED.

She—"Why, John! Where have you been? You never stayed out so late before?"

He—"I have been arrested for disorderly conduct, my dear, and only just released."

She—"Good Heavens!"

He—"Don't be alarmed, I was only looking in Foye's show window, and when I saw the bargains in fall goods it made me dizzy, and a foolish policeman thought I was drunk."

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. FRONTPROOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

PERSONAL.

Mr. Willis E. Pinder of this city is in Concord for a brief stay.

Messrs. John S. Tuckerman and Benjamin Aswell are on a week's vacation at Boston.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Col. Charles G. McCawley, commandant of the marine corps, visited the navy yard Tuesday forenoon and received the salute due his rank in the service.

There were between three and four hundred men, including representatives of large firms in Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and Portland, in attendance on the auction at the navy yard on Tuesday. The sale will last several days. Sixty of the 160 lots into which the articles were arranged, were sold, the proceeds amounting to between $40,000 and $50,000; and it is estimated that about $100,000 will be realized from the total sales.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The senate committee on railroads on the 11th inst. voted, three to two, to favorably report the Hazen bill.

In the United States Circuit court at Portland, on the 10th inst., Mary Lastel began a suit for $40,000 damages against the Grand Trunk railway company. She was injured in one knee at Yarmouth eighteen years ago. She went to step off the train, and claims that the train started without sufficient time to get off, injuring her so that she has been crippled ever since.

"THE STREETS OF NEW YORK."

Boucicault's old but popular melodrama, "The Streets of New York," will be presented at Music hall on Friday evening, with Mr. George C. Boniface as Tom Badger, supported by a company equal to all the requirements of the piece, under the management of Mr. E. M. Gardiner. The company bring a carload of special scenery, showing Union square by moonlight, the Five Points, Baxter street, etc., and giving the great fire scene a most realistic representation. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Oct. 11th.

An outrageous affair occurred in South Eliot on Saturday evening last. A disturbance was made at the residence of Mr. Timothy Manson, stones being thrown at the house, besides which, Mrs. Manson was called to the door by a knock, and on opening it a stone passed close by her face, and also narrowly missed a kerosene lamp she held in her hand. A similar act was played on the same house Monday evening, before Mrs. Manson went to the store of J. W. Nowell & Son, where she found several boys whom she suspected, but who on being questioned, strongly denied any knowledge of the transaction; and though there was a very strong suspicion against one of them, no proof was possessed at that time. Mr. Manson is determined to find out about the matter, and it is to be hoped he will fully succeed, as it has come to be a bad state of things when people cannot live peacefully in their homes or on the street.

Mr. Levi Brooks was at the post-office a few evenings since, and on leaving, when a few rods away, a heavy club was thrown at his head—by whom he does not know, though he would give considerable to find out. The perpetrators of such cowardly and malicious outrages should be hunted down by some means.

J. W. Nowell has a small lot of coal on the wharf of Mr. Samuel Dixon, which he will deliver to the people of South Eliot; it is all engaged.

Will W. Knight is at home on a vacation.

Mrs. M. G. Farmer is talking of promoting a reading room at South Eliot for the benefit of the young people. It would be a fine thing if some such institution could be established in the place; and we hope Mrs. Farmer will succeed in this, as in all her other plans for benefiting the town and the people.

Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor of the Methodist church in Portsmouth, preached in the Methodist church of South Eliot last Sunday; his text was 1st Corinthians, 1.13, and from it he gave an eloquent and deeply interesting discourse. The people hope to have the privilege of hearing him again.

Mr. Daniel P. Spinney has as fine a lot of grapes as has been raised in the vicinity this season; also a large crop of nice pears, which he will no doubt get a good price for after the early fruit has gone by.

The apple crop of this town is far beyond the anticipations of the people, the yield not only far exceeding what was expected in quantity, but being of fine quality, large and fair. It is hoped that they will bring large prices. HARRY.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, Me., Oct. 11th.

The harvest supper given by the Good Templars of Morrill Lodge, North Kittery, last Thursday evening, was very successful, and a credit to the committee who managed it; the evening was perfect, the attendance good, and the proceeds liberal.

The following we clip from the Wisconsin State Journal of Madison, Wis., upon the resignation of our old friend and schoolmate Dr. Walter E. Fernald: "Dr. W. E. Fernald has resigned his position as first assistant physician at the state hospital at Mendota, to accept the superintendency of the school for feeble minded at Boston, established by Dr. Samuel B. Howe. Miss Kate Nolan, for the past six years matron at the institution, has also resigned her position, and will accompany the doctor to Boston next week, as his wife. Both are well qualified for the positions they have held, and are congratulated on their advancement to this higher position, for which they are entirely worthy. The doctor will receive a salary of $3,000 in his new position."

Mr. Perry C. Moore of West Kittery is making improvements to his house, and we understand he is soon to build a large hennery and go into the hen business on a large scale.

Mr. Frank Chick has built a new barn on his premises in West Kittery.

Mr. Samuel Caban is painting Mr. James D. Plaisted's house in artistic colors.

Frank E. Donnell and wife of Dover, N. H., were in town on Sunday last.

Mr. John J. Lambert gave an oyster supper to the children of the 1st Methodist Sabbath school on Tuesday evening of last week, at his residence in North Kittery.

Miss Estelle DeNavana returned to her home in Chelsea, Mass., on Sunday last, after a pleasant visit among relatives at North Kittery.

Geo. A. Damon, head book-keeper at Ward & Gay's, Boston, was at his home here Sunday and Monday.

With all the improvements going on at the Foreside, why in the name of goodness don't some one get at that old Tabernacle lot, and clear it up and have a bon-fire?

A good job is being done on the sidewalks at the Foreside, and some improvements have been made on the highways thereabouts. We are always willing to give credit where it is due. SUB ROSA.

The plank sidewalk on Miller avenue, between Middle street and Lincoln avenue is being relaid—and not before a relay was needed.

The Portsmouth Athletic club on the 10th inst. voted to hire and fit up the other upper hall in Franklin block, opposite the gymnasium, and appointed a committee to attend to that duty. Several honorary members were voted in.

The long evenings are rapidly approaching, and good lamps are a necessity. Mr. M. M. Collis, of the Boston 99-cent store, Market street, advertises a large and varied assortment, of almost all patterns and prices, to select from. Read his announcement in another column.

It is somewhat unusual for a man, after committing suicide, to personally notify the police that he is dead, but it is said Mr. Al. Hurd, formerly of Biddeford, recently acted in this considerate manner. A man rushed into a police station in Boston about ten o'clock one evening, and reported that he had seen a man jump overboard from a bridge, after throwing down two letters, which the informant handed to the police. The officers grappled for the body without effect, and next day notified the widow of the suicide of his death, one of the letters being addressed to her, and stating his intention to end his existence. She visited the station, and remarked that drowning himself was the most sensible act of his life; she was married to him, but while he was in jail for some offence she learned that he already had a wife in Portland, Me., and the two wives went to the jail and made things very pleasant for him. When he was discharged she refused to have anything to do with him, and he threatened to kill himself, but she had not believed he would do it; she was glad to learn that he could tell the truth, on occasion. During this interview it came out in some way that it was the suicide himself who carried to the station the report of the sad affair, and as he was seen riding in a hack in Biddeford a day or two later, and talked to by a reporter, it is thought he was not very fatally drowned.

At Alfred, Me., on the 10th inst., the supreme court cases against Joseph H. Cote and James E. Carter, democratic leaders of Biddeford, indicted for conspiracy to defraud the ballot, were nol. pros'd upon their paying $571.71 costs. These cases grew out of the bringing of a number of bummers from Portland to Biddeford to vote; four or five of the fellows were arrested, confessed their guilt, and were sent to prison; and Cote, Carter and other prominent democrats of Biddeford were charged with conspiracy. Several of the "reformers" thus persecuted left the state for a time, and probably all of them learned a valuable lesson as to the advisability of absolute secrecy in conducting any scheme of scoundrelism.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Charles H. Odion (by admr.) to George E. Carter, real estate for $536.55. York—Ellen L. Ellis of York to Henry A. Mitchell of Boston, Mass., real estate at Union Bluff for $316.66; George Thompson of Wells to Edward S. Marshall of York, real estate at Pine hill, York, for $243.75; Ellen L. Ellis to William H. Howe of Concord, N. H., real estate in York for $1; Edward S. Marshall to Henry A. Mitchell of Boston, real estate in York for $128. South Berwick—Abel M. Frost to Emma A. Frost, land and buildings for $500; William H. Flynn to Mary A. Flynn, land and buildings for $1000; Lydia H. Nealley to A. Grafton Nealley, real estate for $1.

Fred White of Cape Porpoise, thirty years of age, attempted suicide by shooting on Sunday afternoon last. He has kept company with Miss Delia Hutchins for several years, and has worked in Boston the past year. He returned home, called on the lady on Sunday afternoon, and proposed a drive. She refused, and words passed, when White drew a revolver and fired, the ball entering behind his ear. The shooting will probably result fatally.

There was a great tumpus in the national convention of the Knights of Labor at Minneapolis Oct. 10th, over the introduction of a resolution calling for a commutation of the sentence of the condemned anarchists. The resolution, which was introduced by James E. Quinn, of Ohio, Assembly 49, New York, was denounced by Mr. Powderly, and voted down, 151 to 52.

Within recent weeks an amusing story has gone the rounds of the press, to the effect that the "American Magazine" was to be conducted for the benefit of its contributors, who would receive stock in payment for their literary work. The paragraph has called forth much pity for the editor of a magazine so managed; wasted tears, as the story never had any foundation, and is wholly untrue.

In gathering wild flowers, autumn leaves, or picnicking in the woods, we are more or less exposed to danger from poisoning by ivy or other wild vines and shrubs. The poisoning is under certain circumstances readily absorbed by the blood and painful swellings or eruptions are caused. Such affections Hood's Sarsaparilla readily cures, as it expels all impurities from the blood. Even in cases of poisoning by Poison Ivy, Hood's Sarsaparilla has been found Labor successful. It should be kept constantly in the house for all blood discoveries. Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass., and is sold by all druggists. 100 Doses $1.

The petroleum flowing out of the wells at Baku, Russia, on the Caspian sea, is seriously inundating the town. It is impossible to store the oil.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

In its new volume, beginning with the November number, the "American Magazine" will add some very important features to its monthly departments; these will include book reviews by Julian Hawthorne, a "Calendar of Health," by Dr. Hutchinson, and "Household Art," with illustrations, by Jennie June.

The October number of "The Eclectic Magazine" gives the place of honor to Prince Krapotkine, the celebrated Nihilist, who contributes an article entitled "The Coming Anarchy," in which he exemplifies his expectation of the means by which the philosophy of history will solve the difficult problems now before us. "Ireland's Alternatives," by Lord Thring, is an admirable presentation of the Anglo-Irish question—the most complete and judicial we have yet seen. The poet Swinburne, in a paper, which he calls "Whitmania," severely attacks the claims made for Walt Whitman by his friends. Wagner's "Letters to Frau Eliza Wille," throw light on the great composer's life and character, and are of great interest in themselves. A second article by the great painter, Holman Hunt, finishes his interesting description of his painting one of his greatest pictures, and his Syrian adventures therein. The two closing articles are among the best in an excellent number, "The Roman Matron and the Roman Lady," by Mrs. E. Lynn Linton, a capital study of the status and character of women in old Rome; and "The Island of Sark; a sermon in Stones," by Sophia Weisse, a charming description of one of the most wild and picturesque of the Channel islands. Published by E. R. Pelton, No. 25 Bond street, New York. Terms $5 per year.

Terrible are the Ravages

Upon the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inactivity of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and activity into the vitally important secretive action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. Liver complaint, constipation, nervous ailments and rheumatism, are likewise conquerable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure in a damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and revives strength after undue fatigue.

Rev. D. M. Bradley, Catholic bishop of New Hampshire, and Rev. Patrick Houlihan of Nashua, were received on the 10th inst. by the pope, to whom they presented the jubilee gifts of which they were the bearers.

Save Your Doctor's Bill.—When Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry will cure coughs, colds, bleeding at the lungs, and arrest the fell destroyer, consumption, it does more than most physicians can do. The use of a single bottle will satisfy the incredulous that they need look no further for the required aid.

Many prominent citizens of Arizona have been discovered aiding the stealing of horses from the Indians.

Always avoid harsh purgative pills. They first make you sick and then leave you constipated. Carter's Little Liver Pills regulate the bowels and make you well. Dose, one pill.

The yellow fever at Tampa, Florida, is reported to be spreading.

The reporter who described Mrs. Cleveland's Chicago reception toilet went along finely till he came to her ornaments. He said she had "a diamond brooch in her hair." This reminds Jenkins of a man who once wrote that a bride wore an epergne in her bonnet.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,sat.o

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease ever again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is ever undermine and destroying life, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving pain, certain in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

DR. NORVIN GREEN.

We don't hear much of Dr. Norvin Green, president of the Western Union Telegraph company, says a New York correspondent. But the doctor is a man of towering ability, and one of Gotham's conspicuosities for all that.

When William Orton died it was supposed the Western Union Telegraph company had received a mortal blow; but if Orton were suddenly to return to life his great gray eyes would open with amazement as they rested upon a paper statement of the business done by the company, and the vast area of which it holds control. Green is not only a man of business and vast enterprise, but he is a helpful, considerate, friendly person, to whom tens of thousands look for guidance and an opportunity to work.

When he leaves his office at 4 or 5 o'clock in the afternoon he leaves behind him the worry and flurry of his most busy place. The calm, seducing influence of a good cigar leads him gently from the plane of disturbance and that hurly-burly of competition toward the level of peace and quiet, after which a gentle stimulant restores his tired energies and a pleasant drive to the comforts which seclusion grants makes him again a man ready for the thought and toil and bother of the morrow. With his steady hand upon the helm, the great company of which he is the comptroller and director, as well as president, pushes proudly through the waves of competition quite confident in its own strength that it will receive its full share of public favor in the future, as it has for so many years in the past.

Green was telling me the other day a funny life insurance incident, which goes to show how utterly absurd the present system of examination is. Some fifteen years ago he was going west, and a life insurance agent applied to him and secured from him an application for a $10,000 policy. The applicant was examined in due form, and subsequently rejected on the ground that he had "incipient Bright's disease."

Sometime thereafter Brother Beers of the New York Life sent word to him that he would like to have him take $50,000 in his company. This was at the time Mr. Orton died, leaving as about the only reliable portion of his assets insurance to the amount of $87,000, and, although Dr. Green was tolerably well fixed in this world's goods, he thought that perhaps an extra $50,000 wouldn't hurt his heirs.

He consented, and was examined by two physicians. One of them brought to him the report, and with a very grave countenance told him that it was with great regret they were compelled to decline to advise the company to accept his risk, adding that he felt it to be his duty to inform him that he would doubtless die within the ensuing two years of Bright's disease. The doctor was pretty well piled up by this time, but being philosophical and rich he laughed it off and continued to live.

Not long after that Mr. Hyde, of the Equitable, sent a gentleman to Green with the request that he would call and take out a policy in the Equitable. By this time the humor of the situation struck him and he accepted. He was again examined and again rejected and again informed by a sapient medical authority that he had but a short time to live, whereupon, towering to his full height, which is considerable, by the way, he opened on the examiner, and with characteristic and forcible language offered then and there to bet him two to one that he would outlive him. Now look at it.

Had the doctor been insured fifteen years ago for the sum of $50,000 it would have cost him in the neighborhood of $2,500 a year and the company would have been so much in. To-day he looks better than he did then, his eye is clear as a bell, he is sturdy in physique, and fully prepared to wrestle with the vexatious problems of his position.

"Why," said he to the examiner, "I am a great sugar-eater. I take sugar on my melons, on my tomatoes, on my cakes, in my coffee, and in my whisky. What you see as an indication of Bright's disease is sugar. I am a doctor myself, and I don't intend to forget it."

Mrs. Thurber.

Mrs. Jennette M. Thurber, whose name is known all over the country in connection with the National opera company, is a handsome brunet with large hazel eyes and dazzling teeth. She wears her hair combed high off her forehead in the style known as that of La Pompadour. Her skirts are like the skirts of any other woman's dress, but she wears a coat and waistcoat of the most ultra tailor-made style, with a turned-down linen collar held together with a loosely tied silk tie. Her watch chain is made of Egyptian scarabs, and runs through a button-hole from waistcoat pocket to waistcoat pocket. On her shapely hands she wears a number of curious and valuable rings. In the winter Mrs. Thurber lives in New York. In the summer she rusticates in the Catskills, in a very primitive style of mountain cottage, which she calls "Lotos Land." Her writing paper from "Lotos Land" is made to represent birch bark, and the imitation is so good that one might think she had torn it off of the nearest tree rather than that it came from a stationer's shop.

The French steamer Spahis, plying between Marseilles and Nice, has been wrecked in the Bay of Bormes, and twenty-two of her passengers drowned.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

The total number of deaths by cholera among the passengers of the steamer Alesia is twenty-five, and several others will die.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please. Try them.

Peculiar

In the combination, proportion, and preparation of its ingredients, Hood's Sarsaparilla accomplishes cures where other preparations entirely fail. Another Murder in New Hampshire.

Two men, Mr. Mills of Wakefield and a neighbor, Mr. Lane, on the 10th inst. drove over to the wheelwright and blacksmith shop of John Brackett, who for years has lived alone and conducted business in a somewhat secluded spot at Wolfeboro' junction on the line of the Portsmouth, Great Falls & Conway railroad, he having agreed to do some work for Mr. Mills that day. Finding the shop closed they proceeded to an examination, and were shocked to find a trail of blood from a point in the bushes beside the road, two hundred yards from the shop, to a door in the end of the building, which they knew led to the upper floor, where Mr. Brackett slept. Ascending the stairs they found Mr. Brackett on the bed, covered with blood which had flowed from six deep cuts on the back of the head, the skull being crushed in; he was still alive, but a doctor who soon arrived said he could not recover, and would probably never speak again. A heavy club of birch wood was found at the spot in the bushes where it is supposed he was assaulted, and it was thought he had been left for dead some time during the previous night, but partially reviving had managed to drag himself to his humble domicile to die. What motive any one could have for doing such a deed is unknown, as Brackett was noted for his genial disposition and pleasant ways, had no known enemies, and never carried any money with him; his watch was in his pocket when found, but the crystal was broken; it showed 8:40 o'clock, which caused some people to believe that it was about that hour Sunday night, the 9th inst., that the foul deed was done.

Sewer vs. Public Library.

The democratic machine in Boston means to keep a good hold of the treasury. The municipal election is not many weeks away, and $100,000 to be expended in aid of democratic reform and a pure municipal government would be a good thing; so at a late meeting of the board of aldermen an order was introduced to transfer $100,000 from the appropriation for the new public library to the sewer department. Should the transfer be made, most of the $100,000 would be expended for "labor," and it would be of great advantage to the party; but the board, by a close vote, refused to pass the order. The reformers may yet succeed in getting it through. From a public library to a sewer is quite a span.

Rather Liked It.

John Buckley of Meriden, Conn., caught a snapping turtle and took it to the central telphone office, where he proposed killing it with electricity. He let the turtle snap at one end of a wire, put another wire beneath its shell, and turned on the full strength of the current. He avers that he "heard the current go through it, making a noise like a small planing machine," and left the turtle for dead. The next morning he found the turtle walking around and snapping at the wires, as though he wanted another taste of the electric current.

The Democratic Reform League's committee in Baltimore has published two affidavits made by well known and reputable citizens who overheard the talk of Senator Gorman and his friends as to what was going to be done by their henchmen. The scheme announced involved the striking off of the names of 5000 colored voters in the republican wards, and the purchase of the influence of two leading Knights of Labor. It was also announced that the custom house assessments, amounting to $13,000, had been collected. "Reform is necessary."

Seventy-five prominent democrats in Broome county, N. Y., have issued a manifesto giving an account of the manipulation of the democratic primaries by Deputy Collector Davis, with the aid of his henchmen, all federal employes. Moreover, Mr. Davis is charged with criminal action in his agency in the sale to the government of the proposed federal building. The manifesto is signed by four democratic ex-mayors of Binghamton, by the democratic judge, and by the nominees of the "ring" convention, who have refused to run. "Reform is necessary."

The astounding report comes from Chicago of a possible alliance of a portion of the democratic party in that city with the socialists for the defeat of Judge Gary at the approaching election. It has been understood that the socialist element in Chicago would endeavor to prevent Judge Gary's re-election in revenge for his conduct in presiding impartially and honorably at the trial of the bomb-throwers, but it is inconceivable that these men should receive aid from any of the regular political parties. The expectation at this time is said to be based upon the fact that divisions exist in the democratic party, and that one or another of the factions may be willing to make such an unholy alliance for the sake of triumphing over its rival, the socialist vote being estimated at 20,000, and therefore an element of no inconsiderable strength. In case such a "deal" is arranged, the republicans have an opportunity to show themselves as broad-minded as the democrats showed themselves when they came to the support of the republican candidate for mayor against the socialists at the last municipal election. There should be no hesitancy in reciprocating in this case by republican support of Judge Gary.—Boston Post.

Adam Forepaugh has bought of J. K. McGregor, of Wichita, Kansas, for $10,000 it is said, the mammoth ox "John Sherman," weighing 4,250 pounds, probably the largest "beef creature" in the world. This ox stands six feet four inches high, is eleven feet four inches in girth, three feet four inches from hip to hip, and eighteen feet from nose to tip of tail; he is as active as any ordinary steer, and it is though that when fatted he will weigh 4700 pounds. Forepaugh also bought of Mr. McGregor a Leaswater cow that weighs only 350 lbs., is thirty-four inches high, has had three calves, and gives three gallons of milk a day.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

WEDNESDAY, Oct. 12th.

PERSONAL.

Capt. James Burke, assistant keeper of Boon island light-station, is in from the island this week.

Mr. John S. Tuckerman was not in Boston this week, as was erroneously stated in an item of Wednesday morning.

Mr. Washington Stott has arrived home from his yearly vacation at Lowell and vicinity, reinvigorated mentally and physically.

Emil C. Pfeiffer of this city has been elected captain of the Harvard university boat crew this year; he will pull the stroke oar.

Mrs. Calvin L. Hayes, of Kittery, has gone to Nantasket, Mass., for the winter, to join her husband, who is in the employ of the Boston & Hingham Steamboat Co.

Mrs. Catherine A. Osgood and Mrs. George P. Philbrick of this city are visiting friends in Boston. Mrs. John L. Randall is visiting her sister, Mrs. M. W. Mahoney, in Haverhill, Mass.

Mr. Langdon M. Perkins, who has been in Birmingham, Alabama, since last June, engaged in working as a joiner, arrived home on the 11th inst. for a brief visit. He will make but a short stay, intending to return at once to Birmingham, where he reports business to be booming.

Mrs. J. C. Downing and child of Oakland, California, who have been passing the summer at the residence of Mr. Hanson Hoyt on Maplewood avenue, Christian Shore, left for the Pacific slope on Wednesday morning of this week, accompanied by Mrs. Geo. Crockett and child, also of Oakland, who have been visiting friends in this city and Maine during the summer.

Mr. Emery A. Dresser, who years ago was an active employe in the shipyards of Portsmouth, and afterward was city marshal during the civil war, is on a periodical visit to this city. Mr. Dresser is interested in keeping in repair his family lot at the south cemetery, like many other former residents here. He has been for the last nineteen years on service as a policeman in one of the most difficult stations at South Boston, and expects to be retired next year on a pension. Although now somewhat advanced in years he still presents a hale and hearty appearance.

"THE STREETS OF NEW YORK."

The play is presented by George C. Boniface and a company equal to all its requirements. Mr. Boniface repeated the success that he won here last year, when for the first time he assumed the role of Tom Badger, made so famous by Frank Mayo. He puts so much spirit into his acting that one cannot fail to be thoroughly interested when he is on the stage. He is always good, from his first appearance as the banker's clerk of very easy morals in the prologue, to the end of the last act, when he pronounces a blessing upon those who have been made happy by his generous efforts in their behalf.—Boston Globe.

At Music hall to-morrow evening, with special scenery and all the needed stage effects. Tickets at Goodrich's.

BURGLARY IN KITTERY.

The store of Mr. James O. Trefethen at Kittery Foreside, in which is also kept the post-office, was entered on the night of the 11th inst. by unknown parties, who opened a rear window by springing the catch with a knife passed between the sashes at the point of meeting. Three holes were drilled in the safe, two of them passing through, and the drill being broken off in the third one; a piece of paper, twisted into a tunnel, was found on top of the safe, and is supposed to have been intended to use in pouring powder in the holes, but the thieves were evidently frightened away at that stage of their proceedings. Had they succeeded in opening the safe they would have found themselves poorly paid. There is no clue to the thieves.

COSTLY INDEPENDENCE.

The Dover Democrat of Oct. 11th gives the following instance in which the uppishness of officials had to be paid for with other people's money: "Early last week Lawyer Yeaton called upon the mayor of Dover and made a demand for the money due Mr. Trask, who got judgment against the city in the sum of $3750 at the last term of court. Mr. Yeaton says he was given to understand that the amount would be paid when the city got ready, and he waited until the 11th and then sent to Great Falls and called Sheriff Chick, who levied the execution upon the city, and they paid him $3851.18, or $43.27 more than it would have cost the city to have paid that execution on the lawyer's demand."

MARITIME NOTES.

Ship Gov. Goodwin, Lester master, sailed from Yokohama, Japan, for Hong Kong, Sept. 5th.

The ship Granite State, of this port, Ross master, sailed from Shanghai Sept. 4th for New York via Hong Kong.

Messrs. Bell and Watson, the owner and designer of the cutter Thistle, were dined by the New York yacht club on Tuesday night, Oct. 11th. Gen. Paine was present as a guest. Mr. Bell said that everything in connection with the yacht races had been done fairly and in a liberal spirit.

The schooner Edgar S. Foster, of Beverly, Mass., arrived at Gloucester on the 11th inst. from the Grand banks with 250,000 lbs. of codfish. This was her third fare from the banks this season, her total catch being 700,000 lbs., and she is high line of the bank codfishing fleet this year. Her captain and all her crew belong in Pubnico, Nova Scotia.

AN IMPORTANT DECISION.

The supreme judicial court of Maine, law term, has just made an important decision in a case regarding a blunder made by a telegraph operator in sending a message, said message not having been "repeated at the expense of the sender," though written on a blank which bore on its back a stipulation that the company should not be held liable, beyond the amount paid for sending the message, for any damages which might result from any negligence or error of its servants in transmitting it, unless it was so repeated. Fred W. Ayer, a business man in Bangor, sent a message by telegraph, and by mistake of the operator a word was left out, by reason of which Mr. Ayer was a loser, and he sued the telegraph company for the amount of his loss. Below is the decision of the court:

The dropping of an important word in the transmission of a message by telegraph is prima facie evidence of negligence on the part of the telegraph company, unless explained or accounted for. The stipulation upon telegraph blanks that the company shall not be liable for the negligence of itself or any of its servants, in case of a mistake or omission in transmitting the message, unless the message is repeated at expense of sender, is void, being against public policy. As between the sender and receiver of a message by telegraph, any loss occasioned by a change of the terms of the message during transmission must fall upon the party who elected that means of communication for that message. Such party has his remedy against the telegraph company, in case the error resulted from its negligence. Judgment for the plaintiff for $80, with interest from day of writ.

The Capt. Bush house on State street, occupied by Dr. Clark, has been bought by Mrs. Wm. A. Plaisted, who will immediately occupy it as a residence.

There were a number of loads of hay on the Parade on the 12th inst., which sold at $16 a ton. The traditional basket wagon was also on hand.

At the Grand Encampment of Odd Fellows of the State of New Hampshire, at Concord, Oct. 11th, Albert R. Junkins of this city was elected grand senior warden for the ensuing year.

The annual meeting of the Lincoln club of New Hampshire was held at Concord on the evening of the 11th inst. Hon. Charles H. Sawyer of Dover was re-elected president, and M. J. Pratt of Concord treasurer. Charles E. Batchelder, Esq., of this city, and Hon. Martin A. Haynes of Gilford, were elected among the vice presidents.

At a meeting of the Portsmouth Trust & Guarantee Co., held on the 10th inst., William Ward was elected a director of the corporation in place on Hon. Daniel Marcy, resigned.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair of this city appeared before the judiciary committee of the legislature on the 12th inst., and flatly contradicted different statements made by witnesses during the investigation regarding the alleged attempts at bribery.

The Concord railroad will pay a semi-annual dividend of five per cent Nov. 1st.

The Boston & Maine railroad managers have purchased for $2600 a big hill of gravel in South Berwick, and will use it in constructing the embankment for the double track along that section of the western division.

The Old Orchard Campmeeting Association it is said propose to charge for admission to their grounds after this year, and to use the money collected in this way in making some much-needed improvements on their property. They will probably find that an admission fee will tend very strongly to keep the masses away from the meetings.

Mrs. Martha Stead had a house warming at her home on South Pine street last night. There were present about fifty members of the Good Templars' society of this city and Portsmouth, and Grand Worthy Chief Templar G. A. Bailey of Manchester. Singing and other amusements were enjoyed until time for supper, when all sat down to a fine banquet. All the good things one could ask for were there. The party broke up about midnight, and the Portsmouth party, numbering about twenty-five, returned home in a 'bus after that hour.—Dover Democrat, Oct. 11th.

DARTMOUTH ITEMS.

HANOVER, N. H., Oct. 10th.

Several records were broken last Wednesday and Thursday in the college field sports. Those establishing a new record for the college are entitled to a gold medal from the Dartmouth Athletic Association.

The feature in which the most interest was centered was the tug-of-war between the class teams of '90 and '91. Much to the surprise of the most of the college, and to the enjoyment of the upper classes, as their teams were defeated by '90 last year, the trial was won by the freshmen.

The base ball game between '90 and '88, Thursday afternoon, resulted in a score of eleven to four in favor of '88.

The college trustees have advised the faculty to expel any student writing or publishing any libellous article concerning the instructors or college, on account of some of the articles that have appeared in the Boston and New York dailies at various times, criticising the action taken by the faculty in different cases. "Now it's all right, it's all right, darling," said Mrs. Workhard, "I have tested the matter thoroughly. One bottle of Salvation Oil will cure your pain in the back, and only costs twenty-five cents."

It is believed that at least thirty lives were lost by the collision of trains at Kouts Ind., most of the victims being burned to death while pinned under the wreck. The reticence of the railroad officials in giving information is strongly denounced by the western press, and by persons who had or feared they had friends on board the ill-fated train.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

A Pair at Carlsbad.

"There go the little cripple and her father," said Lena, peering through the trees, as a little donkey-cart drawn by a particularly neat little donkey wound its way up the path beneath them. An immense Englishman, with probably the largest foot that was ever appended to a man, was walking along beside it, puffing, and steaming, and blowing, but walking with dogged determination. He wore a suit of gigantic tennis flannels, a pair of gigantic tennis shoes, and a gigantic soft hat which flopped about his ears and shoulders like a huge leaf. Every proportion about him was gigantic and every line about him was round. In the cart sat a proud, imperious-looking beautiful young girl. She was trim, shapely, and elegant, from the crown of her proudly poised head to the sole of her shapely foot, whose boot glistened in the sunlight as she sat. But upon the seat beside her lay a pair of elegant crutches.

"Did you ever see such a devoted father?" asked Lena. "We have happened to come across them so many times since our arrival, and the little procession is always like this. They are always together and the old gentleman is always so interested. Poor little girl, she is as pretty as a flower, but she looks as proud as a Duchess."

"She is a Duchess," said Mr. Van Skaak, who seemed to know a little of every one and everything, which was perhaps the secret of Fred's penchant for him, "and a very historical name she bears. They are the Duke and Duchess of Wellington."

"It is a pity the Iron Duke did not make arrangements to transmit his nose to the entire family," said Mr. Schermerhorn a little irreverently, for the ladies were quite overcome at being near so great a name. "He is certainly not an engaging-looking person."

Mr. Van Skaak looked distinctly pained.

"I have often seen this lady in the hunting-field during her engagement to the Duke," he said. "She was one of the best riders in England, and certainly the most fearless. But she tried too wide a ditch once and was thrown, poor little lady. She was picked up badly wounded, and with her leg so shattered that it became necessary to cut it off altogether. It was amputated so completely that surgery can give her no artificial aid, and she is condemned to those crutches for life." A glint of sunlight fell upon their silver mountings as he spoke, and the little cart disappeared in the windings of the forest. Every one says "Poor little thing!" and seems to consider the story finished.

"But you do not believe," said Mr. Van Skaak with the aggrieved air of one whose point has not been taken, "the Duke did not throw her over, as every one expected he would. It was thought rather nice of him—and she was not a rich woman."—Letter to San Francisco Argonaut.

The Education Superstition.

It is a fact at this day that the vast majority of pupils in attendance at our colleges do not know what they want. It is also a fact that the parents who send them do not know what value their children are to get for the sacrifice made. They have a vague idea that their children are to be "educated," and are accordingly to take their place among the first of the land. This simple conception is carefully coddled at commencements, where the public are congratulated on the fact that they are to be taken under the protecting wing of the "educated!" (i. e., the college-bred) man. The common people are elegantly assured that they will be supremely blessed, in some mysterious and unspecified manner, by the presence of "educated" men among them; while at the same time it appears that the "educated" man will have a very nice and agreeable job in taking care of the public. And the amazing superstition that a study of books (and those, too, almost irrespective of the wants of either pupil or public) is education, persists in defiance of all sense and experience.

The same simple faith appears in the making of charitable bequests. No statistics regarding educational endowments are afforded by the census, nor are any at hand, hence the subject can not be presented in its full aspect. But we know that endowments are daily announced in the newspapers. Young men and women are to be hired to study theology by means of fellowships, to look at the stars, to study the languages, and the sciences, or whatever the whim of the "benefactor" happens to be. The climax is reached when, as was lately announced in the London Times, an immense sum is set aside from the ordinary course of business to aid young men in becoming civil engineers. That education, if valuable, should be paid for like everything else of value; that it should stand on the same footing as all other things, and that its value is best secured by its ability to appeal to the spontaneous desires of the public, and to win its financial support precisely as Booth or Patti or Theodore Thomas win their support—that is to say, by receiving value for value given—seems to be a conception which, though it has reached many people in a confused way, has not yet penetrated educational circles.—Charles S. Ashley, in Popular Science Monthly.

One of the men who lets boats on the Pawtuxet says he has some new ones that are bound to suit unmarried couples, for there is only one seat in the boat, and it will be a case of two souls with but a single thwart.

LITTLE JOE.

By JAMES OTIS,

AUTHOR OF "TOBY TYLER," "MR. STUBBS' BROTHER," "TIM AND TIP," "RAISING THE PEARL," "LEFT BEHIND," "SILENT PETE," ETC.

"Say, be you a doctor?"

It was a small, oddly dressed boy who asked this question of a burly, red-faced veterinary surgeon on Twenty-fifth street, near Third avenue; and probably the visitor would have been turned away with a very gruff answer but for the look of anxiety in the brown eyes, which seemed unnaturally large because of his thin face.

"If a horse that was worth the trouble should get his leg broke I could set it, but what do you mean by asking that question, and what have you got there? Speak up quick, for I can't spend much time fooling with a customer like you," the man replied, as he gazed at the boy's face and then at a suspicious-looking lump under the curiously patched coat which hid from view every portion of the visitor save his head, hands and feet.

"It's a dog what got run over by a 'xpress wagon," the boy replied, as he unbuttoned the ancient and ill-fitting garment, exposing to view a small brown terrier, who yelped with pain when he was thus forced to change his position.

"Both legs broken, eh?" the surgeon said, after a hasty glance. "What are you going to do with this dog if I set the broken bones?"

"I'll keep him 'round somewhere. P'raps they'll give me a box over to the grocery store, an' he couldn't want anything better'n that. Say, how much will you charge?"

"My fee would be $5 for such a job as that from anybody else; but seein's how you ain't likely to be overburdened with cash, I'll do it for a dollar."

"Wouldn't—I mean, can—say, if I'll give you ten cents down, an' bring five every day till it's all paid, won't you mend him?"

"Do you think you can afford to throw away so much money on a dog that isn't worth a cent more than his hide would bring?"

"I don't s'pose he is a very nice one, else his master wouldn't a' left him when he got run over; but he looks like a poor, lonesome little feller, same's I am, an' we'd feel kinder nice bein' good to each other."

Once more the red-faced man looked down sharply at the boy, and then began his surgical work, as he asked in a gruff voice:

"What's your name?"

"Joe Morgan. The fellows call me Little Joe 'cause I ain't got much size yet, an' I guess a good many of 'em don't know I own any other name. I'll bring you the money every day till the dollar's paid."

"Haven't you got any relatives?"

"Not one. Jack Greely's father said I must 'a had somebody what belonged to me; but I don't know anything about it. Are you goin' to do the job on trust?"

"Can't you see that I'm working at it now? I shall expect you to come here with the cash every morning."

"I won't skip one if I can help it. How long will it be before he can walk?"

"In a couple of months he'll be all right."

"There, I reckon he's all right now, and you had better take him away. What's his name?"

"I'll call him Doctor, I guess," Joe replied, as he pushed the ten-cent piece yet nearer the surgeon, "an' then both of us will be sure to remember how good you was to trust us for the rest of the money."

It was not posible to run without causing the cripple pain, but Joe walked at the best possible speed toward the ferry, for it was near the time when Slip Johnson, who brought him the evening papers, might be expected.

Slip Johnson sold papers in the vicinity of the ferry, but did not confine himself to any particular locality. Three months previous he had taken as much pleasure in teasing the small, delicate-looking boy who was trying to establish a news-stand in the corner of a lumber yard as any of his companions, but he lost all zest for such sport one evening when he fe]l from the pier and no one save Joe had the courage to leap into the water and save him.

After that Slip did all he could to show that his enmity had been swallowed up by friendship, and, among other kindly acts, brought regularly from down town the stock in trade for the lumber-yard stand.

Joe was feeding the patient when Slip arrived with the evening's stock of papers, and, as a matter of course, was introduced to Doctor, who looked so helpless as he lay on a bed of paper in a box, with both hindlegs, swathed in bandages, that the visitor's sympathy was immediately aroused.

There was no time, however, for extended conversation. The afternoon papers were already in demand.

It was just as the last copy had been sold, and Joe was making ready to go across the street for supper, that Si Hodgdon stalked in front of the board-pile, standing there silent and motionless, as if he had come simply for the purpose of being admired.

There could be no question but that he was dressed in his very best, and Joe looked at him in open-mouthed astonishment before it was possible to speak.

"Well, you are fine!" Joe exclaimed. "What's the matter? Goin' to take a trip for your health, an' come to say good-by?"

"I am goin' away, an' that's a fact. I've struck a chance on one of them big steamers that run to Cubs, an' I've got to be on board tonight, sure. Can't you see to Alice for me, and git Granny Tousey to take care of her? I'll pay a dollar a week for her board, an' here's 50 cents down."

Si laid the coin on the stand in front of Joe, and turned away as if his business was ended, when his friend asked, as a shade of perplexity came over his face:

"Why don't you let her stay where she is?"

"Uncle Dick an' his wife fight so much that I don't dare to," Si said, moving off as if every second of time was precious just then. "They've both gone away now, an' she's all alone in the house expectin' you'll come after her. I've got a chance to earn $20 a month, an' I'll lose it if I ain't on board before 7 o'clock. You see to her till I get back, an' I'll square things."

Si turned, as he ceased speaking, and darted up the street at full speed.

Joe picked up the coin and started in pursuit; but by the time he arrived at the corner Si was lost to view amid the throng of pedestrians.

"Why couldn't he a' waited till I told him I didn't have fifty more cents to pay the first week's board? He knows Granny Tousey won't let her come without she gets the money right up sharp."

Then he walked slowly back towards the lumber pile as if convinced that he could do nothing; but a single thought of the tiny little girl was sufficient to make him retrace his steps very rapidly.

Ten minutes later he was at the house where Si and his dwarfed sister had found the poorest apology of a home, and found Alice was awaiting his coming.

She was a tiny girl, hardly more than half as tall as Joe, although she was but two years younger; yet the life of deprivation she had led caused her to look much older, and there was something so winning and at the same time so sad in her face as she sat patiently on her small bundle of clothing in the cheerless room that Joe had not the courage to tell her how difficult it would be for him to do as Si proposed.

"Where's all the furniture gone?" he asked, as he looked around in surprise.

"Uncle Dick sold it when he went on the last spree," she said, taking up her small bundle, as if to show that she was ready to go with him.

"Well," Joe said with a sigh, "things can't be much worse wherever we find a chance for you to stay, an' we'll go off now, 'cause it's pretty near dark."

And the two children, one confiding most implicitly in the other, went out into the streets, where the evening shadows were lengthening into night, to search for that which is most difficult to find in this selfish world—a home.

This intensely interesting story will be continued in the next issue of the Boston Sunday Globe, Oct. 16. Be sure and get your newsdealer to leave you the Sunday Globe regularly.

I Am Proud

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

The local board of health at Springvale, Me., has closed the schools of the town on account of diphtheria.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

The Knights of Labor committee appointed to denounce the Baltimore & Ohio deal, brought in scathing resolutions at Minneapolis, and advised that a memorial be sent to Congress, and that the question of government telegraphs be brought before the public.

The action of Carter's Little Liver Pills is pleasant, mild and natural. They gently stimulate the liver, and regulate the bowels, but do not purge. They are sure to please. Try them.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite, cures headache, and refreshes the burdened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

Six women were suffocated and three others badly hurt during the partial burning of the northern insane asylum of Ohio at Newburgh, on the night of Oct. 12th.

Dislikes Public Schools.

At the laying of the cornerstone of the Roman Catholic parochial school at Middletown, Conn., on Sunday, Oct. 9th, Rev. Father Henry Kennerney of Pawtucket, R. I., the selected preacher for the occasion, denounced the American system of public schools as "heartless, headless and god-less." He called the common schools the schools of immorality, in which divorces originate, and said the system is managed by corrupt politicans. The bishop of the diocese and about twenty priests were on the platform. Fourteen prominent members of the Middletown Catholic church have published a protest against the sentiments expressed by Rev. Fr. Kennerney.

A Shot at Pan-Electric.

In St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 11th, Judge Thayer of the United States circuit court, in the case of the American Bell Telephone company against Phillip L. Rose et al., issued an order restraining the defendants from directly or indirectly making, using, selling or furnishing to other electric speaking telephones or telephonic apparatus embracing or embodying the inventions and improvements of patents granted to Alexander Graham Bell. The defendants were summoned to appear in the circuit court to argue the motion for temporary injunction. This legal step by the Bell company is more important than appears on the surface. The Phillip L. Rose et al. are Rose & Rein of St. Louis, who make instuments for the Pan-Electric company; hence the action is directly aimed at that concern.

The Dexter Bank Robbery.

On the evening of Feb. 22d, (Washington's birthday,) 1878, Treasurer J. W. Barron of the national and savings banks of Dexter, Me., was found in a dying condition in the vault of the bank, handcuffed, gagged, and with his skull crushed in, the door of the vault being locked, and the key lying on the floor outside. Some money and bonds belonging to the bank were missing, but not a large amount. At first it was supposed he had been murdered by robbers, for refusing to give up the combination of the safe, and he was regarded as a hero; but soon the bank officials gave out that he was a defaulter and thief, and that his death was a cunningly contrived scheme to shield his previously stainless name; and the latter theory a detective proved was at least plausible, by showing how a man could lock himself in the vault and leave the key outside. The contest waged hot for years between the partizans of the two theories, the fact that no valid reason could be adduced why the deceased treasurer should commit suicide not seeming to have much weight in the matter.

The mystery is now cleared up by the confession of Charles F. Stain that he, his father, David L. Stain of Franklin, Mass., Oliver Smith, alias Cromwell, of Walpole, Mass., "Billy" Scott, and three other scoundrels named Andrews, Thompson and Keely, planned the robbery of the bank, and would have succeeded but for the unexpected presence in the bank of the treasurer, who was murdered by the older Stain with a slungshot, and locked in the vault. David L. Stain and Oliver Cromwell were arrested in Massachusetts on the 12th inst., and passed through this city on the eleven o'clock A. M. train on the 13th, bound east, accompanied by several Maine officers, and reporters of the New York World and Boston Herald and Globe.

The officers of the Dexter bank who have for nine years succeeded, for the sake of a few dollars, in blackening the reputation of an honest man and causing the social ostracism of his afflicted widow, must feel very proud of their achievement just about now.

Col. Charles A. Sinclair and Hon. Frank Jones testified before the bribery investigating committee at Concord on Wednesday. Both emphatically contradicted the statements made connecting them with any attempt to bribe members of the legislature. Other witnesses and circumstances substantiate their statements, and the charges trumped up by Mr. Moore are shown to be false and groundless. Mr. Moore is noted for "biting off more than he can chew," as the saying goes, and he will come out consistent with his reputation in this affair.—Times.

The senate on the 12th inst. by a vote of fifteen to nine ordered the Hazen bill to a third reading on Thursday, the 13th, at eleven o'clock A. M. There were two reports from the railroad committee, the majority of three reporting in favor of the Hazen bill, and the minority of two in favor of the Atherton bill. Numerous amendments were offered to the Hazen bill, but they were merely obstructive, and the vote in every case was fifteen to nine. On the 13th, at the appointed hour, the bill as it came from the house was passed by sixteen to eight, and sent to the governor for his approval.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

FULLY INSURED.

The proprietor of this office on Thursday forenoon handed to an insurance agent, in the counting room of the office, the premium for insuring the premises, and deposited the receipt in the safe; and as he arose from so doing was led by circumstances to remark, "Well, I guess we are on fire now!" The cause of the remark was a heated funnel and smoking woodwork, caused by soot in the funnel and chimney having taken fire. Assistant Marshal Hurley came in with a fire extinguisher from the police station, set the machine to work, and though he was covered all over by burning soot from the fall of a section of the funnel, so judiciously directed the stream that the fire was soon extinguished without any damage to speak of. But it made a great mess of dirt on the floor, and we prefer to have fires in somebody else's office.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

OCT. TERM; Colt J.

In case Fairbanks, assignee, vs. Amoskeag National bank, the court handed down an opinion upon the question of mandamus.

Potter vs. Connecticut & Passumpsic River R. R. Co.; City of Manchester vs. Western Union Telegraph Co.; and Robinson vs. Ketrell, were continued.

Lang and others vs. Lynch; action to recover for a quantity of whiskey sold by the plaintiffs, who are wholesale dealers in Philadelphia, to Lynch, a former dealer in Portsmouth. The defence was that order for these liquors was solicited and taken in this state, and piff. had reasonable cause to believe that the whiskies were to be sold in New Hampshire in violation of the law of this state. Plaintiffs claimed that the order came from Lynch by letter, and the contract was lawfully made in Pennsylvania. Verdict for defendent. Hatch for piff.; Frink for deft.

United States vs. Geo. S. Leavitt, indictment for embezzling money-order books from the post-office at Exeter, which he claimed to have delivered to his successor, Mr. Hunnewell, as postmaster, and produced at the time a receipt, was tried on Wednesday, the 12th. The government by an expert attempted to establish that the receipt had been changed by inserting by another person than the one who wrote it, the books charged as having been embezzled by the late postmaster. Mr. Leavitt testified that he passed the books to his successor, and had a statement from the post-office department dated in January last that his accounts had been satisfactorily settled and a balance found due to him of a few dollars. The case was submitted without argument. The jury after a few minutes retirement to their room, returned a verdict of not guilty. Frink for United States; Kivel for Leavitt.

The following-named gentlemen were admitted to practice: Edgar F. Jones of Manchester, Stephen S. Jewett of Laconia, Jeremiah J. Doyle of Nashua.

Suits on the Knibbs patent claim were entered against the cities of Manchester, Concord, Nashua and Dover. They are brought in the name of Ruel Philbrook, trustee, and others. Hon. Wm. D. Foster appeared for the defendants.

MISS WILLARD'S ADDRESS.

At the Rockingham county conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union held in Greenland on the 5th inst., the president of the Portsmouth branch of the organization read an abstract of the address delivered by Miss Willard before the state convention of the union, and it was unanimously voted to request its publication by the local press. The paper is as follows:

A large audience assembled in Smyth's hall, Manchester, Wednesday evening, Sept. 28th, to listen to a lecture delivered by Miss Frances E. Willard of Evanston, Ill., National President of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. On the stage were Gov. Sawyer and members of the legislature, who had accepted an invitation from the convention to be present, also the various officers of of the New Hampshire W. C. T. U. A solo was rendered by Mrs. R. K. Horne, entitled "May I sing thy praise forever;" the audience then joined in singing the hymn, "What a friend we have in Jesus," which was followed by Scripture reading and prayer, by Rev. Mr. Knox of Littleton. State Pres. Mrs. N. H. Knox then introduced Miss Willard, who was received with hearty applause.

Her subject for the evening was "Modern Temperance Reform."

She commenced her address by stating something about the work which was then being due in Rhode Island by the temperance workers of that state; having arrived from Newport that day, she could bring a good report from the 250 delegates who were gathered there in convention, full of zeal and enthusiasm. A good report was given of the enforcement of the prohibitory law in that commonwealth—a far different report from that made by the newspapers. In Newport itself, the watering-place of the country, the summer center of wealth, fashion and wine-drinking, they had a man for mayor who has enforced the law, and who has been triumphantly re-elected, showing that the laws may be enforced. She recalled to mind the case in New York city last winter, wherein Mayor Hewitt said that the saloons must be closed on Sunday, and the commissioner of police said all he wanted was officers enough. She compared the law to an axe, but says no axe, except in the Arabian Nights, ever went hickety-back at a tree on its own motion. What is needed is the officer behind the ordinance, the enforcer behind the law.

Miss Willard gave a lengthy account of the beginning of the W. C. T. U. work in this country, carrying her auditors on step by step. She referred to the great change that had taken place since we began this reform work. First we saw and tried to help only the drunkard in the gutter, and next we came to see that the saloon itself ought to be included in our limit; we soon saw that something more must be thought of; now, she says, let us go back along the path of life until we come to the boys, then turn upon them the mighty forces of education. It may be interesting to reflect upon the progress of the movement.

Fifty years ago a total abstainer could not get his life insured, because the companies thought that a man who didn't know enough to mix himself a good warm toddy after he had been out in the cold and wet, didn't know enough to become a first class risk. Now, from fourteen per cent upward is deducted from the premium in favor of the total abstainer from intoxicating drinks. Fifty years ago a New England minister preached from his pulpit against total abstinence, proving it to the satisfaction of his congregation that God made alcohol, that he made nothing in vain, and that he must have made alcohol for men to drink, because the lower animals refused it. She alluded to the length of time it once took for a new idea to get around in the average brain and find its equilibrium, which was about twenty-five years; but now, in the days of telegraphs and telephones and all modern science, it only takes about ten years for the new idea to find its place. We have not been running, we have been walking; we have not been walking, we have been crawling—inching our way along to these heights of answered prayer. We have learned that in all our work we must be as cheerful as sunshine, as resistless as gravitation; that we must have malice towards none, but charity for all; and must remember that some have not their eyes open yet, any more than we once had. We must go forward temperately and calmly. It is only by the calm and steady putting of the argument that we shall succeed. We must seek out the two final factors—the officer behind the ordinances, and the going away with the saloon politician. What to do with him—that is the crucial test; he is here, the survival of the most unfit. The speaker's belief was, that he would disappear off the face off the earth in the next twenty-five years. Men say they will not go into politics, because politics are so degraded; from my point of view, as a temperance worker, there is nothing so disloyal and unpatriotic as for men to leave politics in the hands of those who are not fit to cast a vote.

Miss Willard related her experience and failure in trying to get a prohibitory constitutional amendment plank inserted in the platforms of the old parties in 1884, and how, finally, the only home such a plank found was in the platform of the party of prohibition. Continuing, she said we think the traffic in poisonous liquors can be best and most controlled by prohibition, though we have never said that we expect immediate success, even if such laws as we ask for could be enacted. The prohibition party is the one the women must pray for, encourage and support; we want our spirit of prohibition embodied in the strong men of the country, embodied in the heart and hand when it may be cast into the urn that controls the destiny of nations. She spoke of the issue that would be tried in Tennessee the following day, and said if prohibition failed, it would be because of the uneducated negro vote.

The woman's ballot was spoken of as not being a side issue, but a method of securing prohibition; the granting of woman's ballot in Kansas, is closing the saloons of that place; in Washington territory the saloons were closed by local option, caused by the women; even the south is waking up to the necessity of giving the ballot to women, but Vermont will probably be the first northern state to grant municipal suffrage to the sex. In this connection the speaker paid a high compliment to Senator Blair, for his interest and efforts in behalf of woman suffrage; her reference to this distinguished citizen of New Hampshire was enthusiastically cheered, Miss Willard saying that she would gladly spoil the best pair of gloves she had in applauding such a man.

In closing her lecture, she said she wished to speak of the new departure that had been taken in another direction. In advance of everything else that threatens the safety of our American institutions, are the twin-serpents of impurity and intemperance. These must be strangled if we would live. England is far ahead of us in this respect. Josephine Butler, the wife of the canon of Winchester cathedral, Ellie Hopkins of London, and the bishops of Truro and Durham, have inaugurated this great work of purification, and the young manhood and womanhood of England, and the church, are enlisted in this warfare for purity. Thousands upon thousands have taken the pledge of the White Cross Society. The Episcopal church in this country has adopted this pledge, and others are following the noble example set by that denomination. Dr. DaCosta of New York, rector of the Episcopal church of St. John the Evangelist, is especially prominent in this work, and is drawing to himself hosts of helpers.

Finally, I have the thought that there may be such a thing as chivalry in women. As the knight of old went forth in armor to battle for the cross, while his lady waved her handkerchief from the tower, bidding him God-speed in his crusade,—as the men of that day in their chivalry threw their protecting safeguards about women, so must we in this day, and with true chivalric spirit, use our influence and do the best we can to throw the strongest safeguards around the pathway of boyhood life. It is this new spirit that is going to give us the new America. This is a part of temperance work, and we must strike at all its phases. This concluded the lecture on "Modern Temperance Reform." Miss Willard took her seat amid hearty applause.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

The Ignorant Contractor.

Colonel McCracken, U. S. A., was the chief quartermaster, stationed at San Antonio, Tex. He had advertised for bids to supply the post with corn, and the contract was to be awarded on a certain day. Colonel McCracken was believed to be an honorable and conscientious officer, who would not take a bribe under any circumstances.

Tom Rowell, of the firm of Rowell & Smith, was a sharp, shrewd business man, who was very anxious to get the contract to supply the post of San Antonio with corn, but he did not think it was quite safe to offer the quartermaster a bribe, as he had done on previous occasions with other quartermasters. After thinking over the matter for some time he adopted the following plan to carry out his purpose:

He called at Quartermaster McCracken's office, and asked that officer in an insinuating manner to see that he got fair play when the bids were opened. Col. McCracken replied in a very dignified manner.

"The contract, sir, will be awarded to the lowest and best bidder."

Tom Rowell took up his hat and bowed himself out. In doing so he dropped on the floor an envelope containing five one thousand dollar bills, the name of the firm of Rowell & Smith being on the envelope.

Rowell immediately went to the office of the chief of police, and informed him that he had lost an addressed envelope containing five one thousand dollar bills.

Rowell argued in this way:

"If Colonel McCracken keeps the money, I'll get the contract, and I can well afford to let him keep the $5,000. If he, on the other hand, thinks I am trying to bribe him and gets mad about it, I will simply say I dropped the envelope on the floor accidentally, and had no intention of bribing him, and that I didn't know where I had lost the money."

Rowell had scarcely returned to his office from notifying the police of his loss, when in rushed Colonel McCracken, his face flushed, very much excited and holding the envelope in his hand.

"What do you mean, sir" he exclaimed, "by trying to bribe a United States officer? This is an insult, sir," and he slammed the envelope down on the table.

Rowell made out that he was very angry at the insinuation. He pounded on the desk with his fist and roared out:

"And what do you mean, sir, by charging me with attempting to bribe anybody? I merely asked you to see that my bid was properly considered. I dropped that envelope without knowing it, and I have been hunting all over town for it. I want you to understand, sir, that I am a gentleman, even if I am only a civilian."

"Now, that's just a little thin," retorted Colonel McCracken.

"Well, sir, I'll prove to you that you are mistaken; and then I shall expect an apology," replied Rowell. And going to the telephone he requested the chief of police to come immediately to the office of Rowell & Smith. That official was there in a few minutes and fully confirmed Rowell's statement that he had notified the police of the loss of the money as soon as he had missed it.

Col. McCracken was overwhelmed with mortification at having unjustly accused an innocent man of having attempted to bribe him. He was profuse in his apologies, which Rowell at length accepted.

The bids were opened next day, and it was found that Rowell's bid was not the lowest, but Colonel McCracken feeling that he owed Rowell some reparation, decided that the bondsmen of the lower bidder were not good, and gave the contract to Rowell, who cleared upwards of $25,000 out of it, without having to spend a cent to lubricate anybody.—Alex Sweet in New York Mercury.

A Plea for Bangs.

I wonder why it is that everyone—the newspapers in particular—should be so "down" upon bangs? I have waited in silent indignation for some of my sister women to speak up in defense of the style, but though they have clung to it tenaciously none has dared to lift up her voice against public (unanimous) opinion.

Now, I declare the fashion was both sensible and becoming, though, of course, like other good things, capable of being carried to an extreme. A young and pretty girl was positively bewitching with her fluffy or straight hair shading her smooth brow, while to women not as young as they would like to be it was a perfect boon to have the softening effect of the drooping hair and the lines of the forehead so prettily hidden.

It must needs be a young and pretty face that looks well with the hair combed smoothly back, while to the majority of women the pompadour style gives an unpleasantly bold look.

Besides, I can't for the life of me see why women should not be allowed to comb their hair as they please without such a fuss being made over it. When men took a notion to have their heads shaved as bald as a baby's and displaying every bump, as if they had just come from a phrenologist, we all knew it was ugly, yet you did not hear us ranting about it in the newspapers, or denying them religious privileges on that account.

I suppose it doesn't matter so much about men's looks, only one likes fair play, especially in a free country.—Daisy Dean.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have the disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ..... and ..... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and healthy from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. A brough force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Terrible are the Ravages

Upon the system inflicted by diseases of the kidneys and bladder. They wreck the constitution more speedily in some cases than consumption and other maladies of a fatal pulmonary type. As you value your life, arrest a tendency to debility, and consequent inactivity of the renal organs, should you experience any such. Infuse vigor and activity into the vitally important secretive action of the kidneys with that salutary diuretic, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. The proper degree of stimulation is imparted by it to the bladder also, when that organ is sluggish. With this timely check, Bright's disease, diabetes, catarrh of the bladder, and other kindred disorders, may be prevented. Liver complaint, constipation, nervous ailments and rheumatism, are likewise conquerable with this sovereign household remedy. Against the effects of exposure in a damp or otherwise inclement weather, it is a benign safeguard, and revives strength after undue fatigue.

Suit has been entered against the Church of the Holy Trinity, New York, under the law against foreign contract labor, for "importing" a rector from England.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. They are not only a positive cure, but a sure preventive if taken when the approach is felt. Carter's Little Liver Pills act directly on the liver and bile, and in this way remove the cause of disease without first making you sick by a weakening purge. If you try them you will not be disappointed.

Dyspepsia

Makes the lives of many people miserable, and often leads to self-destruction. We know of no remedy for dyspepsia more successful than Hood's Sarsaparilla. It acts gently, yet surely and efficiently, tones the stomach and other organs, removes the faint feeling, creates a good appetite, cures headache, and refreshes the burdened mind. Give Hood's Sarsaparilla a fair trial. It will do you good.

One of the Students.

Some students at Dartmouth hired a donkey on Wednesday, the 12th inst., and tied him in front of President Bartlett's desk in the old chapel. He was standing there when the president went in to preside over the exercises in the afternoon. The president cut one of the strings that bound the animal, and then, turning to the students, said: "Gentlemen, I see one of you has lost his brother." The speakers of the afternoon were compelled to do their parts with the donkey standing beside them in quiet content. The disorder before the exercises was terrific. At the close the animal was taken down and returned to his owner, from whom he had been hired for the occasion.

Is a State Reform School a Boarding House.

A despatch of Oct. 13th from Meriden, Conn., says: "At the quarterly meeting of trustees of the state reform school here, the principal subject of consideration was the complaint of a Farmington dairyman that the superintendent of schools violated the oleomargarine law, because he fed the imitation butter to the 400 boys in the school, and did not display a sign to that effect on the premises. The trustees decided to take legal advice to ascertain if the reform school should be considerad as a boarding house, in which event a sign, bearing in plain black Roman letters, not less than one-half inch wide and four inches long, on white ground, the legend: 'Oleomargarine used here,' must be placed over or next the main outer entrance of the school. The superintendent does not deny using oleomargarine, but says the boys don't object, and the state appropriation for their board is so small he cannot afford to give them farmer's butter. He doubts, however, if the school can be classed as a boarding house. Farmers are deeply interested in the outcome of this matter, as it furnishes an important precedent."

'Bout Ship.

The New York Herald is going back, if it has not already gone back, on Cleveland. It has been Cleveland's most ardent and unconditional support from the start, but it has called a halt, and comes out square for the republican state ticket in New York headed by Col. Fred Grant, son of the late Gen. Grant. It says in half a dozen places on its editorial page of the 12th inst:

By all means vote for Col. Fred Grant, the republican nominee for secretary of state, the son of a worthy sire, who was the savior of the Union.

The owner of the Herald is just home from Europe, where he lives most of the time, and he is shaking the Cleveland mugwumpism out of the concern, as it ought to be shaken out of everything in this country.—Dover Democrat.

The City Must Pay.

Judge Patterson of New York has decided that the city of New York owes the Tenth National bank the sum of $348,849, money loaned to the corrupt county court house commission in 1871. Tweed, Ingersoll and Connelly were directors in the bank, and the corporation counsel decided that the fraudulent actions of those men, who were also commissioners, proved that the loans were not made in good faith.

Why He Gave Him His Seat.

A young man politely offered his seat in a street-car to an old gentleman, and then went and stood on the platform.

"I am glad to see, sir," said a fellow-passenger, "a young man like you pay that respect and deference to old age which it should always command."

The Beauty of the Mosquito.

It ought to console people who are bitten this summer by the mosquito to be told by a scientist that the mosquito is wondrously beautiful. "Place one," he says, "under a microscope. Adjust the lenses. Now place your eye to the eyepiece. Presto! The tiny dirt-colored speck has vanished, and in its place appears the most radiant and gorgeous creature which the mind can conceive of. "No, Maria," said a Jersey Granger to his wife as they were about retiring at a summer-resort hotel, "I think I know how to blow out the gas. I brought something along that will fix it." "Chicago capitalists are about to start smelt works at Eau Claire," says a dispatch. "Well, what in the name of heaven are 'smelt works?' Is it a gine factory, or a bone-boiling establishment? Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, Oct. 14th.

Edward P. Philbrook, for drunkenness, was sentenced to sixty days at the county farm and to pay $6.90 costs. "Chum Pitts" was out of Brentwood this time at least three days—possibly four—an unusually long vacation for him to take.

A young man named Beck was brought in on a warrant sworn out by the management of the Webster house, for non-payment of a board bill contracted last October, when the young man and a companion were in this city obtaining advertising matter. Beck is now, he says, employed as agent for a Boston paper. His case was continued until two o'clock A. M. on the 15th, he being ordered to recognize in the sum of $100 for his appearance at that time.

CIRCUIT COURT OF THE UNITED STATES.

At the present term of the Circuit court, in the suit of the Boston, Concord & Montreal railroad against the Boston & Lowell railroad corporation, Judge Colt heard the counsel on motions filed by complainant on the 8th inst. Mr. Burns in behalf of the Lowell railroad stated to the court that the case had but just reached this court. The answer filed in obedience to the order of the state court, was drawn somewhat hastily in order to be seasonably filed in that court. That Messrs. R. Olney and J. H. Benton, Jr., of Boston, were associated in the defence, and counsel would like time to confer as to the possible requirement of an amendment to the order. An order was made giving the defendant until the next rule day, Nov. 7th, in which to file an amendment to their answer. The motion that evidence be taken orally was allowed, and Mr. Hackett, the clerk, was appointed special examiner to take the testimony. As to time for taking the testimony the court decided the complainant's testimony to be taken in thirty days after the next rule day, the defendant to have forty-five days thereafter, and the complainant's rebuttal in fifteen days. In regard to the complainant's motion for temporary relief, as prayed for in the bill, pending litigation, the court intimated that a question of that magnitude involving the appointment of a receiver, etc., would be hardly proper to be considered at this time.

SUNDAY SERVICES.

Second Advent church chapel, Hanover street; Love feast, 10:30 A. M.; Sunday school, 12:00 M.; praise service, 7:30 P. M.; preaching, 2:45 and 8:00 P. M. Prayer meetings Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:45. Bible study Thursday evening at 7:45. All invited. Ed. Bryant McLellan, pastor; (residence No. 13 Elm street.)

Methodist Episcopal church, State street, Rev. O. S. Baketel, pastor. Preaching Sunday morning at 10:30, followed by sunday school in the church; prayer meeting at 7:30 Sunday evening; and prayer meeting Tuesday evening, and class meeting Thursday evening. Communion the first Sabbath in each month, at 2:45 P. M.

Universalist church, Pleasant street. Rev. Lay H. Fisher, pastor. Services at 10:30 A. M. Sunday school in vestry at 2:45 P. M.

At the Middle street (Baptist) church, Rev. W. H. Alden, D. D., pastor, services at 10:30 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.; Sunday school at the church at 12:00 M.

South Parish, (Unitarian,) State street. Service 10:30 A. M. Vesper service at 7:30 P. M. Sunday school at 3:00 P. M., in chapel on Court street. Rev. Alfred Gooding, pastor.

Christian church, on Court street, near Middle street. All are welcome. Preaching at 10:30 A. M. and 7:30 P. M.; Sunday school directly after morning service. Prayer meeting Sunday at 2:30 P. M. Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:30.

At the Freewill Baptist church, on Pearl street, (now without a pastor,) service at 2:45 o'clock P. M.; Sabbath school at 10:30 A. M.; prayer meeting at 7:30 P. M. Prayer meeting Tuesday and Friday evenings at 7:45.

Sunday being the third anniversary of Rev. Alfred Gooding's installation as pastor of the Unitarian church, the following programme will be performed at the morning service by the choir, (Mrs. Frank Williams, soprano; Miss Emma Becker, contralto; Miss Lizzie Davis, organist; Mr. Thomas Chase, tenor, and Mr. H. L. Harlow, basso and director,) assisted by Miss Mabel Cotton, pianist:

"Holy, Holy, Holy Lord God," Ch. Gounod; solo by Mr. Chase.

"Ave Maria," for voice, piano, organ and violin, adapted to the 1st prelude of J. S. Bach by Ch. Gounod; soprano solo, Mrs. Williams; piano, Miss Cotton; organ, Miss Davis; violin, Mr. Harlow.

Closing march, Mendelssohn; organ, violin and piano.

Rev. John Hainer will preach in the Court street Christian church on Sunday.

"The Golden Rule" will be the subject of Rev. Dr. Alden's lecture on Sunday evening at the Middle street Baptist church.

The schooner Eliza Levensaler, Capt. Kellar, of Thomaston, Me., arrived in this harbor Friday morning, having been in collision off Cape Cod with a Philadelphia schooner on Thursday. The Eliza Levensaler's jibboom was carried away and her stem started, the damages amounting to about $100.

Capt. Rashe Trefethen, of the steamer Mystic, started for New York on Friday. Capt. Wm. Locke will have charge of the steamer during his absence.

During the temporary absence of our genial townsman, Mr. John W. Gerrish, on his annual visit to the Hub this week, his restaurant near the railroad station is being run by one of our city officials, Hon. Abram Shaw Waldron, who dispenses the succulent sandwich or the enlivening glass of XXX with an easy grace which delights all beholders.

A bare-knuckle prize fight for $250 a side came off Oct. 12th two miles below Newmarket, between "Jimmy" Haley of Dover and "Billy" Bradbury of Lewiston, Me. The affair was kept very quiet, and only about twenty people saw the ruffianly exhibition. Seven heavy rounds were fought in twenty minutes, both men being badly punished. Haley out-stayed his opponent, and won the fight.

The Portsmouth Fire Insurance Association has been chartered to do a fire insurance business in this city, and it is said will be organized and commence business at once.

Dr. J. J. Berry has taken the house No. 98 State street, nearly opposite the Rockingham, and will occupy it on Monday, the 17th inst.

"Duck" Kelly, Leander F. Paterson and Frank W. Cook have been locked up in Alfred jail in default of $500 bail each, they having been caught in the act of attempting to break into a house in the outskirts of Saco occupied by Mrs. Sarah Lord and another old lady.

The bullet which Capt. Fred White of Cape Porpoise fired into his head on the 9th inst., in consequence of a quarrel with his best girl, has been extracted, and his physician thinks he may recover.

In the suit of Mary Marston vs. the Grand Trunk Railway company for $40,000 damages because of injuries received in 1864, tried at Portland, Me., the judge ruled that the Grand Trunk Railway company, being a foreign corporation, could not take advantage of the Maine statute of limitation which was set up in defence. The jury, however, rendered a verdict for the road, refusing any damages to the plaintiff.

Messrs. Reagan, Lynes and O'Donnell have returned from Maine, where they had secured employment with Shannahan. Probably the climate of the prohibition state didn't suit them.—Times.

Jones—Spofford.

It will be remembered that Mr. Moore of Nashua, in his closing speech in the house on the Hazen bill, made a severe attack upon Hon. Frank Jones, accusing him of improperly witholding action with reference to a question of mail service in Danville, for the purpose of influencing the action of Mr. Spofford of that town upon the railroad bills.

The attack at the time was considered an abuse of the privileges of the house, and a cowardly assault upon a private citizen, who could not enter the debate and defend his action. The investigation before the judiciary committee demonstrates, beyond question, that the accusations of Mr. Moore were without foundation and absolutely false. There were four witnesses called in the case,—Mr. Spofford, Mr. Jones, Mr. Collins and Mr. Dame. Mr. Spofford testified that Mr. Jones at the first interview promised to sign the petition, and at the second interview declined, but told him that he was a square man and would help Spofford if Spofford would help him.

Mr. Jones took the stand and stated that he did not promise to sign the petition at the first interview, or any other; but that he would look to the matter, and if the route ought to be established he would make a personal effort with the department at Washington. That his action in the matter had no reference whatever to the position of Mr. Spofford on the railroad question.

Mr. C. M. Collins, who is a republican and an intelligent and reliable man, who was present at the second interview, sustains Mr. Jones, and swears that he made no such statement as Mr. Spofford says he did; that Mr. Jones treated him kindly, manifested an interest in his case, explaining that it would be useless to sign a petition and send it to the department, but that he would make a personal effort when in Washington.

As to the first interview Mr. Jones is sustained by the testimony of Hon. George E. Dame, superintendent of the New England mail-service, a reliable man who is in no way, directly or indirectly, connected with the railroad controversy, who says that the interview was brought about by himself; that it was short; that Mr. Jones told Mr. Spofford to go on and get up a petition; that he (Mr. Jones) knew nothing of the facts, but would look into the case, and if the route ought to be created, and if he could be of any service to the people there, he would gladly help them. That Mr. Jones treated Mr. Spofford courteously, but was not asked whether he would sign a petition, and made no proposition whatever, except that he would investigate, and help if the case had merit.

Now while the evidence in no way sustains the charges against Mr. Jones, it does disclose the fact, on the contrary, that Spofford was trying to use his position to force Mr. Jones to act upon a matter about which he had no knowledge, and make a representation to the department without an opportunity to investigate.

The evidence vindicates Mr. Jones, and shows the onslaught of Mr. Moore to be without foundation, and a wicked attempt to assassinate reputation.

There will be a grand assembly and dance in Franklin upper hall next Wednesday evening, Oct. 19th. Tickets fifty cents; ladies free; all are invited; Peter Williams manager. Music by Lord & Medcalf's orchestra.

Every lady to call and see the very large size, strictly all-wool Blankets we are selling for $5.00 per pair. The lot will not last long.

LEWIS E. STAPLES, 7 Market street.

—Jones—"I say, Smith, I saw a great magician last night. He could give you lemonade, or any drink you wanted, out of a high white hat." Smith—"That's nothing; we've got a grocer on our corner who can give you thirty-five, forty and forty-five cent butter out of the same tub."

—"Will you reopen your summer hotel next season?" "I shall be here, but not as the lessee. I have obtained a job as head waiter." "Eh, you don't say so? Who will be the lessee, then?" "The head waiter I had this season."

—"Mamma," said a little girl, on her way home from a fashionable church, "are people who sit in the middle aisle wickeder than those at one side?" "Certainly not, dear. Why?" "Because the minister only preached to them."

—"I was getting measured for a suit of clothes this mawning," said young Mr. Sissy to his pretty cousin, "and just for a joke, y' know, I awsked Snipem if it weally took nine tailors to make a man. He said it would take more than nine tailors to make a man of some people. I thought it was quite clevah." "Yes, it was clever, Charley," said the pretty cousin.

—Robinson complains bitterly of the conduct of his son. He relates at length to an old friend all the young man's escapades. "You should speak to him with firmness, to call him to his duty," says the friend. "But he pays not the least attention to what I say. He listens only to the advice of fools. I wish you would talk to him."

—"Why haven't I a 600-acre farm as well as that man riding in his carriage? yelled a red-nosed anarchist orator, as he glared at the crowd. "Because he saved $600 and bought his farm when it cost him $1 an acre, and you poured your $600 down your throat!" responded a man on the back seat, and the orator asked no more conundrums.

—It is supposed that little Jack Horner was once a Chicago speculator. You know it is written that he was in a "corner" and pulled out a "plum."

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY STUDYING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines east of Chicago, and continuous lines of its terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only trunk middle link in that transcontinental system which spans and controls travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Nevada, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect and nothing skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that modern science has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and model. Its management strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the Western hemisphere or in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Magnificent Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—reclining Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the finest and favorite resorts, localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown, a short, desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Chicago, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

"We Point With Pride"

To the "Good name at home," won by Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is prepared, there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold than of all other medicines, and it has given the best of satisfaction since its introduction ten years ago. This could not be if the medicine did not possess merit. If you suffer from impure blood, try Hood's Sarsaparilla and realize its peculiar curative power.

The great Sprague mill at Baltic, Conn., was burned Oct. 14th; loss $1,500,000; insurance $257,000.

Remly S. Sidelinger, the Boston labor and temperance advocate, who surrendered himself recently as a deserter from the United States army a number of years ago, has been released by order of the war department.

The best medical writers claim that the successful remedy for nasal catarrh must be non-irritating, easy of application, and one that will by its own action, reach all the remote sores and ulcerated surfaces. The history of the efforts to treat catarrh during the past few years obliges us to admit that only one remedy has completely met these conditions, and that is Ely's Cream Balm. This safe and pleasant remedy has mastered catarrh as nothing else has ever done, and both physicians and patients freely concede this fact. The more distressing symptoms quickly yield to it.

A Vienna despatch says the duchess of Cumberland, who was put into an insane asylum some months ago, has completely recovered her reason.

The liver and kidneys must be kept in good condition. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great remedy for regulating these organs.

Elbridge Gerry, Jr., formerly of Portland, Me., has resigned the United States consulship at Havre, France.

If there ever was a specific for any one complaint, then Carter's Little Liver Pills are a specific for sick headache, and every woman should know this. Only one pill a dose. Try them.

Vast and most destructive fires are raging in the counties of California bordering on San Francisco bay.

Save Your Doctor's Bill.—When Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry will cure coughs, colds, bleeding at the lungs, and arrest the fell destroyer, consumption, it does more than most physicians can do. The use of a single bottle will satisfy the incredulous that they need look no further for the required aid.

The English troops in Burmah are to be largely reduced in number.

Always avoid harsh purgative pills. They first make you sick and then leave you constipated. Carter's Little Liver Pills regulate the bowels and make you well. Dose, one pill.

The Spanish government, being convinced that the revolt of the natives of Ponape, Philippine islands, was the result of religious persecution, has ordered that only those convicted of murdering Spaniards be punished, and that the indemnity demanded by America be paid.

The New Orleans Picayune declares that the law forbidding the carrying of pistols in Texas has led to an increase of murders, highway robberies and other crimes in that state. The law only disarms orderly and law-abiding people, while the robbers, the roughs and the rascals generally take advantage of the defenceless condition of the rest of the community.

—"Johnny," he whispered to her little brother, "did your sister get a note from me last night? It was written on pink paper." "I guess she must have got it," said Johnny, "cause when she came down to breakfast this morning her hair was done up in pink curl papers."

—Lawyer—"Your uncle makes you his sole heir, but the will stipulates that the sum of $100 must be buried with him." Heir (feelingly)—"The old man was eccentric, but his wishes must be respected, of course. I'll write a check for the amount."

A Sudden Sensation

Of chilliness invading the backbone, followed by hot flushes and profuse perspiration. We all know these symptoms, if not by experience, from report. What's the best thing on the programme? Quinine? A dangerous remedy, truly. Produces caries of the bones, only affords temporary relief. Is there no substitute? Assuredly, a potent but safe one—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a certain, speedy means of expelling from the system every trace of the virus of miasma. Use it promptly, persistently. The result—a cure is certain to follow the use of this beneficent restorative of health. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous ailments, rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also among the maladies permanently remediable through the genial aid of this wholesome botanic medicine, recommended by the medical fraternity.

Miss Flora Burrington, of Muskegon, Mich., played the piano so persistently that the neighbors complained of it as a nuisance. Fired by this treatment, she resolved to show them what she could do, and played steadily for 108 hours, stopping only for refreshments.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

An Illinois man was shot and killed while playing a practical joke on a friend, a policeman, last week.

D. O. Mills is having a $7,000 bronze door made for the tomb that he is building at Tarrytown. It will be 8 feet 6 by 4 feet 6. The style is in imitation of the old-fashioned oak doors, with a lattice-work top. The paneling cross-pieces and wood grooves are to be repeated in bronze. Three companion pieces are to be made as windows. They are 3x4 and in bronze lattice-work.

A rather singular phenomena has manifested itself on the Mississippi river during the last few days. The water has the appearance of a dark-green and the color is more noticeable in the waves created by the passage of a steamboat. It is said that if a quantity of water is placed in a vessel and allowed to remain motionless for a short time that a green scum will form on the surface.

How quick can a man wink? Experiments have been going on with an ingenious machine which shows over a man's eye so that the eyelid as it winks opens and closes a chronograph. So far the quickest wink on record is about a sixth of a second. This is probably as quick as one can see to follow anything, and a good share of conjuring consists in doing a thing quicker than a sixth of a second.

Golden trout are found in but one place in the world—that is in the brooks of Mount Whitney, up near the banks of everlasting snow. They have a golden stripe down each side and are the most beautiful fish that swim. Those who saw the first specimens of these trout that were brought down from the head of Whitney creek thought they were made up for show—that stripes of goldleaf had been glued to their sides.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease ever again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

"We Point With Pride"

To the "Good name at home," won by Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is prepared, there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold than of all other medicines, and it has given the best of satisfaction since its introduction ten years ago. This could not be if the medicine did not possess merit. If you suffer from impure blood, try Hood's Sarsaparilla and realize its peculiar curative power.

Mrs. W. Koehne and her four daughters, of Fond du Lac, Wis., were fatally beaten by an unknown burglar last week.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a pure vegetable preparation, being free from injurious ingredients. It is peculiar in its curative power.

Political Ethics.

The Boston Journal criticises the conduct of United States Marshal Barker of this state, for being engaged in behalf of railroad legislation at Concord. Marshal Barker is paid by the federal government the magnificent salary of two hundred dollars a year, and a small per diem when he attends sessions of the courts. The duties of his office require but little of his time, and perhaps it is as well for him to gather a few shekles in this business, as in any other, if it can be done as it has without neglecting his official duties. The marshal seems to be following the precedent established by the federal officials of preceding administrations, who were quite apt to be on hand during sessions of the legislature and exert influence on occasions where it would do the most good. Whether the efforts of a congressman who had voted upon the interstate legislation, and is likely to be called upon the coming winter to officially act upon questions with which the recent legislation in this state is more or less connected, exerted in behalf of one side of this protracted contest, are entirely in keeping with the dignity and character of the office he fills, is a subject not yet discussed by the Journal. It does seem, we must admit, somewhat infra dig to witness the labors of a representative in Congress in changing the votes of the representatives in our state legislature upon a non-political question. However, the summer vacation gave ample time for this recreation, and when one feels inspired by a great economic principle he inclines to do everything proper to carry out his views, even if it may seem to others to be in questionable taste.

The Railroad Legislation.

The Boston Herald in referring to the passage of the Hazen bill says:

It has seemed to us from the first that, of the two measures, the act that went by the name of the Hazen bill was more nearly in accord with the progressive methods of modern business. The Atherton bill seemed calculated to build up restrictive state lines, while the present tendency is, in almost all business undertakings, to make light of state distinctions, and to obliterate, as far as possible, state barriers.

This view seems to have been adopted by almost every practical thinker. As between the broad and liberal policy contemplated in the Hazen enactment, which has so built up and developed the growth of other states, and the narrow-guage idea of the Atherton attempt, there was but one course for the men who, looking beyond and above the narrow compass of vision of the controlling minds of the Concord railway managers on the one hand, or the selfish schemes of the new ring which came in to aid the Concord men, there has been but one course to pursue. After the smoke and heat of the battle have blown away, the reflective men in the legislature who have been induced by groundless fears to oppose the Hazen enactment, will gradually come to perceive that the best result has followed, and that the state gains instead of loses by the encouragement of a liberal policy in railway affairs.

There is one commendable feature in the Hazen bill, which to no small degree compensates the people of New Hampshire for the expense incident to the present protracted session of the legislature; we refer to the section requiring mileage tickets to be sold at the rate of two cents per mile. This makes a direct saving to the people who travel in our state of over $200,000 annually. Thus it will be seen, that when the legislature enacts a provision for the judicious and proper protection of the railway property of the state, it at the same time has a regard for the interest of every patron of the railways. This is a feature to which the advocates of the Hazen bill have made no opposition, but on the other hand the Boston & Maine have already cheerfully complied with its provisions upon all of its lines in the state. The advantage of this reduction over an extending line of road, reaching so many different parts of the state, will, of course, be apparent.

Death of Col. Thomas P. Pierce.

Col. Thomas P. Pierce of Nashua died suddenly of apoplexy in that city on the evening of the 14th inst. He was taking an active part in the reception of the Amoskeag Veterans of Manchester, and had complained during the afternoon of numbness in one of his limbs. When the company was about to be seated at the tables in the hall in the evening, it was noticed that he was not well, and Dr. McQuesten spoke to him about it. Col. Pierce replied: "Don't say a word; just as soon as I can get the Veterans to the tables I am going home." These were about his last words. He became at once so ill that he was carried to his home, where he sank rapidly, and died at 7.30 o'clock.

Col. Pierce was a native of Chelsea, Mass., born Aug. 30, 1820. He went to Manchester, N. H. in 1840, where he resided till he moved to Nashua in 1866 and engaged in business as one of the firm of the Nashua Card and Glazed Paper Co. He enlisted as a private in the Mexican war, in the 9th reg. U. S. infantry, served with distinction and was complimented for bravery by Gen. Ransom. He was postmaster at Manchester during President Pierce's administration. On the breaking out of the rebellion in 1861, he was selected by Governor Goodwin as commander of the Second regiment of the three months troops. He retired from this position when the term was extended to three years. He also organized the Twelfth New Hampshire regiment as its temporary commander. He was a member of the state senate and in 1875 and '76 was high sheriff of Hillsborough county. He was a leading member of the First Universalist church in Nashua, and was prominent in all temperance work. He leaves a wife and one son, Frank Pierce of Springfield. His only daughter, Mrs. Julia M. Johnson, died a few years ago at Henniker.

Judge H. T. Ellett of Memphis, Tenn., delivered the address of welcome to President Cleveland in that city Oct. 15th, and died on the platform a few minutes later.

Miss Alice M. Longfellow, daughter of the poet, has been elected to the Cambridge school committee.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, Oct. 15th.

H. A. Beck, charged with defrauding the Webster house out of a board bill of $14, was discharged.

James Brown, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; Brentwood in default of payment.

UNITED STATES COMMISSIONER'S COURT.

Charles Butman of Epping was brought by Deputy United States Marshal Coffin before United States Commissioner Hackett on Saturday, upon a complaint made by the collector of internal revenue, of being a retail dealer in spirituous liquors without payment of the special tax. The evidence failed to support the allegation in the complaint, and the accused was discharged. Frink, United States attorney, for the United States; S. W. Emery for Butman.

ALARM OF FIRE.

The boiler at Mason's sawing, planing and box-making mill is fired with shavings from the machines. Saturday afternoon no fuel was fed to it after 4:30 o'clock, and at five o'clock the water was blown from the boiler as usual on that day, and the mill was closed at five. About 11:30 o'clock Officer Sheldon B. Lervey noticed a light in the mill, and sparks coming out of the smokestack; and rousing Mr. Mason they hurried to the mill, where the boiler was found to be red-hot, and a piece of wood lying on top of it on fire. An alarm was pulled in by Officer D. J. Lynch from box nine, and the department turned out, but no water was put on save a bucketful or two by Mr. Mason, on the burning wood, the boiler being allowed to cool off of itself. The erratic conduct of the boiler was probably caused by soot in the tubes. Mr. Mason speaks very commendingly of the vigilance and prompt action of the police.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

All the flags auctioned off at the navy yard last week were bought by Mr. Charles S. Downe of this city. There are a great number of them, and many are in very fair condition.

Commander Wm. C. Wise is detached from the Portsmouth navy yard, Oct. 31st, and placed on waiting orders. Comdr. Charles J. Barclay is ordered as ordnance office of the yard, on the same date.

The court martial ordered to convene at this navy yard to try Paymaster's Clerk Richard H. Paine will consist of Captain C. C. Carpenter, Captain L. A. Beardslee, Pay Director C. W. Abbott, Pay Director G. E. Thornton, Captain Joseph O. Kane, Commander J. F. McGlensey and Paymaster Joseph Foster, with Lieutenant Adolph Marix as judge advocate. Paine is charged with embezzling $3,856 45 while acting as clerk to Paymaster Edwin Putnam, attached to this yard; and the court is ordered to convene on Thursday, the 20th inst. The deficiency has been made good by Paymaster Putnam.

Another bogus check drawn on the New Hampshire national bank of this city, was received on Friday from Lowell, Mass. It called for $40, and the name signed to it was Holden; it is supposed to be the work of the person who has so successfully fleeced traders in Boston, Portland and other places recently. This was the fourth spurious check drawn on this bank within four or five weeks.

"Jim the Penman," last season's great success at the Madison square theatre, New York, will be presented in Music hall on Thursday evening, the 20th inst.

Mr. George A. Tucker, representative salesman for B. A. Atkinson & Co., Boston, is visiting Mrs. Andrew Lynn of Winter street.

Sunday was observed as "Glad-tidings day" at the Methodist church, and a Sunday school concert was given in the evening.

Mr. Emil C. Pfeiffer, lay reader, officiated at St. John's and Christ churches on Sunday, in the absence of the rector, Rev. H. E. Hovey.

Rev. Alfred Gooding preached in the Unitarian church on Sunday, for the first time since he started for Europe in June; there was a very large congregation present, and a special musical programme was performed by the choir, assisted by Miss Mabel Cotton, pianist. Announcement was made from the pulpit that the adjourned meeting of the Unity club will be held in the chapel on Court street at four o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the 18th inst., and that the annual sale of fancy articles will be held on Thursday afternoon, the 27th.

An unused ice house on Banfield road, owned by George A. Perkins, and built twenty years ago, fell in ruin on Tuesday of last week without doing any damage. It had been leaning and unsafe for years.

Wild geese in large numbers are now flying south. Not many of them are stopped on the way by gunners.

The fishing schooner I. J. Merritt, Jr., of Gloucester, Capt. Harty, has stocked over $20,000 in shore mackereling thus far this season. This is, according to the Cape Ann Advertiser, high line among the shore fishermen. If a Portsmouth man couldn't be at the top of the list, we know of no one more entitled to the honor than Capt. Harty (who is well known in this city) and his crew of first-class men—among whom are several Portsmouth men.

A young lady about sixteen years old, daughter of Mr. Horatio Perkins of Kittery Point, was found dead in bed on Wednesday morning of last week, having retired the evening before in apparent good health. The funeral was set to take place on Friday, but was postponed on account of the girl's features assuming the color and appearance of life.

Among the prisoners shortly to be liberated from the Maine state prison is Frank Bickford of Springvale, York county. An indictment is on file at Alfred, on which he will probably be arrested as soon as out of the prison. His brother, implicated in some of the offences for which Frank has suffered, died lately in prison.

Naval Intelligence.

Capt. A. R. Yates is detached from command of the New Hampshire, and placed on waiting orders. Comdr. F. J. Higginson is ordered from the naval war college to the command of the New Hampshire.

Lieut. Henry H. Hosley has been ordered to duty at the naval academy.

Chief Engr. James Butterworth is detached from the Wabash, and ordered to hold himself in readiness for sea service. Chief Engr. Joseph Trilley is ordered to the Wabash.

Comdr. Wm. Whitehead, Lieut. Comdrs. Joshua Bishop, Charles A. Schetky and Charles S. Sperry, are ordered to examination for promotion.

Chief Engr. George W. Hale is ordered to hold himself in readiness for orders for the Marion; Passed Asst. Engr. R. D. Taylor is ordered from the Chicago, and Cadet Engr. J. E. Byrne from the Boston, to the Marion; Lieuts. John B. Milton, Martin E. Hall and James C. Gillmore; Ensigns W. G. Miller and Glennie Tarbox; Acting Boatswain John J. Glynn and Carpenter Henry Davis, are ordered to hold themselves in readiness for orders to the Marion.

Passed Assistant Engineer A. V. Zane and Assistant Engineer Harry Hall have been ordered to duty in connection with the dock trial of the machinery of the Terror.

Passed Assistant Engineer G. W. Baird has been detached from the fish commission steamer Albatross, and ordered to report for duty to the superintendent of the state, war, and navy department building.

Passed Assistant Engineer Charles R. Roelker is detached from duty under the advisory board, and ordered to the Albatross.

Passed Asst. Engr. John A. Tobin has been ordered to duty on the Nipsic, now fitting out at New York.

The naval board of survey, who examined the condition of the Yantic, at Norfolk, found that the vessel can be thoroughly repaired for 3 1-2 per cent of her value, and the repairs will be ordered.

First Lieut. Randolph Dickens, U. S. M. C., has been ordered to the marine barracks at Washington.

In the bribery investigation at Concord, last week, Representative Bean of Derry stated that Woodbury Durgin had made him several offers, ranging from $500 to $1,500, if he would vote against the Hazen bill. The last offer was for the largest sum named, and Durgin said that Mr. Bean's colleague, Mr. Webster, could also have $1,500 if he would oppose the Hazen bill. Durgin said that if Mr. Bean accepted the offer he would probably have to go to Massachusetts for the money, but that it would be ready for him. These offers Mr. Bean refused. Durgin, he said, approached him several times, the first time being at the depot in Manchester. Durgin also asked Bean if he knew of any men that he could get. Mr. Durgin also said that Representative Layn of Lee told him he had been offered $1,000, which offer he said he thought he should take. The witness said he did not know whether or not Mr. Layn accepted any money, but he did know that he opposed the Hazen bill.

There was an interesting incident last week at the interior department, at an interview between Secretary Lamar and a delegation of Oneida Indians from Wisconsin. These Indians, who have little land, ask that the secretary of the interior recommend that they be given $5,000,000 with which to purchase lands. Dr. Bland and Mr. Howard of the Defense association were present and opposed the severalty policy, whereupon Secretary Lamar quite sharply rebuked them, saying that the opponents of the severalty system wished to have the Indians prepared for this new condition before the law is executed, which is impossible. Mr. Lamar said it was an old argument of the proslavery men, and he, although then a slave-holder himself, was of opinion that the short and violent cut to emancipation had, perhaps, been the wisest.

JOHN LAIGHTON,

No. 1 Market Square.

John Lenahan has found an interesting relic of the times of old Fort Crawford at Prairie du Chien. It consists of a twenty-pound ball with a chain attached. It was imbedded in the earth about 150 yards from the site of the old fort. It is thought to have been where found for thirty-five or forty years and used to punish refractory soldiers. It is proposed to send it to Madison to be placed among the relics in the state historical rooms.

The 6-year-old son of Bernard Green, near Bennettsville, Ind., was recently run over by a heavy wagon and his right leg crushed. The father knew that the leg must come off, and, after vainly trying to find a surgeon, decided to perform the operation himself. He had no instrument with the exception of a razor and a small meat saw, but with these he took off the leg neatly, and the boy recovered from the shock and is getting well. Surgeons say that the job was as successful as any one could ask.

The Empress Elizabeth of Austria, who is a great admirer of the poems of Heine, on her journey to England made a considerable detour in order to visit Frau Charlotte Embden, the aged surviving sister of the poet. The Empress appeared at the door before Frau Embden had finished her toilet and graciously waited for the old lady. In the subsequent conversation she expressed her great admiration for the poet, evincing her thorough familiarity with his works. She concluded her visit by an examination of the Heine relics, such as letters, portraits, and manuscripts in the possession of Frau Embden.

Judge Willis of Texas opened court at Clarendon the other day with the following charge to the grand jury: "Gentlemen of the grand jury—In your deliberations don't be too bloody; you might indict some innocent person. I was accused falsely myself before the legislature when I was as innocent as a lamb, and had to undergo a long and tedious trial, but I thank God that I was vindicated. Gentlemen of the grand jury, I have also been accused of being no lawyer. I say to you gentlemen of the grand jury, that I am well grounded in the law; if I do say it myself I am a good lawyer, and any one who says that I am no lawyer is a villain and a liar."

Smith—"Here you are beastly drunk again! Don't you feel ashamed of yourself after swearing off so recently?" Jones—"My dear bo—hic—oy, I don't want ter be a slave to that swearing-off habit."—Tid-Bits.

A QUESTION OF HEALTH.

Bread, biscuit and cake, now generally made by the aid of baking powder, enter so largely into our daily food that their debasement by the introduction of any injurious or deteriorating substance is a matter of serious concern to the public health. What baking powder shall we use to avoid the lime and alum now found in so many leavening agents, and to insure pure, sweet and wholesome bread, is a question, therefore, of direct importance to every individual.

It is an indisputable fact that all baking powders with the single exception of the "Royal" contain one or the other of these adulterants—lime or alum—in quantities from five to twenty per cent. Alum is poisonous. Lime reduces their strength not only but (aside from its injurious effects upon the system) by debasing our food with a useless substance robs it of a portion of its nutritious qualities, thereby depriving our bodies of the full sustenance necessary to maintain that bodily vigor requisite to protect us from disease.

The importance of this matter in its bearing upon the life and health of the public is much more fully realized in England, where severe punishments, under stringent laws prohibiting the manufacture and sale of adulterated articles of food, are of frequent occurrence.

The "Royal" has been determined by the Government chemists and the most prominent food analysts to be the only baking powder made that is entirely free from lime, alum and other impurities, and absolutely pure. It is made from cream of tartar refined for its exclusive use by patent processes by which the tartrate of lime is totally eliminated. No other baking powder manufacturer uses chemically pure cream of tartar, and hence the adulteration of other brands. The "Royal" is, accordingly, the only baking powder that will produce perfectly pure bread, biscuit, cake, pastry, etc.; and these articles are now pronounced more wholesome when raised by the Royal Baking Powder than when leavened by any other agent.

It is particularly a question of health, therefore, what baking powder we shall use; and those who appreciate the miseries of dyspepsia and other ailments that follow the use of impure food will not hesitate to select the "Royal."

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

Is the central position, connecting the principal points East of Chicago, and continuous lines at Council Bluffs, Kansas City, Des Moines, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota, Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are of the permanence of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its employes are courteous, accurate and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its equipment is unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route the Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields of Dakota, and the interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Resaca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, Leavenworth, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

A Sudden Sensation

Of chilliness invading the backbone, followed by hot flushes and profuse perspiration. We all know these symptoms, if not by experience, from report. What's the best thing on the programme? Quinine? A dangerous remedy, truly. Produces caries of the bones, only affords temporary relief. Is there no substitute? Assuredly, a potent but safe one—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a certain, speedy means of expelling from the system every trace of the virus of miasma. Use it promptly, persistently. The result—a cure is certain to follow the use of this beneficent restorative of health. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous ailments, rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also among the maladies permanently remediable through the genial aid of this wholesome botanic medicine, recommended by the medical fraternity.

In a Capuchin's Tomb.

A Rome letter says: The Capuchin brother, attired in his long habit of coarse brown frieze, his waist encircled by a hempen rope, his stockingless feet bound in sandals, his untrimmed beard and shorn head bare, except for a diminutive skull-cap, is a familiar sight on the streets in Rome, which he patiently traverses, carrying an earthen pitcher as a receptacle, while he begs alms from house to house.

There is a peculiarly stolid expression on the face of these men, as though everything human, or, at all events, everything bordering on the highest attributes of humanity, had been stamped out of their nature, leaving a mere machine—an unwashed one at that.

The Church of the Fraternity is in the piazza of the same name in the immediate vicinity of the Piazza Barberini. It was founded by Cardinal Barberini, brother of Pope Urban VIII. in 1624—the same cardinal who was the friend of Milton when he visited the Eternal city in 1638. The church contains the tomb of the founder and many remarkable treasures of art, including the magnificent painting by Guido, representing "Michael the Archangel Trampling the Devil"—the latter a portrait of Pope Innocent X., for whom the painter seems to have had an inveterate hatred.

Passing through the church a few steps to the right will lead you to as ghastly and at the same time as grotesquely horrible a spectacle as the most morbid searcher after flesh-creeping experiences can possibly desire. A series of four connected small apartments, the floors of which are made of earth said to have been carried from Jerusalem, contain the horrors I speak of. The walls and ceiling are liberally decorated with ornamented devices constructed by cunning workmen out of human bones. The bones of the vertebra, wrists, and ankles are arranged so as to describe circles and curves. These figures are interspersed here and there with skulls, femurs and humerus, tibias, fibulas, ulnas and radius.

The same horrid ornaments are arranged around the person of a deceased brother, who appears suspended against the middle of a wall, incased in the coarse brown cloth, the garment he lived, died and was buried in. The dry skin clinging to the face of the skeleton grins in horrible mockery as the living brother, his former companion in the flesh, conducts you around this decorated charnel-house. He looks as though he chuckled over the fact of having been released from the grave long enough to give place to a brother more recently defunct, for it is the rule of the fraternity—who are compelled to make a small burial ground meet the requirements of the order—when a death takes place to dig up the longest interred to make room for his successor.

There is a quality in the earth employed that has the effect of preventing decay of the body, drying it up in mummy fashion, and preserving the hair, presenting a far more horrible effect than if bleached bones were presented to view.

There is a weird uncanniness about this strange mixture of the living and dead, and the latter divested of solemnity by environment of ornamental osteology, while the air of the survivor seems toned down to an unnatural sepulchralness—a sort of halfway condition between life and the tomb.

Senator Conger's Romance.

When Senator Conger of Michigan was a young man he was engaged to a young woman. They quarreled, separated, and in time each married. Twenty years after he, a widower, was in Congress; she, a widow, sat in the gallery and listened to his speech. It was the first time they had seen each other since their early days. She sent her card to him; he came at once to the gallery. After a little talk she asked him to call on her at her friend's, Mrs. Dahlgren's. He said he would call if he could call as he used to in those long past days of youth. A few weeks they were married at Mrs. Admiral Dahlgren's residence.—Mercer Press.

Wealth of Nations.

It is estimated that the wealth of the following countries is increased annually by the sums named: Germany, $200,000,000; Great Britain, $325,000,000; France, $375,000,000; and the United States, $875,000,000. The United States is already the wealthiest nation in the world, and as the above figures show, its wealth is increasing the most rapidly.

"O, mamma, here's an account of a man who was shot in the leg." "What!" cried Mrs. Prude. "Shot in the limb, I mean, mamma."—Ex.

Wayback man—"No use talking. Thirteen is an unlucky number." Omaha man—"I don't believe any such superstition." "If you'd lost a brother the way I did you'd believe it." "What happened to him?" "He didn't believe any of those old superstitions, either, and one day he took thirteen big drinks of whisky, hand runnin', on a wager, and the thirteenth dose killed him deader'n a mackerel.

"Ma," said baby at the supper-table, "I know why this cake is called angel cake." "Do you?" replied his mother, without much interest. "Yes; it's because it's made by an angel. That's what pa told the cook."—New York Sun.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

Read directions to use St. Jacobs Oil for cuts, burns and scalds. It cures.

A three-story wooden building in Wolfeboro was rendered worthless by fire, Oct. 14th. Half a dozen business establishments, including the Granite State News, were burned out. Total loss $5,000.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has, no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Hall, Ind.

The grocery store of Joy & Angus, at Salmon Falls, was broken into on the night of Oct. 13th, and the safe partially blown up with dynamite. The thieves got nothing, the explosion probably frightening them away.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

The Caution of Chauncy.

When Mr. Chauncy Depew, the polished and prolific post-prandial orator of New York, honors the evening occasion and utters one of his witty speeches, all the town smiles over its next morning newspaper. But when Mr. Depew tells the great and growing west that it builds railways in advance of the wants of the country, sells land on credit and gives a promise to pay for everything it buys and borrows, Wall street in the slang of the sidewalk enquires, "What are you giving us?" The representative of the Vanderbilts of course uttered his ideas as to over-trading in a cautionary and not in a panic-suggesting sense.

He said nothing new. Every writer and every observer of the causes of alternations of prosperity and depression, the commonly considered good times and hard times, knows that the result of speculation and the debts thereby created brings an occasional let up,—a stop on the way to unload the too heavy weight of debt, or at least to cease taking on more until a proper condition of affairs can be in a measure regained. Railways always have in this country, in the newly settled sections, been built in advance of the wants of a community. Land has been sold in the expectation that some one will buy it at an advance, or in any event, its market value will increase. But when every one invests in new railways and every one buys with a purpose of selling at a profit, the lender of the funds for these speculations must wait a while for the return of his loan. The question is, will the speculator be able to pay the accruing interest before he realizes the result of his proposed operation? It is well enough for Mr. Depew's cautionary signal to be displayed at this time. The Vanderbilt heirs, with their railways at the east paying small dividends and their government bonds yielding a safe but moderate rate of interest, may well cry out to their more venturesome fellow citizens, "Look out there, or you will be off the track."

A Lively Mayor.

At a meeting of the city government of Louisville, Ky., one night last week, Mayor Reed made an accusation against a Mr. Atherton, who had appeared before the council on a certain hearing. Atherton snatched a drinking cup which was at hand and threw it at the mayor, who retaliated with a heavy cane, pounding Atherton about the head and bringing much blood. The president of the board of councilmen reprimanded the mayor, and the latter made at the president, striking him with his fist. Another city official then took a hand in the row, and knocked the mayor down with a chair. This is the fifth row in which Mayor Reed has been concerned since his first election as mayor three years ago.

Last Thursday night a gang of highwaymen entered the home of Rev. Thomas Ryan, a Methodist minister who lived near Walton, W. Va. They demanded his money and got several hundred dollars, but missed a large sum which had but a day or two before been sent to the bank. Ryan was shot dead by one of the robbers. Great excitement prevails, and if the gang are captured they will be lynched.

The story of an attempt to wreck the presidential train by firing a trestle is pronounced absolutely false. The sensational scribbler who got up the atrocious lie should be lynched.

In Chicago, on Sunday last, Stephen W. Rawson, a millionaire banker, was fatally shot on the steps of a fashionable church by his stepson, William Lee, aged seventeen years. Rawson and the boy's mother have been quarrelling in the divorce court for a year or more.

The National Rubber Co. of Providence, R. I., has failed, with liabilities of $900,000.

In the Knights of Labor national convention at Minneapolis, Minn., last week, Mr. Hayes of New Jersey admitted having expended $10,000 trying to defeat the re-election of Congressman Reed of Maine. The Knights tried to defeat Randall of Pennsylvania, Carlisle of Kentucky, and Morrison of Illinois, for re-election, and did defeat Morrison, according to statements made in the convention.

Messenger J. Ernest Smith, who thwarted the Pacific express robbery on a train near El Paso, Texas, last week, succeeded in killing two of the robbers, instead of one as at first reported, the body of the second one being found next day about fifty yards from the track. The slain ruffians were both powerfully built young men, about twenty-five years old.

The gang of outlaws who murdered Rev. Mr. Ryan in West Virginia on the night of the 13th inst. were attacked on the night of the 15th by a large body of citizens; the outlaws, five in number, were in a house fitted with port-holes, and wounded five of the attacking party. One of the murderers was shot dead; another, Jake Coon, who shot Mr. Ryan, was captured and at once hung; and the other three were seized, and it was supposed would not live a great while. There were about twenty in the full gang, and they have been robbing and murdering at will for some months.

A sawmill boiler exploded at Centreville, W. Va., last week, tearing the mill to pieces and killing three men.

It is feared that the cities of San Blas and Mazatlan, Mexico, were partially, if not entirely destroyed by the recent severe storm on the southern coast of that country.

This year's cotton crop in the United States is estimated at 6,550,000 bales.

The coroner in the case of the railroad disaster at Kouts, Ind., places the blame of the accident primarily on the train despatcher, and on the management for permitting a fast freight to run too closely on a passenger train whose engine was disabled.

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEBLE, Salem, Mass.

"JIM, THE PENMAN."

This play, written by Sir Charles Young, recently deceased, and performed all last season with phenomenal success at the Madison Square theatre in New York, was presented in Concord last Friday evening, and the People and Patriot of the next day said: "It is one of the best dramas that has ever been presented here. The play is interesting, and the acting throughout excellent. James Ralston lives for twenty-five years the life of a forger in wealth and high social surroundings. A series of events occur in which his identity with 'Jim, the Penman,' becomes known. These form the subject of the thrilling scenes presented. Mr. George Edgar as James Ralston presented some of the finest acting ever seen in Concord. His support throughout was strong. Miss May Brookin, as Mrs. Ralston, showed rare power, and the scene in which she discovers the ability of her husband to closely imitate her handwriting was very artistic. Louis Percival's part was taken by Mr. Wright Huntington, and he was thoroughly liked. Mr. Harry Eytinge was capital as Baron Hartfield, and Mr. Louis Baker as the young English sleepy dude and detective, Captain Redweed, was a great success. The company relies for its attraction upon a most powerful and effective drama, which is powerfully and effectively rendered by superior talent."

THOSE WARD LINES AGAIN.

On Wednesday of last week there was presented to the Rockingham county representatives, in anticipation of the adoption of the report of their sub-committee as unfavorable to disturbing the ward lines of this city, an entirely new bill.

The provisions of the new measure, as we understand it, are substantially to divide the present ward two into two new wards; who the originators of this new scheme are, we know not, but it looks to us as though it was a democratic mutilation of our formerly republican stronghold, a ward which in our opinion might still be controlled by the republican party, if the proper candidates were nominated and the old-time party vigor applied at the polls.

At the last contested election, in November, Col. Coggswell, the democratic candidate for governor, had in ward two a majority of thirty out of 776 votes cast, while McKinney had only fifteen. Mr. Collis, the republican candidate for senator, carried the ward by a decisive majority, as we believe did also Mr. Johnston, our candidate for county commissioner, who resides in that ward.

One of the proposed new wards, to be known as ward five, is the same territory which was constructed under the democratic administration of 1874 in the famous or rather infamous ward six, where the republicans were terrorized and infamous frauds perpetrated; of course this ward is intended to be overwhelmingly democratic, while the remainder of the ward it is supposed will be republican, with an exceedingly insignificant representation. Should this measure be passed, the republican party is forever deprived of gaining even a respectable representation, either in the city government or state legislature.

We hope this new measure will be defeated as well as its predecessor, which as we understand, its projectors have now totally abandoned. The ward lines of this city were the work of the republican party, not of an individual, and should this scheme meet the fate it so richly deserves, the party should act in the matter.

CITIZEN OF OLD WARD SIX.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

It is stated that a considerable number of loaded shells which have been at the navy yard for years, which are of obsolete patterns and worthless as missiles of war, and cannot be unloaded without danger to whoever should be engaged in the work, have been ordered by the secretary of the navy to be taken outside the harbor and dumped overboard in deep water.

Paymaster Lynn, now at this navy yard, was a classmate at Dartmouth college with Ex-Gov. B. F. Prescott.

PERSONAL.

Mrs. George F. Evans and Miss Mary I. Evans, of Louisville, Ky., who have passed the summer in this city, started for home on the 17th inst.

Comdr. Mortimer L. Johnson, U. S. N., who was detached from the Boston navy yard last Saturday, leaves New York with his family on Saturday next for Bremen, whence they will proceed to Dresden to pass the winter. Comdr. Johnson has been granted a year's leave of absence by the navy department.

Mrs. J. M. Tebbetts announces her opening of fashionable millinery for the fall and winter, to occur on Wednesday and Thursday of this week.

Mr. Henry H. Ham, watchmaker and jeweller, has removed his business to a part of the store of George W. Plummer, corner of Congress and Fleet streets, during the repairs and alterations of his late place of business on Daniel street.

Capt. Jos. C. Muchmore has recently erected a signal staff at the new life-saving station on Jerry's point, Newcastle; it is a fine stick, and with its topmast is fifty-five feet high.

Work on the new draw of the railroad bridge at Nobble's island was finished on Sunday, the 16th inst.; the new structure is strong enough to obviate all fear of a possibility of accident at that point.

The Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York paid during the week ending Oct. 7th death claims amounting to $111,157.25; endowments, $23,806.45.

Frances H. Mitchell, of Philadelphia, Pa., has taken the degree of doctor of philosophy in the Zurich university. She makes Anglo-Saxon her specialty.

The bill incorporating the new water company in this city passed the house of representatives last week.

Marie Stone, Agnes Huntington, Tom Karl, Barnabee, McDonald, Frothingham and other of the original Boston Ideals, appeared at Portland last Friday and Saturday nights; they are singing under the name of the Bostonians.

A quite valuable cow belonging to Mr. Charles A. Grant of York was killed by a gravel train on the York Harbor & Beach railroad last week.

The foundation has been laid for the addition to the Ocean house at Union Bluff, York, and the carpenters will begin work immediately. It will be eighty-four feet long, thirty-four feet wide, and two stories high.

Frederick D. Mitchell, a moulder by trade, who has worked in the Water Power foundry of Saco, left his home in that city and went to Sanford some three months ago. A short time since Mitchell, with a friend, prevailed upon a farmer in Sanford to sell them a small quantity of cider. Soon afterward, Mitchell and his friend, whose name is not given, went to the farmer and told him they wanted some money, which he must give them or suffer exposure and arrest for selling cider. Thoroughly scared, the farmer gave them money at different times, amounting in all to $90, it is alleged. About thirty men gathered in front of Mitchell's house at midnight on the 15th inst., with the intention of treating him to a coat of tar and feathers, but the bird had flown.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK CORNER, ME., Oct. 17th.

After digging early potatoes Mr. Joseph L. Grant sowed some flat turnip seed on the same land, and to-day showed us one turnip weighing just eleven and one-half pounds. This is the largest turnip of this variety we have seen; it is very fair and smooth. Mr. Grant remembered us by the first green corn we saw this season, and now with the latest of the season—large, full ears, very sweet and juicy.

General Superintendent Furber having assured the mail authorities that trains will now run regularly over the York Harbor & Beach railroad during the winter, the mails for the several York offices will at once be placed upon the railroad.

In reporting the recent marriage of Joseph Wyman and Julia Hutchings in this town, I made it read as the ceremony having been performed by Rev. Mr. Flanders, which report was erroneous. It was so reported to me, hence the error.

There has been considerable excitement here recently, and a vast deal of talk, over an alleged criminal assault said to have been committed by a married man upon a maiden lady of nearly forty summers. By the intervention of friends, the case has been settled by the payment of an amount of money, which amount has not been made public. The old verdict of "not guilty, but mustn't do it again."

The annual meeting of the New Hampshire Unitarian Association will be held at Keene on Oct. 25th and 26th. In addition to home delegates, there will be representatives from towns in other states which meet with this body. On Tuesday evening, the 25th, Rev. Calvin Stebbins of Worcester, Mass., will preach; and on Wednesday, Rev. A. J. Rich of Fall River, Mass., will read an essay on "Unity Clubs," while numerous other prominent clergymen will take part.

The committee of Plymouth church recommends that Rev. Lyman Abbott, editor of the Christian Union, be engaged to temporarily supply the pulpit of Plymouth church.

Rev. Dr. David R. Kerr, editor of the United Presbyterian and one of the foremost preachers of his church, died at Pittsburg, Pa., last week.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Frances Ellen, Birdman master, from Bangor bound for Quincy, Mass., with lumber, put into the lower harbor on Sunday, the 16th inst., leaking badly.

The schooner Josiah R. Smith of Bath, Me., has been chartered by a Baltimore firm to transport some of the old junk recently purchased at the navy yard to that city. The vessel was towed to the navy yard from this city last Friday afternoon, and sailed Saturday.

The department of state has been officially notified of the appointment of Sir Charles Tupper of Canada, as British fishery commissioner. The appointment completes the British commission, the other members being Joseph Chamberlain and Sir Lionel West, British minister at Washington.

The schooner Lizzie Guptill, Smith master, which arrived at this port last week, having sprung a leak off Boon island while on the passage from Rockland to Boston, discharged her cargo of lime undamaged at Concord railroad wharf, and after receiving some slight repairs sailed on Sunday for Rockland, her home port.

The schooner Maria, Ryder master, has arrived at Halifax from the Grand banks, and confirms the reported loss of thirteen of her crew in the great gale of Aug. 29th. One of the crew being sick on the 28th, Capt. Ryder himself took his place, and left only the cook, a boy and the sick man on board while the rest of the crew attended trawls. A heavy fog soon hid the vessel from sight; fog horns were sounded and guns fired by the cook and the boy on board the vessel, all day, but only Capt. Ryder succeeded in reaching her. Next day the great gale swept over the banks, and the other thirteen men were never heard of. They were all French Acadians, mostly married, and leave large families.

A despatch of the 15th inst. from Halifax, Nova Scotia, says: "Halifax fishermen and fish merchants are delighted with the appointment of Sir Charles Tupper as Canadian commissioner for the settlement of the fisheries question. No man more thoroughly understands or appreciates the value of the Canadian fisheries or the Canadian position in the controversy. He knows the growing feeling among our fishermen in favor of absolute exclusion of Americans from the Canadian fishing grounds, and is not likely to sacrifice any interest of the maritime provinces. Some $400,000 worth of fish were shipped from Halifax to the United States ports last quarter. This was an unprecedented amount."

'Twill save you lots of money
And many a doctor's bill;
Bronchitis, colds, or hoarseness,
Bull's Cough Syrup will kill.

The Chicago stock yard strikers, dissatisfied with Powderly's order, say they shall abandon the Knights of Labor, and organize a union of their own.

At the semi-annual meeting of the Maine Grand Lodge of Good Templars at Augusta, Me., last week, resolutions were passed heartily endorsing Governor Bodwell's stand on the liquor question.

I have sold Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry many years, have received great benefit from its use, and can recommend it to all who suffer from coughs, colds or any pulmonary complaint. Charles H. Leroy, Putnam, Conn.

It is reported that important cable despatches sent by Garrett while the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph deal was pending never reached the persons for whom they were intended. Rumors circulate that Garrett is about to make a statement which will be of a startling nature.

Mrs. Charles Smith of Jimes, Ohio, writes: I have used every remedy for sick headache I could hear of for the past fifteen years, but Carter's Little Liver Pills did me more good than all the rest.

There were two more deaths from cholera on Swinburn island, New York harbor, on the night of the 14th, among the steamer Alesia's passengers. This brings the total number of deaths from cholera up to twenty-eight since the Alesia left the Mediterranean.

Relief from sick headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. These complaints are nearly always caused by torpid liver and constipated bowels. Restore these organs to their proper functions and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Don't forget this. Price 25 cents.

I Am Proud

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

A Sudden Sensation

Of chilliness invading the backbone, followed by hot flushes and profuse perspiration. We all know these symptoms, if not by experience, from report. What's the best thing on the programme? Quinine? A dangerous remedy, truly. Produces caries of the bones, only affords temporary relief. Is there no substitute? Assuredly, a potent but safe one—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a certain, speedy means of expelling from the system every trace of the virus of miasma. Use it promptly, persistently. The result—a cure is certain to follow the use of this beneficent restorative of health. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous ailments, rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also among the maladies permanently remediable through the genial aid of this wholesome botanic medicine, recommended by the medical fraternity.

A letter received in New York from Lima, Peru, dated Sept. 19th, says: While Inspector Saavedra was examining explosives at the custom house on the 12th inst., a cartridge of dynamite was by some carelessness caused to explode. Twelve of the persons present were torn to pieces, three others died soon afterwards, and nineteen others were perhaps fatally injured, fragments of shell, caps and wood being blown into their flesh. Among the number killed were several high officials, a number of laborers, and some persons not connected with the custom house.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

Susan Revere, who married Henry B. Chapin at Canton, Mass., on Wednesday of last week, is a granddaughter of Paul Revere, who took the famous midnight ride.

The latest accession to knighthood in the Legion of Honor is Mme. Boucicault, proprietor of the famous Ben Marche shop in Paris.

Worth Ten Dollars.

Mrs. Louise Chandler Moulton left Paris on Tuesday of last week for the United States.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS.

CURE

SICK

Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD

Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them. In vials at 25 cents; five for $1. Sold by druggists everywhere, or sent by mail.

A Wonderful Well.

About 110 miles east of El Paso, near Sierra Blanca, on the line of the Texas & Pacific Railroad, there is a strange phenomenon that has just come to public notice. The authority for the statements about to be made is ex-Gov. John C. Brown of Tennessee, receiver of the Texas & Pacific, who visited this city a few days ago, accompanied by several officials of the road, including Division Superintendent Judy, in whose jurisdiction the phenomenon is located. Gov. Brown and Superintendent Judy told the story to one or two persons here and it has just come to the reporter's ears. About three years ago the Texas & Pacific Railway Company undertook to sink an artesian well a few miles below Sierra Blanca, which is a little hamlet ninety-five miles east of El Paso. The workmen put the pipe down about 600 feet, when suddenly an underground cavern was struck and the drill dropped about six feet and a current of air rushed up the pipe. Drilling ceased and the well was abandoned, the 600 feet of pipe remaining in the ground and giving a connection between the surface of the earth and the strange subterranean cavity a quarter of a mile beneath.

The phenomenon did not at that time attract the attention of any one sufficiently interested to investigate. Recently, however, Superintendent Judy's attention has been called to it, and his personal examination and inquiries have developed peculiar facts and testimony about the wonderful well. Gov. Brown stopped to see it on his way here. Not many people live near the well, but those who do reside in the neighborhood of it are thoroughly acquainted with it ever since it was abandoned three years ago. The people near by have been in the habit of going and sitting about the well in summer to enjoy the cool, invigorating air that rushes up the pipe. One of the strangest things is the fact that the current of air ebbs and flows like the ocean tides. From about 10:15 a. m. till 10:15 p. m. a current of air rushes out of the pipe with a sound that resembles the noise made by a locomotive "blowing off steam," and so loud that it can be heard for forty or fifty yards. At 10:15 p. m. the overflow air ceases and a strong suction sets in, which last for the next twelve hours, this ebb and flow continuing day after day, and it has been observed by horsemen that whenever they get in the neighborhood of this well strong magnetic forces are felt and sparks are given off if the horse's mane is touched.

Recently a man from Sierra Blanca was sitting close to the well, and on taking out his pocket-knife found a nail which he had in his pocket clinging to the knife. He held the knife in the current of air and found the magnetic property was greatly increased. Several weeks ago Superintendent Judy held his pocket-knife in the current of air for four minutes and the knife is still strongly magnetized from the effect. The outflowing current of air is believed to possess remarkable curative properties. Its efficiency is to be tested by experiments upon cases of paralysis and other diseases. The people who live near the wonderful well call it the "Fountain of Youth."—El Paso (Tex.) Letter to St. Louis Republican.

It has been discovered that pain is an efficient antidote to opium. To inflict this without subsequent injury it is suggested that winding twine several times tightly around the last phalanx of the finger and tying it will give pain not unlike a felon on each finger. Keep the strings on until the patient complains of pain in one of the fingers; find out which one, remove that string, and so on until the last one shall be off, and you will have saved a human life.

The man who can preserve a calm and unimpassioned demeanor while holding four aces, or who can assume an air of self-satisfied confidence while bluffing with two deuces, may often be observed later on cautiously creeping up-stairs in his stocking feet.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Miss Shawsgarden (of St. Louis)—"Your size is No. 5, is it not, Miss Breezy?" Miss Breezy (of Chicago)—"Ye-es, I may find a No. 5 desirable at this season of the year; but when I have occasion to refer to the melodrahma I don't say 'draymy.'"

"May I ask what the middle S in your name signifies, Miss Bullion?" "Certainly, Mr. De Crashhe. It stands for Shazzar." "Shazzar?" "Yes; I was named after an eminent woman mentioned in the scriptures—Belle Shazzar."—Tid-Bits.

An old colored preacher, after exhausting himself on an attempt to describe Heaven, wound up thus: "I tell you, my brethren, it is a very Kentucky of a place."—Richmond Religious Herald.

When you see a woman just about to step off from a moving open horse-car while she is facing the rear don't call out to prevent her. It will be nearly a month before the regular circus comes, and then it will cost you 50 cents to go in.—Somerville Journal.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ..... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my life a pleasure instead of from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Several little boys of Salmon Falls, while hunting for scorns in the woods in Rollinsford, Oct. 16th, came across four whole cuts of fine cloth, unbroken and with the manufacturers' tags still on them, buried under a pile of leaves. The cloth was probably the booty of some burglary, and recently placed where it was found, it not having been injured by rain or exposure. It was turned over to the Salmon Falls officials.

Rheumatism

Is undoubtedly caused by lactic acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees, ankles, hips, and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.

The Legislature.

In the house, Tuesday morning, a resolution was adopted concurring with the senate in fixing Friday, the 21st inst., as the date of final adjournment. A call of the house showed no quorum present, and an adjournment was had to afternoon.

New Hampshire Items.

A horse, wagon, harness and robe of Mrs. S. P. Dow were stolen from her stable at North Epping on the night of the 16th inst.

The dwelling of Joseph Sylvester at North Walpole was burned Oct. 16th; loss $1400; insurance $600.

The stable belonging to the Hooksett Manufacturing company was burned Oct. 16th; loss about $1200; insured.

Windows in the clothing store of D. Lothrop & Co., the confectionery store of Mark Kerns, and the shoe store of D. Frechette, in Great Falls, were broken by unknown thieves on the night of Oct. 16th. From Lothrop's three reefing jackets, three vests, an overcoat, a dozen silk handkerchiefs and other small articles were stolen, and Mr. Kerns lost several boxes of cigars; the shoe store was not entered. The thieves got no money, so far as is reported.

MARITIME NOTES.

The Appledore landing stage, now at Appledore wharf, is receiving extensive repairs.

The schooner Tamson, of Cranberry Isles, Me., was on Tuesday lying at Randall & Caswell's wharf, loading 500 bushels of apples in bulk, for Mt. Desert.

The gondolas are busily engaged in transferring merchandise to the up-river towns, in anticipation of the closing of the river by ice in a couple of months.

The schooner Herman Babson, Capt. Lawson, at Gloucester Oct. 18th from Grand banks, reports that on Sept. 30th she boarded the French fishing sloop St. Pierre, of St. Pierre, Miquelon, and found ten dead bodies floating in her cabin. The weather was so rough that nothing could be done toward recovering the bodies.

The light-house board gives notice to mariners that fog bells have been established at Mt. Desert rock, Saddleback ledge and Halfway rock light-stations, on the coast of Maine. These bells are struck by machinery, and in thick and heavy weather will be sounded a single blow at intervals of ten seconds. At Mt. Desert and Saddleback light-stations there have been fog bells, but struck by hand, and only in answer to signals from passing vessels; at Halfway rock station there has been no fog signal at all. An iron spindle thirty feet high, surmounted by a cage, has been placed on Old Man ledge, where the steamer Cambridge was wrecked.

The American Fish bureau of Gloucester reports the following from Captain Wiley of steamer Loring D. Baker, at Mobile from New York. He says he saw a large school of mackerel east-northeastward of Body island, in about twenty-two fathoms of water; trailed a line and caught one of large size. The next day, Frying Pan Shoal lightship bearing north-northwest, fifteen miles, saw schools of what appeared to be small fish, as the wake was fine, and caught two No. 1 mackerel. Captain Wiley did not think these fish had ever been very far north. Off Jupiter inlet caught several bluefish.

The French steamship Britannia, from Marseilles and Naples, which arrived at New York on the 13th inst., and was held at upper quarantine, was sent to lower quarantine on the 18th, four cases of cholera having appeared on board. She is a sister ship to the Alesia.

The barque Bristol, of Damariscotta, Me., 592 tons register, Hardy master, from Hurricane island, Me., for Pensacola with stone for the government, has not been heard from since she sailed, July 20th, and is supposed to have foundered in the gale of Aug. 26th.

The American steamers E. C. Knight and Gulf Stream were in collision off Little Egg harbor Oct. 13th, and the former went down in a few minutes; crew saved.

An unfinished Catholic school building in New York collapsed on the 17th inst., killing five persons and injuring ten others, among the latter being Father Kinner.

The Shakspere memorial fountain, presented by George W. Childs of Philadelphia, was dedicated at Stratford-upon-Avon, Oct. 17th. Henry Irving made the dedicatory address, and read a poem by Dr. Oliver Wendell Holmes.

At McKenzie, Tenn., the president and party actually got left last Saturday, the special train starting gaily off for Nashville without them. President Cleveland and wife had gone to a stand to greet the crowd, and supposing them on board, the officials started the train. The mistake was discovered a mile out, and the train backed into the station again.

Adam S. Green, colored, says he went from Maine to Aberdeen, Miss., to teach in a colored people's school, but was warned by County School Superintendent Thompson that he had better leave. He says a vigilance committee called at his sister's house just after he left, intending to lynch him. Dr. H. L. Morehouse, corresponding secretary of the American Baptist Home Mission society, says that Green's story is not exaggerated.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

"JIM, THE PENMAN."

The Concord Monitor says of "Jim the Penman," given in that city on Friday evening last: "Not more than two or three companies, if any, stand between the company that played 'Jim, the Penman,' last evening, and the distinction of being the best that ever appeared on the stage of White's opera house. The audience, which was a large one, appreciated the excellence of the work done, and while the intense interest which the play created of itself made much demonstration out of the question, expressions of approval were not withheld. The drama is unlike almost anything on the stage to-day; in absorbing interest it surpasses everything of its kind."

RISE IN TELEGRAPH RATES.

Mr. T. C. Leckey, manager of the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph office in this city, on Tuesday received a message from C. S. Jarvis, assistant superintendent of the consolidated lines, directing him to "take down all signs reading, 'Baltimore & Ohio rates one-half.'" The swallowing of this line by the Western Union having been completed, the rates have been advanced to the Western Union scale. It is said the office in this city will be maintained.

LEFT THE NAVY YARD.

A court martial was ordered to convene at this navy yard on Thursday, Oct. 20th, to try Richard H. Paine, late paymaster's clerk, on a charge of embezzling $3,856.45 of the funds under his control; but at some time between twelve o'clock P. M. on the 17th and four A. M. on the 18th he left the quarters at the navy yard in which he has been confined since his arrest several months ago, and withdrew to some locality unknown. Nothing definite could be learned on Tuesday as to just how his escape was effected; a dozen different ways were rumored, but which one (if any) was correct we cannot say. One story was to the effect that he cut the bars of his cell, hung a rope from the window, and then —walked out of the door; another, that he walked out of the door without any preliminary work, the guard being oblivious; and still another, that the guard disappeared with him. He must have left the island in a boat, but where he went afterward, whether into hiding in some previously selected retreat, on a railroad trip or on a sea voyage, is a matter of conjecture only. About all that seems certain is that he went away, and that the court martial is not likely to sit on him at the time intended.

THE REDMUND-BARRY ENTERTAINMENT.

At Music hall, next Saturday evening, the favorite performers William Redmund and Mrs. Thomas Barry, supported by a company worthy the reputation of the leading artistes, will appear in a new and greatly improved version of the spectacular romantic drama, "Rene, the Huguenot Captain." This production has been winning the highest meed of praise this season in all the large cities and towns where the company have appeared, and is acknowledged by the press to be the finest show of the kind ever before the public. Since the play was seen here last season it has been entirely remodelled, with all the former excellencies retained, and a number of new features added which cannot fail of pleasing all tastes, and make it one of the strongest productions on the road. Among the introduced attractions are the Ronaldos, the world-renowned grotesque artists in their new specialties and quaint antics, entitled "Les Revels au Zingari;" a beautiful gipsey ballet in characteristic Bohemian dances; and last, but not least, "The Cecilian Quartette" in vocal selections. The latter is one of the best of musical teams, and never fails of securing encores.

The Washington Critic, in speaking of the performance in that city recently, says: "The Cecilian Quartette are sweet singers, and were repeatedly encored. The Ronaldos are remarkably agile, and were forced to appear several times. The dancing of the 'Zingari' was graceful and as beautiful as any ballet Kiralfy has ever presented here. These features were all introduced in a natural and unobtrusive manner, so that the charge of 'vaudeville' could that be brought against the play."

The play will be staged with magnificent scenic effects by Story of Boston, elaborate costumes and striking tableaux. Tickets will go on sale Thursday, at Goodrich's bookstore.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

The supreme court for Rockingham county commenced its October term in this city on Tuesday, Judge Blodgett on the bench. The grand jurors empanelled were as follows:

Exeter, Otis H. Sleeper; Fremont, Perley A. Currier; Greenland, Thomas M. Norton; Hampstead, Charles W. Garland; Hampton Falls, Josiah E. Brown; Kensington, Frank L. Wadleigh; Kingston, Walter S. Bartlett; Londonderry, Eugene L. Campbell; Newcastle, Robert W. Neal; Newington, Charles A. Badger; Newmarket, Samuel F. Manning; Newton, Daniel D. Hall; North Hampton, George W. Page; Northwood, Nathan E. Cate; Nottingham, Noah W. Holmes; Plaistow, Clement F. Goodwin; Portsmouth (ward four,) Charles O. Hanscom; Raymond, Alvah G. Batchelder; Rye, Supply F. Trefethen; Salem, William H. Haseltine; Sandown, Hiram Fellows.

Josiah F. Brown of Hampton Falls was appointed foreman of the grand jury, and after receiving brief instructions as to their duties, the jurors retired to their room.

The session will probably be a short one.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wm. K. Norton of Concord, sheriff of Merrimac county, and wife, are visiting friends in this city.

Mr. George L. Appleton of Michigan is on a brief visit to relatives here.

Mr. Orville M. Remington, the well-known journalist of Providence, R. I., is in the theatrical business. He is in advance as the press agent of the Redmund-Barry company. Mr. Remington was for six years managing editor of the Providence Telegram, and the correspondent in that city of the Boston Globe. He is also Past Exalted Ruler of the Elks, and an ex-president of the Providence Press club. Mr. Remington paid us a very pleasant call on Monday evening.

Many strangers were in town on Tuesday, in attendance on the Baptist convention at the Middle street church, and the session of the supreme court.

The ladies are reminded of Mrs. Tebbetts' opening of pattern hats and bonnets of new fall and winter styles, at No. 14 Market street to-day.

Tuesday forenoon about eleven o'clock, a pair of horses attached to a hay-rigging belonging to Mr. Clarence deRochemont of Newington took fright while standing on Church street near the blacksmith shop of G. J. Greenleaf, and ran into and pretty thoroughly demolished a top carriage which had been placed in the street, near the hay scales. No one was injured, and the team was stopped before doing any other damage. The wrecked carriage belonged to Mr. John Hammond of Eliot, employed as a wheelwright by Mr. Greenleaf, and was driven in from Eliot that morning by the owner.

Tickets for "Jim, the Penman," at Music hall Thursday evening, went off with a rush as soon as the sale opened at Goodrich's on Tuesday morning. Any person desiring a good seat that evening had best secure it before the show commences, and the sooner the better.

Charles Brown of Wells, aged sixty years, left his home on Wednesday morning of last week to work in a salt marsh, and was not seen again until Monday morning, the 17th, when his dead body was found in the river. It is supposed he fell from his scow, used in moving his salt hay.

Mr. Alvin D. Tuttle is having built at the head of the millpond at York, a yacht which he intends to run next summer for the benefit of the visitors at the watering places in that town, and incidentally of his own. She is being constructed of the best material under the superintendence of Mr. Josiah Moore, and her dimensions are as follows: Length of keel, twenty-two feet; length over all, thirty feet; breadth, ten feet.

Mr. John Small, conductor on the York Harbor & Beach railroad, resides at the Garrison house, York beach. Bartlett Emery, engineer on the road, is an experienced man, having been long employed on the Boston & Maine. Sherman Abbott of York, also for a long time in the Boston & Maine employ, is station agent at York harbor, where a new station house is to be at once constructed.

Charles E. Cole, alias "Peanut Cole," of Biddeford, went to a show in that city on a recent evening, took a front seat in the balcony, and occasionally varied the entertainment by drinking rum out of a pint bottle. After the third act of Cole's show, an officer ordered him to put the bottle away or clear out of the hall, and was informed that there were not policemen enough in Biddeford to put him out of the hall when he had paid for his ticket. He quickly found out that there were officers enough to put him out of the hall, and into the police station; and next day he was haled before the justice, and fined.

Mr. Walker's new hotel at York Harbor it is said will have a frontage of 170 feet, with wings running back 140 feet, and will be five or six stories high. It will be much the largest and finest hotel in York, and the best appointed and furnished.

A protracted meeting is announced to be held in the Christian church at Beech Ridge, York, continuing for a week or more from Wednesday evening, the 19th inst.

The body of an unknown man, about fifty years old, and well dressed, was found on top of Mt. Moguntcook in Camden, Me., Oct. 16th, by two young men who were out shooting. He had probably been dead three weeks. There was a bullet hole in his body below the heart, and another in his head; and a few feet away was a seven-shot revolver with three chambers empty. In his pockets were $3.24, but no paper to tell who he was.

The Biddeford Journal says: "The statement made in the Knights of Labor convention at Minneapolis, Saturday, that $10,000 of the order's money was put into this congressional district to defeat Mr. Reed, will not surprise many people who were cognizant of the inner workings of the combined opposition. The phenomenal democratic vote of Biddeford and some other York county towns shows where and how the money was used. Those over confident people who joined that order with the notion that their money would be used to help their fellow wage-earners in their struggle against capital, have been sadly humbugged. Mr. Reed was elected, however."

Rev. David Garland, aged seventy-eight years, died in the pulpit of the First Congregational church at Bethel, Me., Oct. 16th.

ODDITIES.

The residence of Mr. Andrew W. Smith of Stratham, was damaged by fire on evening of the 15th inst., to the extent of about $100. The event of its origin and the subsequent novel means by which it was finally got under control is thus related: Mrs. Smith, whose husband was expected home that evening from a western trip, started a fire in the parlor chamber for the purpose of removing the chill from the room. The old soot in the chimney took fire and caused numerous sparks to fall on the roof, setting it on fire, and burning nearly one-half of one side of the roof and a portion of one end of the building before the fire was discovered. By chance the bucket had fallen from the windlass into the only well there in use, and there was no means of getting water with which to quench the rapidly spreading flames. Fortunately, however, several barrels of cider were lying outside the cellar-way, and one of the three hired men who didn't get excited advised the use of the cider, and they immediately pulled the tap and commenced putting out the fire with cider, and after a few moments fast working the fire was got under control. There was no insurance on the set of buildings, which consisted of one large two-story house and shed, one story-and-a-half house and one large barn 80x44.

Mr. Sherman Newton to-day had placed on exhibition, suspended from a hook in front of Mr. True W. Priest's saloon, an anchor fished up from the bottom of the sea about five miles off the Isles of Shoals. From the appearance of the anchor it is evident that it must have been lost at least 100 years ago, for the style of the shaft and flukes is very much at variance with the patterns of modern date, in that the shaft is about six feet in length while the spread of the flukes is not more than two and one-half feet. The fluke which was buried in the mud was well preserved, though covered with a mass of hardened shell, while the fluke which remained uppermost was wholly destroyed by rust. Originally the anchor is estimated to have weighed about 250 lbs. To-day, with the shells removed the anchor would weigh less than 50 lbs. The fishermen who hooked it from bottom declare that it is one lost by John Smith when he first came to anchor off the Shoals. Be that as it may, it is a curiosity which has attracted the attention of hundreds who have looked upon it, and wondered when and by whom it was lost.

The houses of Albert Symonds and Deacon Pray, near the Catholic church in Dover, were badly damaged by fire and water Oct. 17th.

Charles E. O'Donough, a tramp about twenty years old, burglarized Frank Plummer's store in Dover on the night of the 16th inst., and next day was held in $1000 for the supreme court.

"It's only a question of time," and a short time, too, as to when your rheumatism will yield to Hood's Sarsaparilla. Try it.

Two children of James O'Connell, aged four and two years, were suffocated by a fire in their home at Peabody, Mass., last Sunday, while their parents were away.

Mrs. Charles Smith of Jimes, Ohio, writes: I have used every remedy for sick headache I could hear of for the past fifteen years, but Carter's Little Liver Pills did me more good than all the rest.

Two of Fortunes Favorites Happy.

Mrs. Henry Helfrich, at 64 Shipley St., San Francisco, Cal., "Yes, indeed, it is true, my husband won $2,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery drawing of the 9th ult., and we are both very glad of it. My husband has bought a nice little property on Turk St., where we intend to live in a short time." Also to Herman confectioner of Messrs. Schroth & Westerfeld. He confirmed his wife's statement. He had never expected such a good luck as this. After considerable difficulty in finding William Dowling, a workman in the employ of the Oakland Gas Company, he said: "Yes, my name was published! I looked for my ticket and found it crumpled up into a ball in one corner of my vest pocket. I unrolled it and compared it with the list, when, for a moment, I thought I must be drunk or crazy, but when I looked again I found that I was right and my number had won the $2,000." He is one of his employers and fellow-workmen to be an honest, hard-working man, and all seem to rejoice in his good fortune.—San Francisco (Cal.) Call, Sept. 9th.

Platform Echoes.

John B. Gough's Last and Best Book.

This new and splendidly illustrated volume is the last book written by the world-famous John B. Gough, and was completed by him just previous to his death. Every one is familiar with the story of his early life, and of his rescue from a drunkard's grave, and how this once wretched and despised sot became one of the most famous men of our times. For seven years he stood amid the horrors of delirium tremens, an abject slave to the bottle; and his condition and wretched appearance were such as to cause people to exclaim, "There's the man who has been in hell." The rich and poor, the high, the low, the learned and unlearned, have been alike thrilled and moved by his burning words. He swayed brilliant audiences of royalty and fashion; spoke in state prisons, jails, poor houses, penitentiaries, reform schools and houses of correction; to the deaf, and dumb, and blind; to audiences composed wholly of outcasts; and to audiences numbering thousands of children. At his feet more than ten million people sat and listened in admiration and wonder. In his library may be seen a set of large volumes—a far better memorial of his life and labors than any monument of marble or bronze—containing the original signatures of one hundred and fifty thousand men and women who were induced to sign the pledge through his personal efforts.—These names—many of them tear-bedewed and written with trembling hand—represent stories of happiness and woe, of ruin and remorse, of blighted hopes and wasted lives, of battles fought and victory won. To give some of these thrilling life histories; to depict scenes of joy and sadness; to lift the curtain on life's stage and show its tragedy and comedy; and to draw "living truths" from the lessons thus taught, and bring them home to every heart, is the prime object of this volume. It also contains the history of Mr. Gough's life and career, from the cradle to the grave, and the story of his death told by Rev. Dr. Lyman Abbott, the eminent editor and divine.

"Platform Echoes" is John B. Gough in print. Stranger stories are here told than romance ever dreamed of, every one of them drawn from real life by a master hand. In every chapter he weaves in anecdote after anecdote, incident after incident, story after story, and underneath them all lie "Living Truths" that stand out as beacon lights. He plays upon the reader's feelings as with an enchanter's wand, at one time filling his heart with gladness, at another blinding his heart with tears. At his bidding, hearts are melted, and stern, strong men, as well as sensitive women, weep tears of compassion, are aroused to indignation, or moved to uncontrollable laughter in spite of every effort to control their feelings.

Its illustrations are the best we have ever seen. It contains two hundred and twenty-seven fine engravings by the best artists and engravers in the world. Many of these illustrations are "too funny for anything," while others depict wretchedness and woe. Sixteen of these engravings are full-page ones, and are magnificent specimens of art. Two hundred and nine are text illustrations. There are two fine steel-plate portraits. One is from a life-size, full length painting, showing Mr. Gough as he appeared shortly after his rescue. The other is from a photograph taken just before his death. All in all, it is one of the finest ever produced by the American press.

We advise our readers to buy Platform Echoes at the first opportunity. They can, in our opinion, much better afford to dispense with a dozen other books than not possess this. Once begun it will not willingly be laid aside till the last page is finished.

Mr. Albert Johnson is canvassing our city for its sale, and we bespeak for him and the book a generous reception.

"On fortune's cap we're not the very button," but we think ourselves extremely lucky since we have found a sovereign remedy for pain. It is Salvation Oil.—twenty-five cents a bottle.

The Boston brewers having again positively refused to recognize the labor union, a vigorous no license effort on their part is reported as the probable result.

Relief from sick headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. These complaints are hearly always caused by torpid liver and constipated bowels. Restore these organs to their proper functions and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Don't forget this. Price 25 cents.

I Am Proud

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

A Sudden Sensation

Of chilliness invading the backbone, followed by hot flushes and profuse perspiration. We all know these symptoms, if not by experience, from report. What's the best thing on the programme? Quinine? A dangerous remedy, truly. Produces caries of the bones, only affords temporary relief. Is there no substitute? Assuredly, a potent but safe one—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a certain, speedy means of expelling from the system every trace of the virus of miasma. Use it promptly, persistently. The result—a cure is certain to follow the use of this beneficent restorative of health. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous ailments, rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also among the maladies permanently remediable through the genial aid of this wholesome botanic medicine, recommended by the medical fraternity.

I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

HOW WE ARE SWINDLED.

The Experience of "Another Man" as Told by an ex-County Judge.

We were seated on the deck of an up-river steamer making the trip from St. Louis to St. Paul and had been talking about swindlers and frauds.

"The first time I was ever taken in," said my companion, Judge Johnson, a retired country Judge, "was when I was 16 years old, and it does seem that I have not cut my wisdom teeth yet. Every stray swindler who comes along manages to rope me in and I never learn to keep clear of him."

"Sixteen was pretty early to make his acquaintance was it not? How did he manage to skin you? And how deep?" I asked.

"It was not very much, only a quarter, but the way in which it was done is worth relating. The strange part of it was that the old reliable Youth's Companion of Boston was the means of bleeding many innocents of their 25 cents. When I was about 16 I was a regular subscriber to that paper, and would as soon have expected my own father to cheat me as to mistrust anything in that paper. One week there appeared an advertisement something like this, as near as I can remember:

WANTED—AUTHORS IN EVERY TOWNship; no experience required. Write to —— —— for information.

"I wrote, and in reply received a circular to the effect that a company was compiling material for a most gigantic history of the United States. Each State was to be done in one volume at the uniform price of $5. The company wished a correspondent in each township, and as remuneration would send the writer a copy of the history of his own State—as soon as it was published. If they needed his services after he had written up his own township they would let him know and pay him in cash or with more books. In conclusion, the circular demanded a quarter of a dollar as a guarantee of good faith and to pay for a list of questions which they desired answered. I sent the quarter."

"And never heard from it again?"

"No. I did hear from it, for by return mail I received a second circular containing about thirty questions concerning the topography and history of the township in which I lived."

"Did you answer them?"

"Yes. It amuses me yet when I think of the serious way in which I worked them up. In fact, if I should meet the 'publisher' I would be willing to give him another quarter as an acknowledgment of the trick he played on me and of my own gullibility. And still I am afraid that he did not make very much out of his game. There were two letters to each victim, with a postage of six cents, two envelopes, and two printed circulars. His profit could not have been more than 15 cents. Of course I never heard of the history again."

Whether or not I had ever been duped, even to the small amount of a quarter, I did not propose to confess, but just to keep the conversation up and to see if my companions had any more reminiscenses I asked if he had ever stumbled up against the "portrait copying" swindle. He confessed that he never had and asked me what it was.

"If you ever read the personal columns of the daily papers you must have come across the 'ads.' I read them every day. Not for information, but for amusement. There are some queer things to be found in those columns."

"I know it," he replied, sententiously.

"Within the last year or so several enterprising Eastern gentlemen have advertised for "artists;" the work, copying portraits; the advantages, work at home and no canvassing; the pay, princely. I spotted the scheme as a swindle and thought no more about it; but one of my friends was taken in."

"His name, please?"

"Never mind his name. In reply to a letter of inquiry he received a circular asking for $2 for apparatus. The $2 was sent and the material for copying received. My friend was something of an artist, but to save him he could not make a decent picture with the material sent to him. He even called in the assistance of a professional artist. The latter told him that it was impossible to turn out out anything but "blotches." So he gave it up. He had the curiosity, however, to send his caricatures to the Eastern gentlemen who promptly replied that they showed talent, but were not quite up to the required standard, and urged the artist to persevere."

"It's queer how people are taken in," said my companion, meaningly, but I passed over his remark in silence.

"Do you know," he said after a few minutes, "that the literary dodge is almost taking the place of the counterfeit swindle. Of course there is plenty of the latter going on, but not so openly as formerly. It seems almost as though the 'sharpers' were taking advantage of the literary craze which has captured the feeble-minded of the country. Did you ever have any experience with the cheap book game?"

"What do you mean? ——and——?"

"No, no. They are legitimate publishers. I see you never have and will give you a pointer. It is a neat swindle, and one which rarely gets its perpetrator into trouble. A book is hastily compiled from other works—generally consists of some very valuable practical hints for farmers, mechanics, and others of the working class. Of course it ought to have some good in it, for all the author has to do is to steal his copy from some standard works. Then a catchy title is secured, such as 'The Farmers' Handbook, 'Knowledge for the Masses,' or 'How to Keep Well.' Then the services of a cheap printing office are secured and a cheap edition printed on poor paper and with broken type. The expense is very light. A few copies are gotten up in good shape for canvassing. The 'agent' visits a small village and seeks out the leading man of the place, generally a retired politician or 'Squire who thinks much of his title. A few notices are artfully inserted in the local paper, and the public is soon well acquainted with the gentlemanly canvasser. You know very little is needed to interest a quiet country place, where sensations are few and far between. At length the Judge is induced to take the agency for the work. 'His name and influence,' you know, will be worth so much that special terms can be given him. The books are to be sent him; he is to secure agents and superintend the sales, and on each book he is to have a commission of, say, 25 per cent. Before the 'agent' leaves he secures the signature of the 'Squire' to some sort an agreement as this:

"'I agree to take 2— dozen copies of "The Farmers' Handbook," paying all charges, and to act as agent for the same in Kokomo County, at $2 per copy.

"'J. L. SMITH, J. P.

"'Witness—Richard Roe.'

"The agreement is afterward raised from two dozen to twenty by inserting a cipher after the figure two, and the dollar blank is filled up. Sometimes, almost always, the victim tries to make trouble, but there is his signature, with the agent as witness. He knows that he has been swindled, but it would be difficult to prove it."

"You say that a country 'Squire is generally the victim?"

But my companion did not hear the question.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease cover again. I am a poor man, but feel rich in be relieved of what some of the doctors still call a leprosy; some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used was one set of three bottles of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

The Veto Message.

The following is the message of Gov. Sawyer vetoing the passage of the Hazen bill:

To the House of Representatives:

I herewith return house bill No. 28 entitled an act in amendment of chapter 100 of the laws of 1883 entitled an act providing for the establishment of railroad corporations by general law without my signature. It is with great regret that I feel called upon to exercise this power given to the executive by the constitution and withhold my approval from a measure which has passed both branches of the legislature by decided majorities after a thorough and able discussion covering a period of nearly four months and prolonging the session far beyond their usual limits at great expense to the state.

Without entering upon the intrinsic merit of the measure to express my opinion upon a question of such vital importance to the state and upon which the people may wish to be heard, I am moved to object to this bill for the reason that corrupt methods have been extensively used for the purpose of promoting its passage. The two powerful railroad corporations which have antagonized each other in the contest have had in attendance a paid lobby of unprecedented magnitude and as a consequence the representatives have been persistently followed and interfered with in the free performance of their legislative duties. The widespread rumors and scandalous tales of bribery and corruption which have been freely current during the progress of the contest, finally materialized through charges preferred in the senate and also in the house after the passage of the bill.

By the courtesy of the chairman of the judiciary committee of the house upon my request I have received the official records of the testimony thus far taken by that committee in their investigation of the charges. The provision of the constitution limiting the time in which the executive veto may be interposed together with the probable early adjournment of the legislature forces me to take action upon the measure without waiting for the completion of the investigation and report of the committee. The evidence thus far obtained is in my opinion sufficient to justify the action here taken.

While I am glad to be able to say that no evidence has yet been produced to show that any member has been unfaithful to his trust and oath of office, yet to my mind it is conclusively shown that there have been deliberate and systematic attempts at wholesale bribery of the servants of the people in the legislature. It matters not that both of the parties are probably guilty, the fact that this bill, if it should become a law, would go on to the statute book carrying with it the suspicion that it had been fraudulently enacted, is sufficient reason why it and all legislation similarly affected should be condemned. The danger of permitting the use of such methods as have been here employed, is too obvious to require extended comment, and the most effectual way to check such practices is to have it understood that no bill attempted to be passed by such means can become a law.

When the promoters of a measure see fit to offer bribes to members they cannot be allowed to excuse themselves on the ground that their offers were not accepted. If it comes to be understood that unsuccessful attempts of this nature will not imperil the passage of a bill such offers will become much more frequent. If the offer is accepted neither party will be likely to disclose the fact. If it is rejected it is in this view to be considered as of no consequence, and hence no harm would be done to the prospects of the bill. The bare statement of such doctrine is its best answer.

In degree as these corrupt practices are allowed to pass unnoticed the moral sense of not only legislators but also of the people will become dull to their enormity and in the end make government a farce and an object of contempt. As the honor of the individual should be above price so in a larger sense should the honor of the state be judiciously guarded. Being strongly impressed that the honor and good name of the state and its legislature is involved in countenancing the methods that have been practiced to secure the passage of the measure and that all other considerations should be set aside and feeling that my duty is plain, I veto the bill.

CHARLES H. SAWYER,
Governor.

It will be seen that the governor does not in any way refer to the merits or demerits of the bill, basing his veto solely on his belief that there have been systematic attempts at wholesale bribery of the legislators by the lobbying retainers of the Boston & Maine and the Concord railroads, he regarding that "both of the parties are probably equally guilty" in this respect.

The judiciary committee of the house on the 19th inst. voted, seven to five, to recommend that the veto be sustained. The minority will recommend the passage of the bill over the veto.

Justice, Not Law.

Dan Cunningham of Eureka, W. Va., a noted state detective, was hung by a vigilance committee Oct. 17th. He was the instigator of the robbery of many persons by the gang that robbed and murdered Rev. Mr. Ryan; this last crime was what finally roused the people, and six of the seven men engaged in it had been disposed of up to the 18th. There are a dozen or more members of the gang living, but they are all known and will be hunted down, and will die as soon as caught.

The Veto.

The indications are that the governor may have struck against the very rock the presence of which, he fears, has so demoralized the legislature. If every measure sought to be passed by the general court is to fail in becoming a law, because the efforts of a lobby have been exerted for or against it, there would of course be an end to all enactments either of public or private bills. The governor sees no danger in the law itself, nor any constitutional objection, only in the mode of the advocates and opponents, and he does not pretend that the appliances were confined to either side. The veto postpones what is regarded by impartial critics as a needed enactment entirely proper to be passed, and required in the proper development of the interests of the state. It was boasted that the energies of the opponents of the Hazen bill would be exerted in divers ways to compass a veto. The friends of the bill appear to have relied upon what they regarded as an expression of the wishes of the people of the state, made through a majority of their representatives, and did not attempt to work the governor in the manner credited to the other side. We regret that after so long discussion of the bill in the legislature, the governor should not have either taken more time to consider his duty, or perhaps given a hearing on the question of exercising the veto power, as is the practice in the state of New York.

As an outgrowth of the investigation of the Pacific railroad commission, representatives of the holders of the consolidated bonds of the Kansas Pacific Railway company are to at once bring suit against Jay Gould and Russell Sage. The plaintiffs pray for the removal of Gould and Sage from their trusteeship; that they be made to account for the stock of the Union Pacific issued in exchange for the stock of the Denver Pacific Railway & Telegraph company; that they account for all dividends on the stock; that proper persons be appointed in the stead of Gould and Sage as trustees under the deed of trust; that a receiver be appointed to take possession of the trust funds and to administer the trust until the final decree in the suit and the appointment of new trustees; that pending the litigation Gould and Sage be enjoined from interfering with the trust; and that such other relief may be granted as may be just. The complaint is brought in behalf of the owners and holders of the Kansas Pacific consolidated bonds who may unite in the proceedings. They claim that Gould and Sage are accountable to them for $6,000,000.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less. I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

The court was engaged on Wednesday, the 19th inst., in hearing several civil cases.

The petit jurors summoned for the present term are as follows: Atkinson, John K. Mason, Samuel P. Foote; Derry, Ellsworth H. Carleton, Geo. L. Choate; Exeter, F. H. Samson, Jacob Carlisle, George S. Leavitt; Londonderry, Horatio P. Rowell; Newmarket, Eben W. Wiggin, Thomas Garland, Henry F. Toflin; Portsmouth, James L. Parker, John W. Huntress, A. Sydney Wentworth, Isaac Furber, Charles H. Garrett, John A. Rand, Oliver Manson; Raymond, Seth F. Lane; Rye, Albert M. Walker; Salem, Samuel P. Kelley, John Woodbury; Seabrook, Nicholas Gyman, Geo. W. Chase; South Seabrook, George S. Paul; South Hampton, Samuel T. Woodman, John Page; Stratham, Emmons B. Chase, Jas. W. Rollins; Windham, Augustus L. Barker, Joseph W. Dinsmoor.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

The mystery attending the escape of Richard H. Paine, late paymaster's clerk in the navy, from custody at the navy yard, had not been dispelled up to the evening of the 19th inst. The statement that a marine named Wilson, who was on guard over the prisoner on the night of his escape, disappeared at the same time, was reiterated that day; and it was also reported on the streets that Paine was not confined in a cell, but kept under special guard in a room at the marine barracks, so that no need existed for the cutting of window bars, as one previous story alleged was done. A corporal of marines, said to have been in charge of the guard on the night of the escape, came to this city on the afternoon of the 18th, hired a team at one of the livery stables, and drove off; the team was returned in the evening by another man, but whether this incident had any connection with Paine's departure only those behind the scenes could tell, and they wouldn't. A reward of $250 has been offered for the recapture of the fugitive, and $20 for the apprehension of the derelict marine.

A Washington despatch received here on the night of the 18th inst. said: "The meeting of the naval court martial, which was to convene at the Portsmouth, N. H., navy yard on Thursday, the 20th, for the trial of Paymaster Putnam's clerk, Richard H. Paine, has been indefinitely postponed. Word reached the navy department to-day that Paine, who is charged with stealing over $3000 from the paymaster, escaped some time last night from the cell in the navy yard, where he had been confined. So the meeting of the court martial has been postponed until the fugitive is recaptured, and meanwhile a court of inquiry has been ordered to ascertain how the prisoner escaped, and fix the responsibility therefor. The court will meet Friday, the 21st, at the Portsmouth navy yard, and will consist of Captain Joseph N. Miller, Commander George H. Wadleigh and Commander Frank Wildes, with Lieutenant Adolph Marix as judge advocate."

Heavy reports as of cannon were heard at frequent but irregular intervals during the day on Wednesday, the 19th inst., evidently proceeding from the navy yard. Some people supposed the sounds to indicate that Clerk Paine and Marine Wilson had been caught, and were being executed in accordance with martial law, but this supposition was incorrect; the explosions were caused by workmen engaged in blowing to pieces, with dynamite, the old boilers recently sold by auction on the yard. This method of breaking old boilers to pieces is much cheaper, quicker and better than the old plan of attacking them with sledge hammers and cold chisels, as a single dynamite cartridge of the proper power breaks the heads off every rivet in a large boiler, and reduces it to plates of a size to be easily handled.

PERSONAL.

A. J. Hoyt of the Exeter Protest was in town on Wednesday of this week. His editorial duties do not seem to worry him much, for he tips the scales at 200 pounds.

Wm. H. Hanson of Salem, Mass., formerly manager of the telephone exchange in this city, was in town on Wednesday.

Frank J. Boss of Newburyport, Mass., was in this city on the 19th inst. on a brief visit to relatives here.

AFFAIRS IN KITTERY.

KITTERY, ME., Oct. 18th.

Mr. Owen E. Pettigrew is at work on his new barn, and will probably raise the frame this week; it will be "40x60 and (not) 100 feet long."

Dr. Walter E. Fernald of South Boston visited his parental home in North Kittery on Sunday last, with his bride.

A delegation of Good Templars from Whipple lodge of this town visited Harmony lodge at South Berwick on Monday evening last; they went in one of Beacham's barges of Portsmouth. All report a splendid time, and were well entertained.

Charles Morse has been at home from Merrimac, Mass., for a short vacation the past week, and returned to duty this week.

Gowen W. Brooks has purchased a fine cabinet organ from Robert E. Fleming of Portsmouth, who is selling some first-class ones in this vicinity.

Mr. Geo. A. Lambert has returned from the mountains, where he has been employed during the summer, and is now at his home in North Kittery.

Postmaster Trefethen has been making improvements in the post-office at the Foreside; noticeable among them are enlargement, and the addition of a number of new boxes, quite a number of them being lock-boxes, which is something new for this place.

Mr. Edward Resnick is putting in the foundation for a new house on a lot which he recently purchased of Mr. Daniel Marden at the Foreside.

Tickets for the Redmund-Barry dramatic company's entertainment, "Rene," at Music hall on Saturday evening, go on sale at Goodrich's bookstore to-day.

Mrs. Tebbetts' opening of fashionable hats and bonnets on Wednesday was largely attended, and will continue today.

The tides are running quite high now; "the dump," between the city yard and Edward street, was overflowed at high water on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Ground was broken at the Jones brewery this week for a new building of brick, to be 150 feet long, forty-five feet wide, and fourteen feet high to the eaves; it is intended for a coal shed, and will hold between 1500 and 2000 tons.

Miss Mabel Rogers, eldest daughter of Mr. M. W. Rogers of East Marshfield, Mass., was married on Tuesday afternoon, Oct. 18th, to Mr. Newell C. Trickey of this city, ticket agent at the Boston & Maine railroad station for several years past. The ceremony, which took place at the residence of the bride's parents, was performed by Rev. Mr. Tunis, pastor of the Unitarian church of East Marshfield. The newly married pair, after a brief tour through central New York, will take up their residence at No. 7 Maplewood avenue, this city.

Capt. Fred White of Cape Porpoise, who shot himself in the head on the 9th inst. in consequence of a disagreement with his sweetheart, died this week from the effects of the wound.

Horse thieves are quite busy in southern New Hampshire of late. Samuel Ham of Barrington had a horse, harness and buggy stolen from his stable on Monday night, the 17th inst. On the same night Charles Hayes of Madbury had a horse stolen from his stable and a lot of eatables from his cellar; and Jeremiah York of Dover had a horse, harness and buggy stolen.

An attempt was made to burn the farm buildings of Dr. Robert Mason at Stratham on Sunday, the 16th inst., while the family were at church. Bedding in several rooms was found saturated with kerosene, and in one room fire had made quite a headway when discovered.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

by reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines at Kansas City, Council Bluffs, Northwest and Southwest, is the only trunk middle line in that transcontinental system which does not force travel from its main line to other directions between the Atlantic and Pacific.

Its main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Galesburg, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Iowa City, Des Moines, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Avoca, Council Bluffs, Shenandoah, Creston and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable, and the management is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its dining, accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains Carry Sleepers and the Missouri River connect of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and between Kansas City, Atchison and Kansas City—roofed Reclining Chair Cars.

The Picturesque Albert Lea Route

is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Pullman Express train direct to the famous resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. Rich farming lands and growing towns of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, pleasant route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from employes of the Rock Island trains politeness, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing all other blessings enjoyment. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

The Boston Traveller, commenting on the veto of the Hazen bill by Gov. Sawyer, says: "The motives of the governor cannot be questioned by those who know him, and political considerations fortunately have not entered into his action, but it is, all the same, action that must be regretted. It leaves the vexatious railroad problem of the state still unsolved. * * This is the more to be regretted, since the final solution of the railroad problem of the state must, in the nature of things, inevitably be virtually that proposed by the Hazen bill, and Governor Sawyer's action simply postpones the inevitable and the desirable. It is of course important that the practices of legislative lobbies should be rebuked, but it is a serious question whether it is not a dangerous principle to establish, that all that is necessary to defeat legislation is to bring a large lobby into the field, and then for the defeated party to raise the cry of corruption and bribery. It is a questionable principle on which to base veto action—that of unproved charges of corruption."

"We had quite an exciting time at our house last night." "Ah, what was the matter?" "Why, our fourth floor called out in the middle of the night; 'Won't somebody get me a bottle, quick please?' 'Whiskey, I said?' 'No, no—Dr. Bull's cough syrup.'"

Since the death of "Aunt Jennie," the newsboys' friend, in Cincinnati, a movement has been started in that city to erect a suitable and comfortable newsboys' home. The charge of it will be given to a Mrs. McCabe, who for many years aided Aunt Jennie in the care of the newsboys.

The new volume in Ticknor's Paper Series is "Aunt Serena," by Blanche Willis Howard, author of "Guenn" and "One Summer." In its original and more expensive cloth-bound form, this admirable story reached the enormous sale of 22,000 copies, and an immense edition will be called for in the new and cheaper shape. It is a charming and healthful story of American-colony life and society, in a South-German city, full of bright and piquant situations. For sale by all newsdealers, price fifty cents; sent post paid, on receipt of the price by the publishers.

Relief from sick headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. These complaints are nearly always caused by torpid liver and constipated bowels. Restore these organs to their proper functions and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Don't forget this. Price 25 cents.

Women are daily receiving recognition in Iowa, several having recently been nominated for county superintendents of schools. The union labor party of Polk county has placed Mrs. Harriett Ballangee, a prominent suffrage worker, upon their ticket as candidate for superintendent of public schools.

I Am Proud

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

The treasury department has made a contract with Colonel Bangs, of Waterville, Me., to do the stone work of the first story of the public building at Augusta. It is found that an extra appropriation will have to be made to complete the second story.

For Scrofula, Impoverished Blood and General Debility,

Scott's Emulsion of Pure Cod Liver Oil, with Hypophosphites, has no equal in the whole realm of medicine. Read the following: "I gave one bottle of Scott's Emulsion to my own child for Scrofula, and the effect was marvelous." —O. F. Gray, M. D., White Ball, Ind.

Mrs. Burnett's "Little Lord Fauntleroy" has reached its thirtieth thousand.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Two of Fortunes Favorites Happy.

Mr. Henry Gerrish, at 64 Shipley St., San Francisco, said: "Yes, indeed, it is true, my husband won $2,000 in The Louisiana State Lottery and one of the 5th ult., and we are both very glad of it. My husband has bought a nice little property on Turk St., where we intend to live in a short time." He is foreman, quoclebinner of Messrs. Schroth & Westerfeld. He confirmed his wife's statement. He had never expected such a stroke of good luck as this. After considerable difficulty in finding William Bowling, a workman in the employ of the Oakland Gas Company, he said: "Yes, when the list was published I looked for my ticket and found it crumpled up into a ball in one corner of my vest pocket. I unrolled it and compared it with the list, and to my astonishment, I thought I must be drunk or crazy, but then I looked again I found that I was right and my number had come $2,000." He is said by his employers and fellow-workmen to be an honest, hard-working man, and all seem to rejoice in his good fortune.—San Francisco (Cal.) Call, Sept. 8th.

I had stone in the Bladder and Gravel in the Kidneys. Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy disintegrated the stone and delivered me from it. I am now well. I should long ago have been six feet under the sod if I had not taken Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy.—D. D. Hoag, Lebanon Springs, N. Y. Price $1. Send 2-cent stamp to Dr. Kennedy, Rondout, N. Y., for his book on Kidney, Liver and Blood disorders. Mention this paper.

A Sudden Sensation

Of chilliness invading the backbone, followed by hot flushes and profuse perspiration. We all know these symptoms, if not by experience, from report. What's the best thing on the programme? Quinine? A dangerous remedy, truly. Produces caries of the bones, only affords temporary relief. Is there no substitute? Assuredly, a potent but safe one—Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, a certain, speedy means of expelling from the system every trace of the virus of miasma. Use it promptly, persistently. The result—a cure is certain to follow the use of this beneficent restorative of health. Dyspepsia, liver complaint, nervous ailments, rheumatism and inactivity of the kidneys and bladder, are also among the maladies permanently remediable through the genial aid of this wholesome botanic medicine, recommended by the medical fraternity.

Michael H. Burke, aged seventeen years, who killed his stepfather, Patrick Joyce, July 4th, has been acquitted by a jury at Providence, R. I.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

Pastor Miller, of the Washington street Methodist church, and Pastor Decker, of the East Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., have been deposed from pastoral functions for immorality.

A French Canadian boy was robbed by five tramps at Salmon Falls on the night of Oct. 15th. Four of the party were captured, tried, and sentenced to thirty days in the county jail. The fifth tramp escaped.

To any family, is Dr. Kaufmann's book on diseases, finely illustrated plates from life; don't be humbugged, but cure yourself. Send three 2-cent stamps for postage to A. P. Ordway & Co., Boston, Mass., and receive a copy free.

Palmer Weeden, a farmer, while trying a new sail boat on Wickaboag pond, West Brookfield, Mass., was capsized and drowned. He was about thirty-five years old, and unmarried.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

They Come No More.

The little voice that lisped its morning song,
The little feet that pattered all day long,
The little fingers that mine so loved to press,
The little red lips whose touch was a caress—
They come no more—alas! they come no more!

They come no more!
The laughing eyes that fondly looked in mine,
The baby ways that 'round the heart-strings twine,
The curly head that nestled on my breast—
They come no more—alas! they come no more.

And yet, to soothe my sorrow and regret,
The feeling comes my boy is with me yet.
I know that some day, when this life is past,
Loving me still the same, with joy at last
He'll come once more—ah! yes, he'll come once more!

AN IDYL OF BAR HARBOR.

The tall postman with the sad eye, who was engaged to the cook we had last fall, has just given the following note to my maid:

NEWPORT, May 10.

"DEAREST MADGE: I know you will forgive me for having left your dear letter five whole days unanswered, when you will see by this that you are the first to whom I break the news of what has transformed me from a girl into a woman, for I am in love, Madge, and I am to marry him sometime next month, and his name is Reginald Dallas—have you ever heard of him, dear? He is a Southerner—was born in New Orleans and his people live there, but Reg has been for some years in Boston, though he says when we are married he will settle in New York to please me. What more shall I tell you, dear, except that I am the proudest, happiest woman in the world, and I am dying to hear from you.

FLORRIE.

"P. S.—I forgot to tell you how handsome he is—he has the most perfect face I ever saw and his voice is music. Do write me at once, dear.

"P. S. again.—Reg has just come. He met you once—at Bar Harbor, I think he said. How glad I am you know him, for you can congratulate me, truly. F."

You do not know what a shock that note was to me, for Florrie is the dearest little girl I know, and she was seventeen only last year. Know Reg Dallas! Yes, I had that honor once. I might, too, have had the honor of becoming Mrs. Dallas had I chosen to commit that romantic but unenviable hari-kori. And now Florrie!—I wonder her foolish mother could dream of such a thing. Ah, well.

Reg Dallas is just the type to be adored by a school-girl—just the man to be shunned by a young woman who has learned her anthropological A B C's, as a clever Cambridge girl said of him at Mount Desert that year. He has almost perfect features—a straight nose, a broad, low brow, a mouth firm and clear cut, eyes of dark brown, with jetty lashes and brow; crisp black hair, rippling in little waves; very white, strong teeth, but a chin which to me expressed weakness and irresolution. That chin was my beacon warning. The eye may be trained at a mirror—we girls know that—so, too, may the mouth; but the chin is there and no art can change it. I have never seen a strong man with a weak, pointed, under-sized, chin, nor a weak man with a chin which was massive and square. Why it is, I leave to deliciously vague but interesting Mr. Herron-Allen; but he, I believe, reads characters in the wrinkles and bumps of the hands alone. I only know it is so.

Mr. Dallas was very chivalrous to me from the first moment I met him. Dear, fussy old Mrs. Dragomon presented him and explained to mamma that he was one of the ineffable "first families," and had some money and all that, but mamma happened to know that everybody from Louisiana whose ancestors owned a negro before the war is a "first family," and calmly refused to go into hysterics; but had no objection to Mr. Dallas accompanying me to Rodick's, where Lulu Randolph was to make up the Dutch buckboard party going to Great Head and Somesville next day. Before we got fairly out of our grounds Mr. Dallas began to work on my feelings with his low, tropical voice. He asked me if I had ever been Norway. I replied that I had not. He said he had been there once only, killing salmon in the Glommen, which he said was a river. Then he paused, gazed at me intently, averted his eyes, drew a long, lingering breath, and said, with a far-away look: "I am glad—very glad I went to Norway."

"Why?" I asked, wondering how that long trip for a few miserable fishes, which I am sure could have been purchased much more reasonable in any market on this side, could possibly have even the remotest connection with me.

"Because," he replied, with another dreamy glance, "I else would have found it impossible to name a similie for your eyes."

Was not this nicely calculated to make one's pulse thrill? To meet a "dark young man in white flannels," as the gypsies say, one minute, and next to have him calmly relate that he is glad he went to Norway to find a simile for your eyes, is just one degree short of a moral earthquake. But somehow I didn't thrill, although I know I flushed, and it made me tingle with inward rage to see he noticed the silly hectic and misconstrued it as a symptom that I was pleased. I was profoundly puzzled, and I was annoyed, but I contained myself.

"Well, and what is the simile, Mr. Dallas?" I inquired, after a moment's silence, for those horrible Joneses were gadding by.

"That arm of the sea running up between the granite walls guarding it from the tempest," he replied, searching my face again: "clear, cold, blue and gray commingling, infinite depth and calmness suggested and half revealed, a power which awes and yet charms, a service title obbing and flowing between the buds of summer and the winter's ice, majestic and yet tender—such is the Norwegian fiord, and such—your eyes."

I did not smile. I have often wondered since why and how my sense of the ridiculous took wing at that moment, but it did. I was merely conscious of the fact that either Mr. Dallas was a fool or that he thought me one. As more complimentary to her majesty myself, I took the former horn of the dilemma. I remarked that I thought we were going to have rain. He glanced upward quickly, and then at my face.

"I—I beg pardon?" he said, with a pained, rising inflection as though my weather interruption had bruised him. And then, seeing that the clear, blue-and-gray fiords were searching the skies in an exceedingly prosaic way, he consented to be meteorological, too, and remarked that he thought possibly—in fact, probably that—but—here again his tropical glances took a passionate plunge into the fiords—if it should happen to rain, he had an umbrella at Rodick's and——. He said this with as much empressement as though an umbrella was some sacred variety of shelter of which he possessed the only specimen extant; and as though a cyclone was about to break loose, and his powerful arms were the only things between me and immediate destruction.

How comes it to pass that, thoughtless and regardant only of superficial things as we women are, there are wonderful moments in which, like an olden seer, we rend the inmost secrets of character, and catch a swift, sure glimpse of our future with it, like a scroll unfurled? All that Reginald Dallas was and all that I would know him to be, stood out like a Rembrandt in that moment, clear and vivid as though from solid darkness the lamp of the lightning had flashed upon it. I knew him as if I had known him years, and I knew, too, that one woman, at least would teach him a tiny lesson.

Roderick's was in a little more than its usual uproar, for the City of Richmond had just brought up an army of Harvard kids, whom anxious mammas and sisters were tucking away in pairs somewhere up under the garret, and I had some trouble in finding Lulu. Finally I discovered her on the gallery that runs fore and Sproul's, arranging the lads with Mrs. Sackett, who was to be the giddy chaperon of the picnic, as she would persist in calling it. Lulu rose delightedly as I called to her, and was coming forward with the most radiant smile, when she suddenly saw Mr. Dallas, involuntarily stopped as though some one had struck her a blow, became almost deathly pale, but controlled herself and came forward to kiss me. Her lips and hand in that brief moment's emotion had turned to ice, and I could see, though she spoke to Mr. Dallas in a commonplace way enough, all that had passed between them. Lulu is one of the loveliest girls I have ever known—a true, beautiful nature, and refined to her finger tips. But she and her mother have not, I fancy, much of this world's goods, and he—well, she had amused him; I saw that at a glance—in the intervals of his chasing the golden butterfly he had seen her, he had idly wooed for an hour, or a day or a week—just long enough to know that her love was his, and then—why is it that the pleasure of the chase is all men care for? The prize won, ceases to be of value. * * *

The Legislature.

In the house on the 20th inst. the minority report of the judiciary committee, that the Hazen bill be passed over the governor's veto, was adopted in lieu of the majority report, which recommended that it be not so passed. The vote to substitute the minority report was 159 to 125.

At Cross Purposes.

Secretary of State Bayard and Attorney General Garland are irreconcilably in opposition on the question of the seizure of British sealing vessels in Behring sea. The Pan-Electric official supports the treasury department in seizing the vessels more than three miles from land, while Mr. Bayard holds that the position of the treasury department in claiming jurisdiction over the waters more than three miles from the Alaska shore is untenable, and contrary to the position assumed by the United States in dealing with the claims of Canada on the eastern coast. It is asserted with great positiveness that Mr. Bayard will resign unless he is sustained by the president, while if the president endorses the position of the secretary of state, Mr. Garland cannot well remain in the cabinet. The country could stand it very well to have both of them go.

Great Strike of Shoemakers.

In Philadelphia, Oct. 19th, five thousand persons engaged in the manufacture of shoes quit work at the command of District Assembly 70, Knights of Labor, and twenty-four factories paid off the men and shut down. A rumor had gained currency that the manufacturers intended to lock out the men on the 20th, and the strike was declared in order to anticipate such a move. The trouble is over a demand for an advance in wages.

Important papers in the approaching suit of Rogers vs. Garland are reported missing from the court records at Washington. This is the case involving the relations of J. Harris Rogers and Attorney General Garland to the Pan-Electric Telephone company. The report says the discovery is sure to cause a sensation, especially as one of the counsel for the defence is credited with some knowledge of the affair.

NEW YORK FASHION LETTER.

NOVEL DRESS GOODS—VELVETS, SILKS, WOOLS—COMBINATIONS—WRAPS.

Plaids, bars and stripes, the successes of last summer, appeal to us now, in richer tones and heavier material. The three have largely invaded wools, and even the dignity of velvet has succumbed to a predominating craze. Embedded in its pile are lines of silk disposed in squares, or half invisible bars within squares, while nothing is more fashionable than striped velvets. Gold is in favor for intersections, and a glancing light plays thereby many pretty tricks upon the dark surfaces they adorn, while bolder patterns display the many different colors hitherto thought suitable for ginghams only. Silks follow, and every imaginable chord is struck in harmony with prevalent ideas, some of the most beautiful showing innumerable narrow stripes of velvet set on silk, both in graduating tones of one color or fine groupings of varied colors. They are meant for combinations, and will form artistic touches. Velvet brocades are likewise a commanding element in dress for day or evening, but silk brocades are for the most part superseded by moire, which never was more conspicuous. Satin is also much used, a very pretty example in Lord & Taylor's bow window being of green satin, with draperies and short sleeves of white plaid and gauze.

JACQUARD WOOLS

Come more and more to the front as the season advances. Velvet leaves and flowers in natural colors are set in broad columns, or large velvet figures in mathematical shapes bestrew the woollen surface. Soutache braiding patterns are another favorite style for these velvet figurings, which cover the groundwork with greater or less profusion, while uncut velvet designs, whether in columns or separately, afford additional variety. Plaided or barred wools replace, in deeper tones, last summer's ginghams, and like the ginghams of that time will often be made up with jersey waists, which in view of special demand come in unusual diversity of make; with yokes, with shirring on the shoulders, with plaits, etc.

WHAT SHALL I WEAR?

It will readily be seen, also, that the different materials just mentioned require plain material to set them off, and the demand for the latter was never greater, while the workshop of the dressmaker will resemble the studio of the painter, so rich is the material at hand and so charming are the possibilities. Equally fatal, likewise, may be mistakes of selection; and let me make an appeal to all who read, that they consider not only the attractiveness of these things but their individual adaptability. "What is one man's meat is another's poison" is an old adage, and it is no less true that a costume immensely becoming to one woman would make a fright of another.

PLUSH FOR CLOAKS

Was the success of the season last winter, and will be as much so at present. There are therefore all sorts of plushes, black, seal, golden brown, gray, gobelin blue, red or green, and they will lead not only for long garments but the little shoulder wraps which are too stylish to be given up. For street wear, of course, some dark color is preferable for a long cloak, but the small wraps are often quite brilliant in tone, and may give an excellent finish to some handsome costume. On mild autumn days, capes made entirely of strung beads with long bead fringes, are very fashionable.

Raining.

In Board of Mayor and Aldermen, Thursday evening, Oct. 20th:

Absent the mayor, and Alderman Conlon.

Ald. Urch was called to the chair.

Annie G. Rand asked the removal of a tree on Brewster street, and C. E. Jenness the removal of one on State street; referred to the committee on streets, with power.

Request of Samuel Langdon and others for naphtha light on Lafayette and Back roads, was referred to the committee on street lights.

Frank W. Rice's request for a gas light on Hanover street instead of a naphtha light, was referred to same committee, with power.

Hon. Daniel Marcy appeared in support of a petition numerously signed by prominent citizens, asking an appropriation for two beds at the Cottage Hospital. Ald. Urch left the chair, and spoke in support of the petition. A bill appropriating $500 was introduced and referred, the committee having leave to report at once; favorable report was made, and the bill was passed and sent down for concurrence. Ald. Urch then resumed the chair.

Application of Chas. H. Mendum for the removal of trees on Daniel street, was referred to committee on streets.

Matter of appointing a policeman to patrol Market and Congress streets was taken from the table, and on a ballot Cornelius Quinn had six votes, and George Adams one.

Relay of sidewalk on Daniel street was granted C. H. Mendum.

Gas lights were granted on Cabot street, near the residences of Thomas Entwistle and Charles H. Sides.

Matter of filling the vacancy in the board of instruction caused by the resignation of Mayor Hodgdon as a member, was postponed to the next meeting.

Committee on streets were empowered to make needed repairs on the north millbridge.

Committee on fire department reported the relief steamer as needing repairs, and recommended that they be made. Adopted.

Matter of lights on Middle street was referred to committee on street lights, with power.

Condition of pump and trough on Christian Shore was referred to committee on fire department, with power.

Bills amounting to $1096 were ordered paid.

Adjourned for two weeks.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

THURSDAY, Oct. 20th.

Patrick Fagan, Stanley Moulton and John Hiltz, for drunkness, were fined $3, costs $6.90, each; county farm for the lot.

TO-MORROW NIGHT.

"Rene" was produced last night for the first time in this city, and it was greeted enthusiastically by an audience which never tired of applauding the remarkably fine work of the various artistes. The attention of those present was never allowed to slacken. Mr. William Redmund and Mrs. Thomas Barry were all that their parts demanded of them or that the most exacting could ask. Annible Locust, the blustering coward, was an admirably-worked character in the hands of W. M. Fairbanks. Miss Amelia Watts, the charming Juanita, captivated all with her clear-cut acting and catchy songs, while Miss Maggie Ronaldo danced herself into instantaneous popularity. The entire support was thoroughly satisfactory; the singing of the Cecilian Quartette, the frantic gyrations of Les Trois Zingari, and the very graceful terpsichorean performance of Katie Zanfretta, Ida Marsch and Ada Stockholm being varied parts of an harmonious whole. Scenery and costumes were appropriate and pleasing, and the popularity of "Rene" is established.—National Republican.

Neither Mr. Redmund nor Mrs. Barry need any endorsement here, being well known to our theatre-goers as performers of far more than ordinary merit. The play in which they will appear on Saturday evening at Music hall has been pruned of redundancies since its first presentation at Music hall last year, and some excellent musical, ballet and specialty attractions introduced—and introduced not in an abrupt and forced manner, but so naturally and unobtrusively as not to break the thread of the drama at all.

Tickets are now on sale at Goodrich's bookstore; see advertisement.

BAPTIST STATE CONVENTION.

The annual state convention of Baptists of New Hampshire was held with the Middle street Baptist church in this city this week, commencing on Tuesday, and closing on Thursday. The convention was largely attended by clergymen and laymen of the denomination, the exercises were very interesting, and the meeting one of the most successful ever held by the association. The convention adjourned on Thursday, to meet with the Baptist church in Claremont on the third Wednesday in October, 1888.

Officers of the convention for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mr. Daniel Heald of Milford; vice Presidents, Mr. D. W. O'Neil of Claremont, Rev. C. B. Crane of Concord; Secretary, Rev. Wm. Hurlin of Antrim; Treasurer, F. A. Hawley of Manchester; Trustees, Rev. Messrs. W. H. Eaton of Keene, N. Hooper of Exeter, J. D. Tilton of Milford, W. H. Alden of Portsmouth, J. W. Chase of Exeter, N. L. Colby of Manchester, J. A. Johnston of Nashua, N. F. Tilden of Lebanon, H. G. Hubbard of Laconia, J. H. Robbins of Claremont, J. K. Ewer of Concord, J. M. Coburn of Greenville, W. E. Bates of Pennacook, F. T. Latham of Newport, W. C. McAllester of Manchester, Messrs. A. J. Prescott of Concord, N. T. Greenwood of Scytheville, O. Hardy of Manchester, A. W. Canney of Meredith Village, G. H. Brown of Pennacook, L. E. Staples of Portsmouth, D. H. Goodell of Antrim.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

After two days sitting, the grand jury came into court at 9.15 Thursday morning, and presented 54 indictments, of which the following is a partial list:

Camille Reed, assault on officer.

George H. Adams and Frederick Johnson, breaking and entering the Worcester, Nashua and Rochester depot at Hampstead.

George H. Adams, breaking and entering.

Phillip Kirby, aggravated assault.

William Quinn, aggravated assault.

Emil Gillard, larceny.

James Campbell, entering in the night.

Marcus V. Coffin, selling cider.

Samuel Campbell, selling adulterated milk.

Robert Bowley, larceny.

Fenney Kruthensen, tramp.

Joseph Cate, assault and attempt to murder.

Joseph Bouillier, larceny from the person.

Frederick Locke, larceny.

Mary Dumphy, keeping liquor for sale.

Timothy and Mary Dumphy, keeping a disorderly house.

Dr. D. D. Pennoyer, practicing without license.

Prudence Morrey, two indictments for selling liquor.

Granville Dunn, selling liquor.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Mary Willey, Williams master, arrived at this port on the 20th inst. from Bangor, with 92,000 feet of long lumber and 100,000 shingles, to John H. Broughton.

The gondola Fearless, Harry Watson master, left Mr. Gus. Mathes' brickyard at Durham at three o'clock last Thursday morning with 12,000 bricks for John H. Broughton, and arrived at Broughton's wharf at eight o'clock. The Fearless takes back a load of coal to the Sovereigns of Industry at Newmarket, and then loads again at Mathes' yard with bricks for Broughton.

Washington advices say a model lifeboat which Secretary Whitney has ordered constructed at Alexandria is very highly commended by naval officers. It was ordered by Secretary Whitney as a sample boat for use in the navy, and it is probable that it will be adopted by the department for use on all its stations, and to accompany each vessel. The boat is twenty-six feet long, seven feet wide, and three feet six inches deep. The frame is of oak and the planking is of white cedar; white mahogany has been exclusively used for the inside casing. The are twenty-six air-tight compartments, and the protected buoyancy of the boat is equal to 115 cubic feet, more than double that of any boat of the same displacement hitherto built. Not a single nail has been used in the boat's construction. The screws are of brass and the rivets of copper.

The schooner Rebecca Nickerson of Provincetown, Mass., sailed for the Grand banks on May 25th, and has not been seen since the gale of Sept. 31; she is given up as lost, with nineteen men. She was built in 1882 at Boothbay, Me., and owned by her commander, Captain Allen, and others. Captain Allen was married just before sailing.

"A WIFE'S SECRET."

One of the largest and most select audiences that ever entered the Tingue opera house, gathered Tuesday evening to witness Miss Julia Anderson in Robert Johnson's powerful society drama, entitled "Inez; or a Wife's Secret." The play was exceedingly well rendered, and was interspersed with just enough comedy to hold the attention of those who do not particularly admire heavy playing. The beautiful Miss Anderson, in the role of Lady Inez, took the hearts of the entire audience by storm, and as the curtain rolled down on the final act all wished that the play had been twice as long. She was supported by artistes of high standing and very marked ability, and should her genial manager, Mr. F. Broaker, see fit to favor us again, he can be assured of an overflowing house.—Birmingham (Conn.) Advertiser.

A number of members of the Advent society surprised their pastor on Thursday evening, and presented him with a very handsome hat-tree. A very enjoyable time was had by all who participated.

In Dover, on Wednesday afternoon of this week, the Portsmouth high school nine beat the Dover high school nine at a game of base ball, score fourteen to eleven.

The awnings of the Rockingham house windows were taken down on Thursday, and stowed away for the winter.

Some time ago a barrel of beer was missed from a freight car standing on a side track at Salmon Falls. The station agent set to work quietly to unravel the mystery of its disappearance, and finally got evidence that the barrel was taken from the car by four boys, who threw it into the river, towed it up some distance, rolled it into a patch of woods, and for some days held high jinks over its contents. They were brought into court and fined $30.

HER OPENING OF
PATTERN HATS AND BONNETS.

For more than twenty years Mrs. Tebbets has invited the Ladies of P'tsmouth and Vicinity to semi-annual exhibitions of the Millinery. Each succeeding season the selections have been finer and richer, the tastes of her customers calling for the best the market affords. The New Fall and Winter Styles in Trimmed Goods will surpass any ever seen in this city.

All Cordially Invited.

The Old Orchard water works are nearly completed. The main pipe has been laid to the beach and Ocean park, and a slight head of water let on. On Tuesday, the 18th inst., a satisfactory trial of the hydrant was made. About a week's work remains to be done, including the work on branch pipes on the camp ground. Tuesday's trial was satisfactory proof that Phillips spring can amply supply all the needs of the town for fire and domestic purposes.

George F. Fogg was on the 18th inst. appointed postmaster at Sanford, Me., to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late postmaster, Lebbeus Butler. A strong effort was made by the people of the town, of both parties, to have appointed to the place a young lady who for over a year, during Mr. Butler's illness, most satisfactorily conducted the business of the office; she is the daughter of an old line democrat—but then she has no vote.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

PEIRCE'S PATENT STONE.

A syndicate of wealthy gentlemen in Montgomery, Alabama, have purchased of Col. James S. Peirce the right to manufacture and deal in his patent building stone, for the city and county of Montgomery. The Star of that city says:

A company will be at once organized, and the practical management will be under the direction of a thoroughly experienced and extensive marble firm; and the presidency will be filled by one of Montgomery's prominent and enterprising business men. Steps will be taken to commence operations at once, and very likely the new company will have a fine exhibit of their owa manufacture at the state fair. Several months since the right to manufacture this stone was purchased for Jefferson county and a company was organized in Birmingham, and are doing a large business, employing thirty hands. There are also companies working under the same patent in Savannah, Ga., Jacksonville, Fla., and several western towns, notably Minneapolis, in which city there are scores of handsome buildings constructed of this material. The stone is not only desirable for pavements or sidewalks, but is the best that can be used for bridges, railroad culverts, sewers, chimney flues, ornamental tops, and for buildings, and is the handsomest material ever offered for cemetery work. It is made in blocks of various sizes in natural stone color, in brown, or slate, and other shades. It makes a beautiful pavement, is as cheap as natural stone, far handsomer, and its wear qualities are indisputable. There is no doubt that it will prove as popular in Montgomery as in other cities where it has been introduced, and that the Montgomery manufactory will in a short while prove one of the most profitable and important of our industrial enterprises.

The Col. Peirce referred to, who is no other than the former genial and popular landlord of the Rockingham house in this city, informed us a year or two ago, before he went south to introduce his patent stone there, that no better material could be found for it than the sand at Rye beach, and he hoped on his return to be able to make arrangements for its manufacture on a large scale at Rye, giving remunerative employment to several hundred men during seven months in the year.

A Crank's Notion.

Henry George addressed a very large meeting in Albany, N. Y., Oct. 19th. and during the address was asked by a well-known lawyer if he endorsed the statement recently made by Dr. McGlynn in the Standard as to the confiscation of land. George said: "Without qualification, I would bring about instantly, if I could, such a change of laws, the world over, as would confiscate private ownership in lands, without one penny of compensation to the miscalled owners." It is doubtful if he will be able to effect such a change, at least for a good while to come.

The horses stolen on the 17th inst. from S. C. Hall of Barrington and Charles Hayes of Madbury, were found at Derry Depot on the morning of the 20th, having been left there by the unknown thieves.

"Nature must give way to art," and the most severe cold must yield to Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

Thomas Nast, the famous caricaturist, will take a place on the New York Graphic under its new management. Since Harper's Weekly became a democratic paper Nast's powerful pencil has been idle, he being too staunch a republican to aid in forwarding its views.

Fear not the sting of the mosquito. St. Jacobs Oil takes it away. It conquers pain.

Mrs. Eliza J. Nicholson, since she became the proprietor and managing editor of the New Orleans Picayune, has seen a debt of $85,000 lifted, and the prosperity of the paper increasing from year to year. The supposed incapacity of southern women for business is fast taking its place among exploded myths.

Relief from sick headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. These complaints are nearly always caused by torpid liver and constipated bowels. Restore these organs to their proper functions and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Don't forget this. Price 25 cents.

Mrs. Adeline T. Townsend, who was recently cured of a tumor, has built a little brick and terra-cotta cottage on the grounds of Bellevue hospital, New York, for women suffering from the same complaint. The cottage has four rooms, which are known, not as wards, but as the pink, red, blue and yellow rooms.

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

Financial genius is not confined to this country. The Disconto Gesellschaft bank of Leipsic, Germany, the capital of which is 9,000,000 marks, has failed, in consequence of unlawful speculations. Directors Jerusalem and Winklemann of the bank have absconded with an enormous amount of spoils and all of the bank's stock.

The woman who was found murdered near Rahway, N. J., several months ago, has been identified as Mrs. Annie Ingram, who came to this country two years ago from Birmingham, England. She was a widow, of drinking habits. Dec. 8th, 1886, she married a man named Ingram, of Bound Brook, N. J., but left him the next day; he disappeared soon after, and has not since been heard from. The identification of the murdered woman is complete.

The Beau Ideal of a Family Medicine.

A remedy which promply and completely relieves ailments of such common occurrence as indigestion, constipation, billiousness and disorders of a malarial type, is assuredly the beau ideal of a family medicine. Such is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is not only capable of eradicating these complaints, but also counteracting a tendency to kidney troubles, rheumatism and premature decadence of stamina. Taking it "all round," as the phrase is, there is probably not in existence so useful, effective and agreeable a household panacea as the Bitters. Nor is it less highly esteemed by the medical profession than by the families of America. Numberless testimonials from professional sources of irrefragable authenticity evince its merit. The demand for it abroad, no less than in the land of its discovery, is certainly increasing, time and experience of its beneficent effects confirming the high opinion originally formed of it.

The steamship Alleghany, of the Boston & Baltimore steamship line, was run ashore at Chatham, Mass., having struck a wreck off West Chop. No lives lost.

More cases of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, can be cured in less time, with less medicine, and less money, by using Carter's Little Liver Pills, than by any other means.

Serious fighting has occurred between the mob of unemployed workingmen and the police in London. Most of these "workingmen" are men who have not worked for years, if ever, but are willing to work at a division of property.

Charles G. Francklyn, president of the Horn Silver Mining Co. of New York, has been jailed in default of $500,000 bail, on a charge of defrauding the company of $600,000. It was in Mr. Francklyn's cottage at Elberon, N. J., that President Garfield died.

AN IDYL OF BAR HARBOR.

I must take you now wholly across the week which followed. You may guess the incidents. He was madly devoted—openly so. Even at Bar Harbor, where the very tides murmur of love, the birds sing it, the requiem of the cypress is breathed over love's multitudinous grave, and earth and sea, sun and changeful sky are but the abode and the canopy and the lamp and the mirror of mad midsummer love—even there was this adoration of my interesting self almost painfully conspicuous, drawing the eyes of the dowagers and almost frightening mamma, although I know—dear, intuitive soul that she is—she saw exactly how matters stood.

We had done Anemone Cave, Schooner Head and Somesville together; we had clambered Newport Mountain; we had threaded the maze of Duck Brook and sat by the cool plashing of that dainty cascade; on Eagle Lake we had drifted hither and thither, the idle wind and my parasol our guiding swans, just near enough to our chaperones, just deliciously far enough away. Well, the end was coming and I was armed for it. That morning we had a canoe party to the Bald Porcupine—Jack Blackwright and Mamie Sterling in one, Mrs. Van Tassel and Prof. Gibbons in another, and last, but most important on that day, Mr. Dallas and I.

We were distrait, crossing. A commonplace or two at the landing and then silence, broken only by the dip of his paddle. I trailed my hand in the cool, green flood. His eyes feasted hungrily upon my face. Once he stopped and seemed about to speak. I calmly raised my eyes—the floods—he seemed troubled and with a sturdier stroke sent us swiftly forward. At last the bark grated upon the beach. Mamie and Jack had already clambered to the heights. The Professor was learnedly explaining to our chaperone the nature of star-fishes and we took the path by the sea, over the point, and found a nook looking south toward the meeting of water and sky, whence lazy swells swept slowly, to break in sullen murmurs at our feet, swaying in the depths the brown kelp, which somehow always seems to me like the tangles of a drowned woman's hair.

He spread the wrap as a rug for me and I sat down upon it with my back against the rock, while he cast himself in a graceful sprawl at my feet, seeing nothing of hill or sky or cloud or wave but what was mirrored in my eyes. I quickly denied him even that, for I cast them down. We were silent for five minutes, and then slowly, deliberately, confidently, in well-trained music of his voice, he began.

He loved me. (This without prelude.) He had never fancied he would love woman, but the moment he saw me he knew that he had met his fate. I was the one being he had met in the world who seemed lifted above all that was human; I inspired reverence, worship, adoration, but I gave, too, the right, the imperious right, to love me and to be beloved by me. Was it not true?

I was silent. The boats in the harbor rocked idly; a passing cloud cast a swift shadow; a shrill gull veered in his flight and called to his distant mate. About us the drone of busy insects in the grass; beneath the writhing of waters about the rocks, and their dull moan in the cavern.

No woman but I had ever stirred his pulses, my hand the first to strike from his heart-strings a music which should echo there forever. He loved me. All his past had been strangely untruthful—but he understood it now. His soul had been waiting, waiting and watching for me, and now he had found me and he loved me. Could I picture the future—fair as the skies above us with the light I had brought him; fervent as that burning sun of July; true as the wind which owns no master, but hurries to its purpose; infinite and deep as the sea. He loved me.

Still I spoke not, but with downward eyes watched the play of the salt tide with the weeds it clutched in its crystal fingers.

Why did I not answer him? Ah, his own true, passionate heart dared guess the secret. No love strong as his could kneel, a suppliant and beg for favors. He knew the secret I would withhold; the hour had come; our love was mutual; it had been ordained for me as it had been ordained for him (here he took my hand); no woman dare say no to the man whose wild love mastered her, and——

About this time I came to the conclusion that I had heard quite enough.

The fiords were lifted and gazed quite calmly into Mr. Dallas's somewhat lurid orbs, and the hand was quietly but resolutely withdrawn to my private keeping.

"Do you think that your declaration has been entirely justified?" I inquired.

"What do you mean?"

"Is an explanation necessary?"

He sprang to his feet and stood gazing down upon me with such an expression as I have since fancied a murderer might have worn. One, two, three minutes passed; his eyes glittered—burned; his breath came sharply; his hands were clinched. I know by rights I should have been frightened. I was not. I feared him no more than I feared the spray of golden rod at my breast.

He glanced swiftly upward, then behind him, and, as assured that no one was within easy call, stooped and roughly grasped my shoulder.

"I can kill you—see!" Here he pointed to the sharp rocks and the ice-cold depths below us. "Love me—love me, I say, or"——

I wonder how it was that in that moment I had had no thrill. I know my pulses were neither faster nor slower. I know my color neither heightened nor lessened. I merely experienced a contempt.

"Answer me, by G—d?"

I looked at him steadfastly. "You are impertinent, Mr. Dallas. And I am quite sure if you compel me to call my cousin Jack he will punish you."

His grasp quitted my shoulder. His eyes flashed a glance upward again. His face whitened. His ashy lips were drawn in terror—yes, in miserable terror—and a sweat of agony beaded his forehead. Then it was I saw that chin show its characteristic weak, pale, trembling—but it made me pity even while I loathed him.

I arose. "Come," I said, "let us join the others."

"A moment," he gasped—"a moment! you will not tell them—forgive me—forgive me—you will not tell them—I was a fool—"——he actually grovelled.

"I am no prouder of this scene than you," I said. "Let us forget it."

He caught at my hand to detain me, as he knelt there, but I passed swiftly on, then descended leisurely to the beach, where the Professor was still sonorously expounding science to poor Mrs. Van Tassel, who was doing her best to understand, poor thing. A moment later Mr. Dallas came down, looking so little the worse for wear he amazed me, and I am sure they suspected nothing. Presently Jack's whistle shrilled cheerily, and he led Mamie down the rickety stairs and there was a love-light in her eyes and a boisterous happiness in Jack's grin which fully prepared me for what Mamie told me that night.

"May—may I paddle you home?" Mr. Dallas said in a low tone, with a shamed flush, as we prepared to go.

"Certainly," I replied. "Why not?"

The catamaran flashed by us on the way in, and the commonplace or two we exchanged then were our only words until we reached the gate leading to my cottage. He offered his hand at parting.

"You—you will"——he began chokingly.

"I have had a very pleasant day Mr. Dallas, and I thank you. Good-bye."

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, same ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $250.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter collects in the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a site should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and agreeable.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

"We Point With Pride"

To the "Good name at home," won by Hood's Sarsaparilla. In Lowell, Mass., where it is prepared, there is more of Hood's Sarsaparilla sold than of all other medicines, and it has given the best of satisfaction since its introduction ten years ago. This could not be if the medicine did not possess merit. If you suffer from impure blood, try Hood's Sarsaparilla and realize its peculiar curative power.

Portsmouth Chronicle.

SATURDAY, OCTOBER 22, 1887.

Entered at the Post-Office at Portsmouth, N. H. as second-class matter.]

The Legislature.

The house on Friday forenoon voted to reconsider the vote to adjourn at noon on that day. The senate also reconsidered the vote for final adjournment.

The bill fixing the age of consent in females at thirteen years was passed.

Bills ratifying the lease of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad to the Boston & Maine; for the extension of the Dover & Winnepiseogee road; and authorizing the Boston & Maine to assume the covenants in the lease of the Northern road to the Boston & Maine, were reported favorably from the house railroad committee. Bills tabled, and ordered printed.

The committee on railroads, under a vote recently passed by the house, reported a joint resolution authorizing and requiring the governor and council to appoint a commission of three to ascertain the interest of the state in the surplus of the Concord and the Boston & Maine railroads, with power to examine books, employ experts and send for persons and papers. The commission will report to the next legislature, and $3000 is appropriated to meet the expense.

The date of final adjournment is now as uncertain as ever.

After Big Game.

On complaint of the New Hampshire Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, W. Seward Webb, son-in-law of W. H. Vanderbilt, and W. Boerum Wetmore, of New York, were indicted by the grand jury of Coos county at Lancaster on the 18th inst., for cruelly overdriving a team of six horses from the Glen house up the carriage road to the top of Mt. Washington, a continuous and sharp ascent for eight tedious miles, throughout which the poor beasts were urged to their utmost speed, that the heartless persons who rode might win the cheap notoriety of making the quickest trip to the summit ever achieved through the cruelty of man and the agony of the nobler animals. The poor beasts on this, the third exploit of the kind, were driven the whole distance from the Glen house to the summit in one hour, nine minutes and forty-nine seconds. We are glad that the society has the power and disposition to enforce the law and vindicate the honor of our state, so that such exhibitions of cruelty by persons with more money than brains shall cease to shock the sensibilities of intelligent and respectable people who frequent the mountain region for rest and recreation.

Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance Union, writes: "'Jack the Fisherman' seems to me the strongest temperance story of our time. Into it are woven with masterly skill the elements of the modern temperance reform, namely, true Christianity, the need for righteous laws, the necessity of woman's co-operation, and as a background, we have the awful curse and warning of transmitted evil under the law of heredity. I shall urge all our local Women's Christian Temperance Unions to read and circulate this telling story, so strongly told."

"A Lady of the Old School" is the opening paper in the November number of the "Atlantic Monthly." It is a most charming resume of Mrs. Susan Lesley's "Recollections" of her mother, Mrs. Lyman, of Northampton, and of the society which she gathered around her. Miss Jewett has a delightful sketch of a New England by-way called "The Landscape Chamber," a curious story, full of suggestion. Percival Lowell continues his series of articles, "The Soul of the Far East," by a paper on Oriental Art, and John Fiske has another of his clear studies in American History, this time devoted to an account of the adoption of the Constitution—a very timely topic. Mr. Philip Gilbert Hamerton, in a sixth paper of his "French and English" series, considers "Variety in the Indulgence of Sense as a result of Individuality," and shows the fallacy of attributing certain defects often met with in a foreign county to all its inhabitants. A careful description of the "Red Cross" society and its work is given by Helen H. S. Thompson, and Bradford Torrey has a pleasant paper on "An Old Road." "Historic Points at Fort George Island" are depicted by S. G. W. Benjamin. A paper on "Girl Novelists of the Time," three poems of merit, and the serials by Mrs. Oliphant and Mr. Aldrich, and by Mr. Crawford, close a number of more than usual worth. Houghton, Mifflin & Co., Boston.

The various candidates for judges in New York city have been assessed by the democratic halls over a year's salary. The assemblymen pay their entire salary as assessments, as do the senators. The amount assessed figures up over $200,000 to be used in the interest of Cleveland, the free sale of liquor, and reform. Of course all the candidates for aldermen and other city positions pay heavily into the fund for the democracy. Is it any wonder that New York is a free trade city?

Young couples in Portland, Me., who have recently returned from bridal tours, are comparing notes of back luck. One young man was detained by the police on suspicion that he might be a lawbreaker for whom they were looking. Another was taken into custody in New York city because he answered the description of a man who had eloped. The incident spoiled the journey of the bride, who was thereafter seized with nervousness whenever a policeman came in sight.

The demand for cattle has not in any way improved. We find a fair supply of young country stock that was moving rather quiet. Prices generally sustained on all grades. A fair movement in western cattle.

Milch Cows and Springers—A good run, and the best selling without much difficulty. Sales mostly from $28 @ $35 ⅌ head.

The Sheep Call—The feeling somewhat depressed, and values have declined ¼c ⅌ lb. Canada is still heavy in arrivals, and Maine not backward in supply. Butchers held back until the decline was effected.

Fat Hogs—The best cost $4 70 in Chicago. We quote 4½ @ 5c the range on western live.

Veal Calves—No material change; supply fair and prices steady on all grades.

Live Poultry—Three tons on sale, besides a quantity of five geese at 85c each; mixed hens and chickens, 7 @ 10c; turkeys, 12½c.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. FROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

AT MUSIC HALL THIS EVENING.

The old favorites of the theatre-going public, William Redmund and Mrs. Thomas Barry, assisted by a competent company, fine scenic effects, the Gypsy ballet, the Rinaldos and the Cecilian quartette, will appear at Music hall this evening in the emotional spectacular drama "Rene." The sale of seats has been large, but there are good ones still procurable at Goodrich's. See advertisement.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, Oct. 21st.

John Thomas, for drunkenness, was fined $3, costs $6.90; county farm in default of payment.

"A WIFE'S SECRET."

Miss Julia Anderson proved a decided success at the Opera house last evening as "Inez." The play is charming, and offers a wide scope for the display of brilliant acting. Miss Anderson proved herself equal to the occasion in every instance. Such remarkable talent as she possesses is destined to render her very popular. The support was first class, not a "tourist" in the company. Mr. Willard Lee as the count and Mr. Walter Crosby as Bertie Lee, did themselves proud. Mr. Murray, as Jeremiah Butterworth, is a show in himself, and kept the audience in good humor throughout. —Middletown (Conn.) Press, Sept. 16th.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

Thursday afternoon a number of persons were arranged on indictments, pleas being entered as follows:

Frank Lord, entering building and committing larceny; Philip H. Kirby, aggravated assault; Joseph Cate, assault with intent to kill; William Quinn, aggravated assault; James Campbell, entering premises in the night; Marcus V. Coffin, selling cider; Fenney Kruthensen, tramp; Prudence C. Mossey, selling liquor, two indictments; all pleaded not guilty.

The rain of Friday was not only abundant and wet, but cold and disagreeable.

There was a very large audience at Music hall on Thursday evening to witness the performance of "Jim, the Penman." The play was presented by a company of unusual excellence, and held the close attention and pleased interest of the spectators to the end.

On Thursday afternoon and evening the railroad station in Concord was guarded by prominent lobbyists of the Concord and Boston & Maine railroads, to prevent the escape of any representatives to their homes.

MARITIME NOTES.

A large number of vessels were in the lower harbor on Friday for shelter from the storm.

The old flagship Tennessee has been removed from the Brooklyn navy yard to Meriden, Conn., where she is to be used as a coal hulk.

The American ship Bridgewater, so long held at Shelburne, N. S., on trumped-up and illegal claims by the Canadian customs officials, has been unconditionally released.

The British colonial passenger steamer Cheviot, an iron screw steamer of 764 tons register, belonging to Melbourne, Australia, has been wrecked at Port Philip heads, the entrance to Melbourne bay, one many of her passengers and crew drowned.

The German barque Planteur was run down and sunk by a British steamer off Beachy head on the 18th inst., and eleven of her crew were drowned, the captain being so badly hurt that he has since died. Only two of the barque's crew survive.

The brig Hebe, from Rio de Janeiro for Bay Chaleur, is a total wreck at the Magdalene islands. During the voyage from Rio small-pox and yellow fever broke out on board, and the mate jumped overboard while delirious with disease. There are three cases of small-pox on the island.

The mammoth steamship Great Eastern has been sold by auction in London, for $105,000. The unwieldy ship has never been of any practical value, although she answered the purpose for which the British authorities promoted her construction—the introduction of iron as a shipbuilding material, to the general abandonment of wood.

It is stated that should Mr. Sweet, who has challenged for the America's cup, fail to build a cutter to race for it next year, a counterpart of the American centreboarders will be built. George Clark of Newark, N. J., a son of one of the owners of the British steam yacht Mohican, will have the new boat built from models procured by him in this country this summer. The boat will be built in Scotland.

Henry S. Sawyer, while handling a package in the Adams Express office on Court street, Boston, Oct. 20th, was terrified to see the package explode with a tremendous bang, tearing things up like a small cyclone. He was, however, slightly, though painfully injured. Where the eccentric-acting package came from or was bound to, or what caused its improper conduct, cannot be told, as the address went to smash with the rest of the package. [A later report says the package belonged to the Forcite Powder company of New York. About 6:30 o'clock that evening the company's Boston agent shipped three "electric primers" to New York, and they were in the package that blew up. These primers are composed of fulminate of mercury, with platinum and copper wires connecting, then coated with brimstone, to protect the charge, and finally inclosed in a tin case of a cylindrical form. The primers were returned to the main place of business simply because there was "something wrong about them," and one explanation of the explosion is that some liquid, acidulous in its nature, may have come in contract with the copper wires and generated a current of electricity sufficient to cause the explosion.]

Governor Oglesby of Illinois was born in Kentucky. He began his career as a carpenter at $1.50 a day. He received less than a regular course of common school education, yet after he had worked for some time at the bench he made a strike for the bar. After practising law for a while he fought in the Mexican war, and was one of the California gold diggers of '49. When he came back from digging gold he entered the political arena, and has been three times elected as governor of Illinois.

John Varney and his wife have lived near Moosehead lake, Me., for twenty-five years, and during that time have together killed over 400 bears, unnumbered deer and caribou, and much small game. Mrs. Varney is as expert a bear hunter as her husband, and accompanies him on all his hunting excursions. In June, 1885, they killed five bears in one day.

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of the Mississippi, and continuous lines at terminal points West, North-west and Southwest, is the road which is the trans-continental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic to all points direct between the Atlantic and Pacific.

Its main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, LaSalle, Peoria, Geneseo, Molline and Davenport, Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Exeter, Ashburton, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Fort Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and Gibbon and Kearney, in Nebraska, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who patronize it. Its roadbed is the best, its equipment the finest. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The history of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars (serving excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

is the direct favorite route between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, fishing and hunting grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat field and grazing lands of Interior Iowa are traversed by this route. Watertown, Huron, Ipswich, Aberdeen, Sioux Falls, Canton, Lennox, Canton, Elizabethville, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. The Episcopal Congress.

A despatch of Oct. 20th from Louisville, Ky., said: "The Episcopal church congress has had an important discussion on the proposal to change the name of the church. Rev. Dr. Phillips Brooks of Boston said that it was impossible to discuss a change without at the same time thinking of a new title. The basis of the claim of those who held the necessity of changing was the preposterous idea of adopting 'the Church of America' as a title. Such a change implied that the church must take the stand that it was the only church in view of the apostolic succession, in the sight of the Lord Jesus Christ. Multitudes of the church did not hold to the doctrine of apostolic succession, in the view that it was the only church by divine right. The church was narrowing itself by the constant assumption of the dogma that it was alone the church of Christ. These were things which were keeping our church out of sympathy with the people. Let her be the church of America, and then she could take the name, and not until she ceased to copy and bring over foreign customs. The American people believed in the work of Christ as a wonderful power for good in this country. The Protestant Episcopal church held aloof from the people."

Miss Flora McFlimsey, of Madison square, must have a hard time getting along in swell society, with so few clothes—but they say she always managed to keep pretty well supplied with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

W. R. McCullough, engineer of the American steamer Comal, has been held for trial on a charge of murdering J. H. Graham, a coal passer, by pouring a shovelful of hot coals on him as he was lying sick, and beating him with the shovel as he writhed under the torture. The man died in fifteen minutes, and the murderer was arrested and jailed on the steamer's arrival at Galveston, Texas.

Relief from sick headache, drowsiness, nausea, dizziness, pain in the side, guaranteed to those using Carter's Little Liver Pills. These complaints are nearly always caused by torpid liver and constipated bowels. Restore these organs to their proper functions and the trouble ceases. Carter's Little Liver Pills will do this every time. One pill is a dose. Don't forget this. Price 25 cents.

The cholera quarantine at Malta has been abolished. There are still a few cases under observation.

To say from personal experience that Sulphur Bitters, which advertisement will be seen in another column, is the best spring and blood medicine to be found. It is prepared by an honest firm who scorn to use cheap and worthless medicines, but use the best that money can buy.—Editor.

The Charitable Mechanics' association of Boston rejected Major O'Brien's application for membership.

I have not used all of one bottle yet. I suffered from catarrh for twelve years, experiencing the nauseating dropping in the throat peculiar to that disease, and nose bleed almost daily. I tried various remedies without benefit until last April, when I saw Ely's Cream Balm advertised in the Boston Budget. I procured a bottle, and since the first day's use have had no more bleeding—the soreness is entirely gone.—D. G. Davidson, with the Boston Budget, formerly with Boston Journal.

Horatio Alger, Jr., is now in Chicago, gathering material for a new story, shortly to be added to the attractions of "The Golden Argosy." Meanwhile another new serial has recently been begun in this excellent weekly, "Walter Griffith, or, The Adventures of a Young Street Salesman." It is written by Arthur Lee Putnam, whose other tales of city life, contributed to the Argosy, have been so uniformly popular. Then Mr. Converse's wonderland story, "Van," has reached a most interesting stage, and lavishly fulfills all the promises of its earliest chapters. Besides its serials, of which there are six, the Argosy devotes a page every week to such matters as the use of dumb bells, general gymnastics, training, which together with its short stories, editorials and portraits, and life sketches of men who have made their way in the world, go to make up a model publication for young people and the family.

The new combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna, as used in Carter's Backache Plasters, has proved to be one of the best that could be made. Try one of those popular plasters in any case of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia, soreness of the chest or lungs, and you will be surprised and pleased by the prompt relief. In bad cases of chronic dyspepsia, a plaster over the pit of the stomach stops the pain at once. Ask for Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents.

The death claims paid by the Mutual Life Ins. Co. of New York during the week ending Oct. 14th amounting to $140,540.81; endowments paid during the same period, $9,739.17.

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. WAYS OF THE ROACH.

The Bane of Housewives—Where He Comes from and What He Eats.

The roach has been the faithful attendant of humanity ever since written history began, but the abominable extent of this faithfulness has arisen in civilized communities chiefly within recent times. There is a roach, a little, outdoor, innocent kind, that is supposed to be indigenous in this country. It lives in the fields, under stones and rubbish, and is good food for birds. But the common cockroach of the home and fireside came from the Levant in ships and bales of merchandise to England, of which country Wood, the writer on bugs, says, "it has completely taken possession." At first, as in this country, it was confined to seaport towns, but the climate in the neighborhood of kitchen fires suited it, and the drippings about the kitchen sinks gave it the moisture which is as essential to it as food, and so it strayed and spread, coming across the sea to America quickly, and staying and spreading here, too, until the nuisance of its presence, which has increased every year, has reached in New York and other large cities along the coast an extent that is almost intolerable. The kitchen fires long since ceased to satisfy the desires of its soul. It has followed water and steam pipes all over buildings of every sort. Office buildings and stores are as much overrun with the insects as dwellings. The only relief is in the constant killing of them, and there are men in New York who make a business, and a profitable one, of ridding hotels and large private houses of the pests. Even this professional work does no permanent good, but only brings relief for a time.

The roach is, entomologically speaking, an Orthoptera. In plain English he belongs to the grasshopper family. Scientifically he is a blatta orientalis, and has four wings that he doesn't use, and that are absent entirely in the females of most species, a black or reddish brown body that reaches an inch in length if the bug isn't killed first. Long, awl-shaped antennæ, each with eighty joints, decorate his head. The bugs will eat almost anything they can find. Flour, bread, meat, clothes and shoes are some of their delicacies. In dwellings their usual forage is the crumbs and other leavings of the kitchen and table. They are essentially nocturnal, disappearing into chinks and crevices the moment a light appears, but of late they have become so abundant in New York that the chinks and crevices won't hold them, and they are perforce seen much around during the daylight.

The roach is not as rapid a breeder as many other insects, but it seems to have remarkable success in raising families. The eggs are laid in a little bean-shaped capsule, three-eighths of an inch long and half as wide. In this the eggs, about thirty in number, lie like peas in a pod for several days, when the pod opens at one side and lets the little, soft, white baby roaches out, after which it closes tight again and gives no sign that the eggs are not within as before. The females, before the eggs are hatched, draw the egg sac around behind them wherever they go, and their appearance with this appendage has excited much interest among kitchen amateurs in bugology. After the young are hatched, the female is said to brood over them somewhat as a hen does. In three or four days the young bug turns from white to brown and is ready for business.

A peculiarly disagreeable feature of the roach is the bad habit it has of discharging from its mouth a dark colored liquid that has a most disgusting smell. Every place which the insects frequent becomes in time impregnated with this nauseous odor, which sometimes is so powerful that it sensibly affects the flavor of provisions that have been left in larders in which roaches are plentiful.

Another kind of roach is officially known as the ectobia Germanica, and is peculiarly fond of Boston, where it is known as the "Croton bug." This insect has got over the nocturnal habits of the ordinary roach. It goes around freely in daylight, and for real solid meals prefers wheat bread. As a light lunch it is partial to cloth bound books. Leather bound books it will not touch.

In Lapland they have the blatta lapponica, smaller than the common roach, but with such astonishing voracity that they frequently devour in one day the entire stock of dried fish in a Laplander's cabin.

Fully as voracious are a sort of roaches that infest ships. It sometimes occurs that the steward going to open a box of crackers finds inside nothing but a mass of roaches. In St. Petersburg it has been necessary to destroy houses that had been made uninhabitable by roaches.

There are in all some 900 different roaches that have been caught and catalogued. A large section of the world is still to hear from.

With all his manifold vices it is pleasant to know that the roach is not altogether bad. There yet remains in the breast of even the fattest and ugliest roach that ever spoiled a custard pie one sentiment sprung from the heaven born heart of those fiery swords from which his race is descended. Though innumerable damaged dinners, ruined luncheons without end and an uncounted host of breakfasts made odious by his unwelcome presence be charged up against him; though many firesides have been desolated by him and numberless pantries laid waste, yet let there, in justice, be set against his name one legend of righteousness—the roach eats bedbugs.

Many things eat roaches. Birds and all insectivorous animals are especially fond of them. Hedgehogs dote on them. In England hedgehogs are sometimes kept in kitchens on purpose to devour the roaches. It is also said that in the Levant there exists a sort of sand wasp that preys upon roaches.—New York Sun.

Thoroughly cleanse the blood, which is the fountain of health, by using Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, and good digestion, a fair skin, buoyant spirits, vital strength, and soundness of constitution will be established.

Golden Medical Discovery cures all humors, from the common pimple, blotch, or eruption, to the worst Scrofula, or blood-poison. Especially has it proven its efficacy in curing Salt-rheum or Tetter, Fever-sores, Hip-joint Disease, Scrofulous Sores and Swellings, Enlarged Glands, and Eating Ulcers.

Golden Medical Discovery cures Consumption (which is Scrofula of the Lungs), by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating, and nutritive properties. For Weak Lungs, Spitting of Blood, Shortness of Breath, Bronchitis, Severe Coughs, Asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. It promptly cures the severest Coughs.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $700.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease ever again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ... and ... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly, and undisturbed; to rise refreshed; head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter is falling into the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to Medical Lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines at terminal points West, North and South, is the only true middle link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, LaSalle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, Ill., Illinois: Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Avoca, Exeter, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Lawrence, Topeka and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its tracks are of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. While all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable, its practical operation is conducted with a methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of this passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—peerless Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Pullman Palace Trains run daily to the summer resorts, pleasure resorts, localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employees of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

Teachers' Meeting.

The annual meeting of the State Teachers' association will be held in the High school hall in Nashua, commencing Thursday evening, the 27th inst. A. E. Winship, editor of the Journal of Education, will lecture Thursday evening, and Hon. E. E. White, of Ohio, on Friday evening. Other exercises will be by Prof. J. K. Lord of Hanover, Prof. E. H. Harlow of West Lebanon, Miss Fay of Springfield, Mass., and other teachers from within the state. The railroads will sell round trip tickets for two cents a mile. Hotels will entertain teachers at about two-thirds of their usual rates.

The Base Ball Championship.

The base ball season is at last ended "for good," for this year, and the Detroit club, champions of the National League, are champions of the world at base ball until the title shall be won by some other club, which cannot be done before another year. The St. Louis club having won the championship of the National Association, arrangements were made for a series of fifteen games between that club and the National League champions, for the world's championship. St. Louis easily won the first game, but did not hold out well; and on Friday, the 21st inst., at Baltimore, Detroit beat St. Louis by a score of thirteen to three, giving that club eight of the eleven games played, St. Louis having taken but three of the series.

The Next Congress.

The first or long session of the 50th Congress will commence the first Monday in December. As the senate is already organized, it can proceed at once to business. The senate before the 4th of March last, consisted of forty-one republicans, including Mahone, thirty-four democrats, and Riddleberger. Of the twenty-five senators whose terms expired last March, fifteen were republicans and ten democrats.

Of the fifty-one hold-over senators, twenty-five are democrats, twenty-five republicans, and one is Mr. Riddleberger. Of the twenty-five senators-elect twelve are democrats, and thirteen republicans. If all are admitted to their seats the senate will stand thirty-eight republicans, thirty-seven democrats, and Riddleberger. The latter has it in his power to tie the body, or to give the republicans two majority, as he may choose. His choice is the uncertain factor. To the admission of three of the democratic senators, Messrs. Hearst of California, Turpie of Indiana, and Faulkner of West Virginia, there will be objections, but whether they will be considered depends very much on the attitude of Senator Riddleberger.

The roll of the next house as made up by the clerk consists of 166 democrats, 151 republicans, four independents, (three of whom will act with the republicans,) and four vacancies. The vacancies are one in Rhode Island, one in Louisiana, one in New York (Albany district,) and one in the New York district which Mr. Hiscock vacated; and probably they will be filled in November with two republicans and two democrats. This will give the democrats thirteen majority in the house.

The democratic postmaster of Kansas City is, as a partisan, altogether too enthusiastically offensive. On the day of the president's visit to Kansas City, he ordered that all postal employes leave off work and do honor to the president. The mail wagons remained in the stable, the carriers stayed at home or united with the crowd of admirers, and the letter boxes were overflowing with mail matter. In some instances letters were piled on top of the boxes. No stamps were sold at the post-office, and no mail was delivered to the outgoing trains. The business men of the town are indignant, and have preferred charges against the postmaster, the result of which will be awaited with interest.

The Providence Journal remarks: "Mr. Henry S. Little's letter exposing the trickery and corruption of Senator McPherson, of New Jersey, is hardly as much of a sensation as the writer had led the public to believe it would be. In fact, it is scarcely an exposure at all. Everybody familiar with New Jersey politics, and particularly with New Jersey democracy, knew perfectly well that the senator was one of the most unscrupulous of political schemers, and that the methods he had used in the management of his party and the promotion of his personal ambitions were such as no honest man could adopt or countenance. Mr. Little's letter adds nothing new to the evidence in that regard. Nevertheless, his reiteration of old facts may do some good by riveting a renewed attention upon the disgraceful conduct of the senator's party in New Jersey. His methods are not a whit worse than those commonly employed by hundreds of democratic politicians in that state. It is pleasant, however, to find that such action on the part of the leaders has weakened the party until it has become a doubtful question whether it can longer retain its control."

At Newport, R. I., last week, quite a serious accident occurred on board the United States ship Richmond, flagship of the North Atlantic squadron. A gun weighing five tons was being lowered from the deck to a float below, constructed of two cutters with spars across. Everything was in readiness to lower the gun, and it had been swung out, when suddenly a spar broke, letting the gun down on the float by the run. There were a score or so of men on the float at the time, and several of them were carried down with the gun to the bottom of the harbor. All came up and were speedily rescued, though three were much exhausted, having received quite severe injuries.

Mr. W. Gardner Joy, who years ago was engaged with his father in the cabinet making business on Market street under the firm name of A. T. Joy & Son, died last Saturday. He was formerly a member of the fire department; sang bass for many years in the choir of the Middle street church; and also for a long time played the bass viol in quadrille bands. For something like twenty years past, or more, he has been employed on the navy yard, his ingenuity as a turner, and in the manipulation of moulding and carving machines, bandsaws, etc., being very remarkable. His age was fifty-three years.

We have a treat in store for our artistically inclined readers in the advertisements of the Ivory Soap. The first of the series of fifty-two elegant announcements of its many virtues appears on the local page of this issue. The Ivory Soap must indeed be a soap of rare merit if fifty-two good things can be said of it, and we predict our readers will become so interested in the beautifully-drawn pictures that they will be the first thing looked for in the paper, even to having the preference with our lady readers over the marriage notices, and our business men will soon be convinced that advertising is not a lost art, nor is art lost when applied to advertising. The fact that the space has been taken in this paper by such discriminating advertisers as Proctor & Gamble is an endorsement of what we have always claimed:—no better advertising medium exists than the Chronicle.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. AT MUSIC HALL THIS EVENING.

Miss Julia Anderson, who is said to be the most beautiful woman on the stage, will make her first appearance before a Portsmouth audience at Music hall this evening, in "Inez; or, a Wife's Secret." An exchange says "this play is a powerful society drama, in which light comedy is evenly distributed, the climaxes are strong and effective, the parts were ably sustained, and the acting was remarkably smooth. The costuming was excellent and tasteful. The company do not play around the star, but rather with her." The Herald, of New Britain, Conn., says:

The drama is a very interesting one, and contains many thrilling incidents, which however, required acting of a high order to bring out satisfactorily. Miss Julia Anderson as Inez, the heroine of the plot, rendered her part excellently. William B. Murray, as the English butler, gave an amusing representation of a superior menial in the mansion of an English lord. His accent could hardly be more English if he were "to the manor born." Walter H. Crosby as the young English squire frequently convulsed the audience with laughter. William Lee was very fine as a villain; on several occasions his part called for fine touches of true dramatic art, and he never failed to be equal to the occasion. Miss Hattie E. Hawley as the artful coquette, as true as steel to those she loved, did well. The company deserve crowded houses wherever they perform.

Tickets at Goodrich's to-day; see advertisement.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

On Saturday morning court came in at nine o'clock, according to adjournment of the previous day.

Miss Laura Tracy was arraigned, and pleaded guilty to a charge of keeping a disorderly house; she was sentenced to jail for one year, and to pay a fine of $50 and costs. James Ryan was arraigned on a similar complaint, and pleaded not guilty; the case was put on trial, and he was found guilty and sentenced to jail for six months, and to pay a fine of $50 and costs. These are the parties who have recently been conducting the notorious Bay View house, on Bow street.

Frank Lord pleaded guilty to larceny under $20, and was sentenced to jail for nine months, and to pay $20 and costs.

T. S. K. Chesley of Exeter pleaded nolo contendere to a charge of obstructing an officer in the execution of his duty, and John Costello of Portsmouth entered a similar plea on a charge of assaulting an officer. Sentence deferred.

D. D. Pennoyer, arraigned for practicing medicine without a license, pleaded not guilty, and his case came to trial by jury; he was found guilty. The defence took exceptions to the rulings of the court, and the case will go to the full bench on questions of law. Pennoyer is under $500 bonds.

Adjourned to Monday afternoon.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, Oct. 22d.

Patrick Peer, a peripatetic bummer and vagabond of the lowest order, was fined $20, costs $6.90, for drunkenness. Patrick's aim was to get winter quarters at Brentwood, but he will have to accept a residence in jail as a substitute. Even that is better than having to work for a living.

Michael Kelly, drunk, fine $3, costs $6.90; county farm in default of payment.

RAILROAD CHANGES.

The fall arrangement of trains on the Boston & Maine railroad went into effect on Sunday, and the various changes can be learned by consulting our advertising columns. On the York Harbor & Beach railroad but two trains daily will be run, leaving this city at 11:05 A. M. and 5:45 P. M., and York Beach (the terminus of the line, hitherto called Union Bluff station) at 6:45 A. M. and 1:40 P. M.

PORTSMOUTH FIRE ASSOCIATION.

The Portsmouth Fire Association, a new insurance company, was organized on Saturday forenoon at the rooms of the Granite State Insurance Co. in this city. Messrs. Frank Jones, John W. Sanborn, Ezra H. Winchester, Charles A. Sinclair, Edwin Wallace, Charles B. Gaffney and Wallace Hackett were chosen directors; Frank Jones, president; John W. Sanborn, vice president; Alfred F. Howard, secretary; Justin V. Hanscom, treasurer. The company was organized with a capital of $50,000, and will be ready for business Nov. 1st.

PERSONAL.

Alderman Conlon and son returned last Friday from a visit to Albany, N. Y., where they went to attend the funeral of an uncle of Mr. Conlon.

Col. Elbridge G. Peirce and Mr. J. F. Berry, with their wives, passed last week in New York city; they returned home on Saturday.

George W. Marston, Esq., who has been in town for several months, left on Sunday morning for Chicago, via Portland and the Grand Trunk railroad, in response to an urgent telegram to return for business reasons.

Mr. John Malsbenden, formerly of this city but for several years past residing in England, arrived in town last Saturday, and will probably make his home here.

Mr. Edward G. Niles and wife arrived in Boston last Friday from England by the steamer Cephalonia.

Mr. F. L. Payson of Tufts college preached in the Universalist church yesterday, morning and evening. Rev. Mr. Phillips of Rye preached in the Middle street Baptist church Sunday morning, on exchange with the pastor; in the evening Rev. Dr. Alden lectured on "The Eleventh Commandment." Rev. Mr. Wood of Newburyport preached in the Pearl street church Sunday; and Rev. Mr. McGinley, paster of the North church, having returned from his vacation occupied his own pulpit.

There was a very good audience at Music hall on Saturday evening—taking into consideration that it was Saturday evening—to witness the presentation in its revised form of "Rene, the Huguenot captain," by the Redmund-Barry combination. The piece has been much improved by the pruning of the dialogue since its previous representation here; and the introduction of a family of good contortionists, of a small but well trained corps of ballet dancers and a male quartette, adds variety to the entertainment. The audience generally seemed much pleased with the evening's show, the gallery being particularly demonstrative, with whistles and stamping, when the hero impressively informed the vengeful woman whose son he was supposed to have killed in a duel that "Vengrance belongs to God alone." Lofty moral sentiment takes the gallery in, every time. The duel act between the Huguenot captain and the captain of the king's guard was as good as we ever saw on the stage; and all the leading performers were honored with merited calls before the curtain.

The grocery and provision store of Downs & Co., Nos. 37 to 49 Market street, was closed by the sheriff on Saturday, and a keeper put in.

The aldermanic hearing on the question of widening Water street, between Salter and Pray streets, took place on the premises Saturday forenoon. The question was not fully decided, the final decision being laid over until a future meeting of the board of aldermen.

ROYAL

BAKING POWDER

Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kinds, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low test, short weight, alum or phosphate powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO. 106 Wall Street, New York.

NAVY YARD ITEMS.

Lieut. William H. Everett is detached from the Portsmouth navy yard, and ordered as executive officer of the training-ship Saratoga, Oct. 31st.

Capt. William R. Brown, U. S. M. C., is ordered to report for duty at the marine barracks at this navy yard, relieving Capt. Mancil C. Goodrell, detached and ordered to the marine barracks at the New York yard.

It is reported that the naval board of enquiry which convened at the navy yard last Friday arrived at the conclusion, after carefully sifting all the evidence, that Faine, the embezzling clerk, had gone away.

The new lock-boxes for the post-office have arrived, and are being got ready to be placed in position. They are somewhat larger than the old ones, with heavier and larger glass, so as to enable one to see if there is any mail matter in the box without going to the trouble of unlocking it.

The season is over for the Canadian fishery cruisers. Only the Vigilant and Druid will remain in commission. The season has not been a very good one, the take of the fleet being no better than that of the American mackerel fleet in Canadian waters.

The Shute brothers—appropriate name—of Newmarket, killed five wild geese in Great bay on Monday of last week, the first to be killed there this season. Very few geese have alighted in the bay so far, the weather having been so favorable that they could keep on their flight from the Arctic regions to the gulf states without stopping by the way.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Mary Willey, Capt. Williams, sailed on Sunday for Portland, there to load corn for Bangor, at which latter port she will take on lumber for John H. Broughton of this city.

Capt. P. P. Boardman, master of the schooner Frances Ellen, of Bangor, was in town on Saturday after help to float the schooner and tow her from Rye harbor to this port. The vessel sprung a leak one day last week while on the passage from Bangor to Boston with a cargo of framing timber and shingles, and was run into Rye harbor and beached. She is a small vessel, registering about sixty tons, and was built at Belfast, Me., in 1845; if she cannot be floated her cargo will be lightered, and the vessel sold as she lies.

The Marine Journal, of New York, has the following: "Pilot-boat No. 13, built to replace pilot-boat Perkins (same number) lost last winter, was launched in conspicuous opposition to the superstition that holds thirteen to be an unlucky number. She was launched on the 13th inst., at thirteen minutes past four, in the presence of a phalanx of honor, consisting of thirteen members of the 'Thirteen Club,' and was christened by a thirteen-years-old girl. If the continuous-hour-system of denoting time were in operation, there is no doubt but that she would have been launched on the 13th month at thirteen o'clock. She was built by Samuel Pine, and was named the Caldwell H. Colt, after the owner of the Dauntless and the American Magazine. The new No. 13 is 85 1-2 feet in length, and will be commanded by Captain Dougherty, who with four other veteran pilots, are her proud owners. The eyes of the entire maritime world will eagerly follow the movements of this challenger of fate."

Thirty-five lives were lost by the wreck of the colonial steamer Cheviot at Port Philip, Australia.

THE STUDIOUS MAN.

Out through the gates of Ispahan
One morning rode a studious man.
"Oh, whither bound? a traveler cried,
Who rested by a fountain side.
"I go to seek," replied the sage,
"The greatest wonder of the age."
"Then from your saddle now descend
And call your journey at an end,
For here within this sack I hold
The greatest wonder bought or sold."
And stooping down, the speaker drew
A cake of IVORY SOAP in view.
"No alkali this soap contains,
It leaves the lace and takes the stains;
It comes from oils, sweet as the rose
That in the palace garden grows;
It floats like cork upon the wave;
With this we may both wash and shave—"
Enough, enough!" the student cried;
"You've saved me from a longer ride,"
And turning round his wisdom showed,
For back to Ispahan he rode.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory;'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

Fall and Winter Opening!

MRS. J. M. TEBBETTS

— ANNOUNCES FOR —

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

OCT. 19th and 20th,

— HER OPENING OF —

PATTERN HATS AND BONNETS.

For more than twenty years Mrs. Tebbets has invited the Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity to semi-annual exhibitions of Fine Millinery. Each succeeding season the selections have been finer and richer, the tastes of her customers calling for the best the market affords. The New Fall and Winter Styles in Trimmed Goods will surpass any ever seen in this city.

All Cordially Invited.

BREAD WITHOUT YEAST.

It is a well-known fact that bread made with yeast, if eaten before it becomes stale, ferments again in the stomach, producing indigestion and numerous other diseases. Bread raised with Baking Powder, instead of yeast, is entirely without this defect, but on the contrary is one of the most effectual preventives of indigestion or dyspepsia. By the use of the Royal Baking Powder the saccharine properties of the flour, which are destroyed by fermentation with yeast, are preserved, and the bread is made more nutritious. Ten per cent. more bread is baked—because of this saving—from the same quantity of flour.

The Royal Baking Powder will also make sweet, white bread from an inferior quality of flour, a property possessed by no other leavening agent. Thus, much flour that, although possessing all the nutritive qualities, is dark in color, or from other cause is considered below the finer grades, and therefore much cheaper, can be utilized and turned into a perfectly sweet and wholesome bread. Nor can bitter bread ever result from the use of too much, or more than the required quantity, of Royal Baking Powder; as, whether used in small or large quantities, its proportions are in such exact equivalents that they always neutralize each other. Bread made in this way does not require mixing over night, but may be prepared ready for the oven in a few minutes, an advantage that will be readily appreciated by every housekeeper.

Royal is the only baking powder made that contains neither lime nor alum.

A Loud Report.

In Dublin, Ireland, Oct. 21st, at a meeting of the Church of Ireland Temperance society, Canon Weldon, who recently received an appointment in England, made an address in which he said he hoped the queen would find a more suitable way to honor her husband's memory than by sending her sons and sons-in-law to the top of a highland mountain to drink raw whiskey. He was present, he said, at this year's festival in honor of the presence of the queen, and he never saw a more disgusting and revolting scene of drunkenness. It surpassed the traditions of Donnybrook fair. The effect was visible for many days in men with sodden eyes and staggering gait.

The Beau Ideal of a Family Medicine. A remedy which promply and completely relieves ailments of such common occurrence as indigestion, constipation, billiousness and disorders of a malarial type, is assuredly the beau ideal of a family medicine Such is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is not only capable of eradicating these complaints, but also counteracting a tendency to kidney troubles, rheumatism and premature decadence of stamina. Taking it "all round," as the phrase is, there is probably not in existence so useful, effective and agreeable a household panacea as the Bitters. Nor is it less highly esteemed by the medical profession than by the families of America. Numberless testimonials from professional sources of irrefragable authenticity evince its merit. The demand for it abroad, no less than in the land, of its discovery, is certainly increasing time and experience of its beneficent effects confirming the high opinion originally formed of it.

In the United States court at Washington, Oct. 21st, Justice Harlan referred the condemned anarchists' application for a writ of error to the full bench of the supreme court. General Roger A. Pryor made the plea for the writ.

Public benefactors are not alone confined to the higher orders of scientific research. Indeed but few have done more for the welfare of the working masses than James Pyle through the introduction of his labor-saving Pearline.

New York city is to have another paper, a morning daily and Sunday journal, straight-out republican, with protection to American labor as its editorial keynote. The capital stock of $200,000 is all paid up.

It is an established fact that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will speedily cure a cough or cold. Consumption often yields to its great power.

The Alpha Oil company, a concern capitalized at $6,000,000 and doing business in Michigan and Canada, is reported to be financially embarrassed.

Be Careful!

No matter what disease you may have. Be sure that the medicine you take is reliable. Such a medicine you will always find Sulphur Bitters. They are not a cheap rum drink, but are made of the choicest roots and herbs to be found in the vegetable kingdom.—Daily Argus.

A despatch of Oct. 21st from Augusta, Me., says: "Public sentiment here and in other sections seems against the Dexter bank officials in their action in providing attorneys for Stain and Cromwell Smith. That they would do all in their power to liberate the prisoners and maintain the suicide theory, there seems no doubt."

I have been troubled with catarrh for the past ten years and have tried a number of remedies but found no relief until a purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Crandall, P. M., Quonochawntaug, R. I.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm, some five months ago. It has done for me what other so-called cures failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Huff, Biddeford, Me.

Fire on Friday morning destroyed the buildings on the Tibbets farm, two miles from Saco, owned by Oliver Hamilton. The Saco fire department turned out, but no water could be obtained. Only a little furniture was saved. The fire originated in the barn, and was undoubtedly set by an incendiary. Loss $8,000; partially insured.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.

Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP FOR CHILDREN TEETHING. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhœa, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup for Children Teething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle. mon,wed,sat.G

LIFE.

Some only break their fast and go away;
Others stay dinner and depart full fed;
The deepest age but sups and goes to bed.

Who dies betimes has less and less to pay.

THE CRAZY ROMANOFFS.

The Mental Disease Which Afflicts the Russian Imperial Family.

In the recently published memoirs of Count Vitzthum, of Eckstadt, proofs are given of the hereditary character of the mental disease which afflicted the imperial family of Russia. All the sons of Czar Paul I, like that unhappy monarch himself, who was murdered in 1801, became subject to fits of insanity. Paul I had four sons—Czar Alexander I, the Grand Duke Constantine, Czar Nicholas I and the Grand Duke Michael. Every one of them after his 45th year exhibited undoubted signs of mental derangement. This was not fully discovered in the case of Nicholas I until after the czar's death.

An English physician, however, the count says, noticed the appearance of the hereditary disease in the czar as early as July, 1853, and he then predicted that the monarch had not more than two years of life before him. This he stated in a letter to Lord Palmerston. The Emperor Nicholas died in March, 1855, about four months earlier than the date predicted. The count appears to have no doubt that the Crimean war, so far as it depended on Nicholas, was the rash act of a ruler "whose mental equipoise was disturbed." None of the four sons of Paul I lived to be 60 years of age, and every one of them suffered from congestion of the brain after reaching his 45th year. Alexander died at 48, a miserable man, moody and despondent, as Prince Metternich has painted him, "tired of existence."

His brother, the Grand Duke Constantine, though not manifestly insane, gave frequent signs of mental disturbance, of which he was himself so plainly conscious that he did not think himself fit to be trusted with the reins of government. His conduct in the year 1830, at the outbreak of the revolution in Warsaw, will remain to prove his mental unsoundness. He had to be intrusted to the care of his wife, the Princess Lowicz, who was cautioned in the same way as a physician in charge of a patient having intermittent fits of insanity. He died in his 52d year from congestion of the brain. The Grand Duke Michael was killed by a fall from his horse at the age of 48. Some years before his death he had exhibited signs of undoubted mental disease, and his physicians declared that he was on the road to certain insanity.

The events of 1848–52 were not calculated to allay the hereditary dispositions of the imperial family of Russia, but to excite and intensify them. There is something terrible in the contrast between the outward position of the Czar Nicholas, upon the bent of whose will the fate of so many millions in Europe was depending, and the alleged diseased inward condition of his mind.—London Society.

The Wardrobes of Kings.

The wardrobe of the late king of Bavaria has been sold at Munich, and the proceeds are to be applied toward the payment of his debts. The St. James' Gazette alludes to this transaction as a following of the precedent set in England, when George IV died, but this is an entire mistake, for his wardrobe became the perquisite of his pages, and it was sold by them for their own exclusive benefit. This was a monstrous job, as the wardrobe fetched an immense sum, and the public, who originally paid for it, ought to have obtained the proceeds. George IV left every coat he had bought for fifty years, 800 canes and whips, every description of uniform, the state costumes of all his orders and magnificent furs and pelisses, some of which had been sent to him by the emperors of Russia and Austria.—London Truth.

Advice to Young Doctors.

In your instructions to your patients, be particular in giving minute directions concerning diet. This has great effect on the minds of old women, especially, if their maladies are in a great measure imaginary. Make a list of what is to be eaten at breakfast, dinner and supper, and you may depend upon being made the subject of conversation, and will be considered very clever.

I brought myself into notice, and gained several prominent families, by recommending to a wealthy old lady the left leg of a boiled fowl. Once when I was away on a short vacation, this old lady took sick and was obliged to send for a neighboring physician, who, by the way, was really a well read man. On his attempting to persuade her that the left leg possessed no particular virtue, she became quite indignant and uncomplimentary.—Western Medical Reporter.

Harnessing Nature's Forces.

One of the latest attempts to harness the forces of nature for the service of man is the adaptation of a windmill for the turning of a dynamo, the electricity thus obtained being stored in suitable batteries, and afterward used in lighting beacons for the benefit of the maritime interests. There is a station of this kind near the mouth of the Seine, and considerable success has been obtained.—Chicago News.

Something for Furniture Makers.

Nature has provided a new industry for furniture makers, by so working on a redwood tree that its grain becomes curly and assumes fantastic shapes. The wood is cut into veneers, polished and sold for solid rosewood.—Boston Budget.

Solid Truth!

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease ("psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took . . . and . . . Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am as well. I scratched for twenty-eight years, and it did not be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it. DENNIS DOWNING.

WATERBURY, VT., Jan. 20th, 1887.

Psoriasis, Eczema, Tetter, Ringworm, Lichen, Pruritus, Scall Head, Milk Crust, Dandruff, Barber's, Baker's, Grocer's and Washerwoman's Itch, and every species of Itching, Burning, Scaly, Pimply Humors of the Skin and Scalp and Blood, with Loss of Hair, are positively cured by CUTICURA, the great Skin Cure, and CUTICURA SOAP, an exquisite Skin Beautifier externally, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, the new Blood Purifier, internally, when physicians and all other remedies fail.

Sold everywhere. Price, CUTICURA, 50c.; SOAP, 25c.; RESOLVENT, $1. Prepared by the POTTER DRUG AND CHEMICAL CO., Boston, Mass.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and carries away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine health and decency, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive disease. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

By reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only first middle link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, Streator, Peoria, Keokuk, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, Winterset, Atlantic, Avoca, Marshalltown, Anthon, Sioux City, Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of the best steel rails, laid on solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its employes are courteous, competent and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in this or any other country in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River contain Dining Cars, Reclining Chair Cars, and Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—restful Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route solid Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respect and courtesy at all times.

Ringing Noises

In the ears, sometimes a roaring, buzzing sound, are caused by catarrh, that exceedingly disagreeable and very common disease. Loss of smell or hearing also result from catarrh. Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier, is a peculiarly successful remedy for this disease, which it cures by purifying the blood. If you suffer from catarrh, try Hood's Sarsaparilla, the peculiar medicine.

A Depreciated Industry.

The indications are that the mackerel fishing industry, once of such great importance, will soon be nearly or quite destroyed, as the alewive and menhaden fisheries have already been, by the criminally wasteful methods employed in the business. The following statement shows the disastrous results on the fishery of the modern methods:

According to the statement of the Boston Fish Bureau, the landings at all ports for the week ended Oct. 22d amounted to 2476 barrels, against 1690 barrels the previous week, and 1998 barrels the corresponding week last year. The total catch to date is 69,825 barrels against 71,774 barrels last year, a decrease of 1949 barrels. Mr. Wilcox, of the American Fish Bureau, makes the catch 70,847 barrels, which virtually agrees with the Boston's bureau's estimate, and shows that this year's catch promises to be the smallest within the recollection of this generation. In 1885 the catch to Oct. 22d was 301,595 barrels, and in 1884 it was 405,510 barrels. Last year our dealers had liberal stocks carried over from the year previous, but this year they were cleaned out before the new catch came to market, and at the present time there are not one-quarter as many mackerel in store as two years ago. The indications are that supplies will be completely exhausted before next June, which is the earliest time that any new mackerel can be landed in the United States according to law.

The Barron Murder.

Stain and Cromwell, charged by young Stain with the murder of Cashier Barron of the Dexter (Me.) bank, were held for trial at the close of an examination Saturday. They were both positively identified by different residents of Dexter as having been seen in that town on the day of the murder.

MATTERS IN YORK.

YORK, ME., Oct. 24th.

Capt. John B. Fernald, who was stricken with paralysis two weeks ago, is now doing nicely under the most careful attention by Dr. Hezen. The captain is now able to be about the house.

Emmons Blaine arrived here last Wednesday, the guest of Mrs. Mason, at York Harbor.

J. L. Grant's five-years-old cow dressed 808 pounds, and was said by Mr. Simpson, the well known butcher at Cape Neddick, to be the fattest cow-beef he ever saw in York.

Cider Hill again to the frost! On the 20th, born unto Henry Plaisted, ten pounds of full-blooded democratic boy. The election of a democratic president in November, 1908, seems to be a foregone conclusion.

The York Harbor & Beach railroad management have taken off all but two trains, which will run as follows: Leave "Union Bluff" (now called York Beach) at 6:45 A. M., 1:40 P. M.; leave Portsmouth at 11:05 A. M., 5:45 P. M.

The changing of names must lead to a considerable confusion among the patrons of the road, for a time. The station formerly called "Union Bluff" is now called "York Beach," and what was formerly called "York Beach" (near Hotel Barlett) is now called "Long Sands." The time used on the 11.2 miles is 35 and 42 minutes. The fare we hear has been reduced to about three cents per mile—formerly about six.

Saturday night Capt. F. P. Emerson went home from Mr. Walker's store about nine o'clock in apparently good health. His wife brought water for him to wash his feet, and left him sitting in his chair. She retired, and waking from a short sleep heard him breathing heavily. She immediately arose, and found him unable to speak. She called their nearest neighbor, Mrs. Barrett, who immediately went for physicians, Dr. Hawkes arriving only a few minutes before death, and Dr. Stewart a few minutes after. Capt. Emerson was a very exemplary man, and will be much missed. He was very kind to to the poor, and gave employment to many who needed assistance. He had taken great interest in fowarding some arrangement to water the residences and hotels at York Harbor, from springs and streams three miles back. He had also used much effort and was largely instrumental in obtaining the appropriation by Congress for dredging and widening of York Harbor chanel. He had intended going to Portland on Monday (to-day) in this interest, to see about securing another and additional appropriation. He was a professed Christian, and showed it in his daily walk. Verily man proposes, God disposes. His age was 56 yrs. 1 mo., 20 days.

John W. Trafton, son of Tobias Trafton, died of consumption on Friday, the 21st inst.; his age was about 27 years. He learned the marble cutter's trade with Mr. J. E. Staples of York. He was a fine young man, and highly esteemed by his large circle of acquaintances. P.

It is understood that the surgeon general of the navy has made a formal appeal to the secretary in regard to the statements concerning the medical bureau and the recent international congress, which were reported to have been made by Medical Director Gibon while the latter was in Washington attending the sessions of the congress.

A public reception was given on Wednesday evening of last week in Winchester to Rev. Thomas S. Smith and family, who are soon to go to the missionary field in Ceylon.

A desperate fight took place on the north fork of the Arkansas river, in the Indian territory, last week between Bud Trainer's gang of outlaws and a vigilance committee under the leadership of Robert Henderson, a Scotch half-breed, which followed the thieves from Duckworth's store in the Creek nation. Eight vigilantes and seven robbers were killed, the latter including Bud Trainer.

In Boston, Oct. 22d, a young man clad in female attire attempted to attend the lecture to women given in Tremont Temple by Mrs. Longshore-Potts. There were 1500 women present, and every one of them instantly detected the imposter through the bungling and inartistic manner in which he managed his bustle. He was "fired out" so quickly that it made his head swim.

Three Peculiarities

Hood's Sarsaparilla, the great blood purifier and regulating medicine, is characterized by three peculiarities, namely:

1st: The combination of the various remedial agents used.

2d: The proportion in which the roots, herbs, barks, etc., are mixed.

3d: The process by which the active medicinal properties are secured.

The result is a medicine of unusual strength and curative power, which effects cures heretofore unequalled. These peculiarities belong exclusively to Hood's Sarsaparilla, and are

Unknown to Others

Hood's Sarsaparilla is prepared with the greatest skill and care, by pharmacists of education and long experience. Hence it is a medicine worthy of entire confidence. SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

On Monday afternoon the case of C. D. Hinman, charged with practicing dental surgery without a license, was heard by the court; decision reserved.

Emil Gillard, indicted for larceny of a carpet-bag from the Boston & Maine railroad station in Exeter, who pleaded guilty on Friday, was brought into court and sentenced to two years in state prison.

State vs. William Quinn. This was an action for an alleged aggravated assault committed on a young man named Fernald, on Water street in this city, on the seventh day of October. This case served to draw together a large audience, the court-room being crowded. The jury after being out about ten minutes, brought in a verdict of guilty of simple assault. The judge sentenced Quinn to thirty days in jail, and to pay costs.

John Costello, who on Saturday pleaded nolo contendere to a charge of assaulting an officer, was dismissed on payment of costs, about $20.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

John Crowley, drunk, fine $5, costs $5.76; county farm.

Thomas Ryan, assault on Mrs. Annie Locke, fine $20, costs $8.44; jail in default of payment.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steamer Pinafore came in from the Isles of Shoals on Sunday, and remained over Monday.

The schooner H. H. Olds, from Philadelphia with 1416 tons of coal to E. F. Sise & Co., arrived at this port on the 24th inst., and will discharge at the Concord railroad wharf.

The United States training ships Portsmouth and Saratoga sailed from Newport, R. I., on Sunday morning, the 23d inst., for New York, where they will be joined by the Jamestown and proceed to Norfolk, where they will be fitted out for a winter's cruise to the West Indies. The United States ship Galena also sailed from Newport the same day for New York, for coal.

The U. S. S. Marion sailed from Yokohama Sept. 3d for Panama, where she will receive a new complement of officers and men. Among the officers coming home in her are Lieut. William Winder and Paymaster John MacMahon.

The gondola Hard Chance, Capt. Cheney, was lying at Appledore wharf on Monday, loaded with lumber for the Isles of Shoals, and waiting a chance to get out. The chance that day, with a howling sou' wester blowing, was rather too "hard" for even the veteran Capt. Cheney to face.

A despatch of the 22d from Gloucester says: "The mackeral catch shows a further falling off this week, and the season is rapidly drawing to a close. A few good catches were made on Wednesday night, the 19th, off the South Shore, but no large schools have been seen at other places, and most of the vessels haul up on arrival for the want of men. Some are kept out to prevent the crews from leaving, but stormy weather would soon bring them all in, as it is not likely that the season will last more than a week of two longer at the most."

The schooner Grace K. Green, Seaward master, which last week discharged a cargo of coal to C. E. Walker & Co., was towed to the navy yard early Monday morning, to take on board a lot of old iron for Philadelphia. The amount she will take is stated at about three hundered tons.

Intelligence was received at Newport, R. I., Monday morning, that the training ship Portsmouth, which left Newport the previous day for New York, was lying in a very dangerous position off Point Judith with four anchors down, the wind blowing a furious southwest gale, directly on shore. The only hope of safety was in the holding of the anchors, for she had no chance to claw off should she break adrift. The crews of the Point Judith and Narragansett Pier life-saving stations were ordered to stand by to render aid in case the ship should be driven ashore; assistance was sent from the training station at Newport, and Admiral Luce despatched the Dolphin to do whatever was possible for the distressed vessel.

PERSONAL.

H. Fisher Eldredge, wife and children, and Hiram C. Locke, wife and daughter, left this city on Monday for Boston, for a week's absence.

J. Horace Jenness arrived in New York by steamer from France, on the 23d inst., on his way to this city.

Fred E. Perkins of this city, son of Thomas G. Perkins, has gone to Boston to take a position in a store there.

Mr. Thomas Entwistle and wife left town Monday for Boston, intending to be absent ten days or more on a trip through central and northern New York.

Mrs. John N. Sherburne on Monday closed her house on Daniel street for the winter, which she will pass in Boston with her daughters.

W. J. Sampson & Co. have taken the job to paint the Hotel Wentworth, Newcastle, outside and in. It is a big job.

A large number of persons from the interior towns of Rockingham county have been in the city during the session of the supreme court. As a general thing they can be told at a glance from residents of York county, though just where the difference lies might be hard to specify.

A herd of over a hundred young cattle, bound to market in Massachusetts, were on the Parade on Monday afternoon.

Richard May, or Mayo, which latter is said to be his correct name, was last week locked up in the police station on a charge of being insane. He was examined on Saturday by City Physician Berry and Dr. John W. Parsons, who pronounced him unquestionably insane, and on Monday he was taken to the asylum at Concord. His son, Richard Mayo, Jr., was taken to an asylum several months ago. The elder Mayo occupied the rooms in the large building on Pleasant street, next the North church, in which the fire started some two years ago; and also in a building on Washington street in which fire broke out a few weeks since.

Work was commenced Saturday at setting out a number of young maples along Newcastle avenue, and the lower end of Water street.

Mr. Plummer Spinney, the veteran job-wagon driver, appeared on the stand near the North church Monday forenoon, in readiness for an engagement—his first appearance on his wagon since he got broken somewhere, about three months ago, by a stove falling on him.

Hon. Warren Brown of Hampton Falls has been appointed by the governor and council as one of the four delegates from New Hampshire to the National Agricultural convention at Chicago.

Monday was a very pleasant day, so far as temperature was concerned, but the warm and balmy atmosphere was in too rapid motion to be wholly agreeable to people out of doors. So blustering a day with so little discomfort is not common at this time of the year.

On Thursday evening, Oct. 27th, at Music hall, "Dan Darcy," a new drama claimed to be the best Irish American play on the stage, will be presented by a strong company under the management of J. M. Hill, of the Union Square theatre, New York. Lizzie May Ulmer is in the cast. The leading part is taken by Mr. James C. Roach, who is the author of the play. This company brings an orchestra of ten pieces, and a brass band for street music. The name of J. M. Hill as manager is a sufficient guaranty to our people that the entertainment will be of a very high order. Tickets now on sale at Goodrich's; prices as usual.

The Boston & Maine railroad management has given an additional order to the Portland locomotive works for two new engines, making fourteen in all.

Harper's Magazine for November has been received by M. Goodrich and Moses Bros., and is now ready for delivery to subscribers or for sale by the single number.

Daniel Hartigan was killed on the railroad near New Haven, Conn., Oct. 22d. He was in charge of a gang of Italian workmen, and in his efforts to get them out of the way of an express train lost his own life.

A man supposed to be named Richard Klauser, aged about fifty years, jumped into the river at Providence, R. I., Oct. 22d, and held his head under water as he floated down stream. He was dead when fished out.

The Boston Globe has just been subjected to a libel suit and fined a dollar, while both the plaintiff and defendant had each to pay his costs. This is about as near an equal division of labor as has recently come to our notice.

Rev. George Alway has resigned the pastorate of the Unitarian society at Bath.

Rev. I. C. White, late pastor of the Congregational church in Newmarket, will remove to Boston.

The foundation will be immediately laid for an elegant church edifice for the Freewill Baptist society in Concord.

Rev. F. D. Sargent has closed the eighteenth year of a successful pastorate over the Congregational church in Brookline.

At a gathering at the Congregational chapel in Guilford last week, on Thursday evening, Rev. J. C. Rollins was presented with a purse of $125.

Mrs. Mary Burpee Renshaw, who has lately been visiting her father at Nelson, in this state, has started for Utah to join her husband in mission work.

An elegant window has lately been unveiled in St. Luke's (Episcopal) church at Charleston, this state, in memory of the first five clergymen of the parish. A costly window has also been placed in the same edifice by George Olcott, in memory of his deceased mother.

Wanted,

Every lady to call and see the very large size, strictly all-wool Blankets we are selling for $5.00 per pair. The lot will not last long.

The Biddeford Times, ordinarily a reliable paper, even when speaking of political opponents, tells the following story with a gravity indicating a supposition that somebody may believe it: "Saco claims a unique young lady. It is related that on one occasion she was awakened at night by a noise which sounded like the movements of a rat in her room. She got up with the intention of going for the intruder, when the latter scampered out of the room through the partly open door. She left the door ajar, but tied a string to its knob and took the other end of it to bed with her, so that should his ratship return, as she conjectured he would, she could make sure of him. Sure enough in a few minutes back he came, and as soon as he was apparently within the room the door was closed by means of the string. Then the young lady got out of bed, lighted the gas and prepared for war. There was the monster rat, big enough and fierce looking enough to appall the heart of Madam Dufarge herself. But the valiant miss stopped not to argue of the danger to her toes should the rodent make for those members, but went straight to work, with a heavy towel as a weapon, so as not to make too much noise. Round the room they went, under the bed, over the table, through the chair rungs, the hunted animal with his appetite for toes completely destroyed by the fire in his pursuer's eye. Finally, after being routed from every other place of vantage in the room, a sudden inspiration seized the rat, and he made for the bed. Here he hid among the springs, and the young lady, by this time completely tired out, gave up the pursuit and coolly retired, to the bed where the rat was, first making sure that the door was fastened so that he should not escape her. In the morning she brought in reinforcements in the shape of her terrier dog, and then the battle was of brief duration. But show us another town or city in America with a young woman of bravery like this!"

The zenith of assurance was reached by a paint-pot-advertising agent of some patent washing compound, who visited Biddeford, Me., the other day. After decorating a high board fence with legends relating to his particular wares, he stepped into the road to admire the view. Noticing that two cherry trees in a neighboring garden rather detracted from the effect, he coolly stepped over and began to cut them down with an axe he took from his wagon. The owner arrived on the scene just in season to save his property.

Mrs. Joseph Mitchell, a much respected lady of Biddeford, was fatally burned last Friday through her clothes taking fire, while she was using kerosene to kindle a fire in the kitchen stove.

I have been troubled with catarrh for the past ten years and have tried a number of remedies but found no relief until a purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Crandall, P. M., Quonochawntaug, R. I.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm, some five months ago. It has done for me what other so-called cures failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Huff, Biddeford, Me.

It is an established fact that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will speedily cure a cough or cold. SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease even again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ..... and ..... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. I brough force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed, head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, take up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, is indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all afflicted. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never-failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

SOME QUEER MARRIAGE LAWS.

Customs of the Old Days—In Ancient Rome—Jewish Marriage.

The Roman church alone regarded marriage as a sacrament, but all the other churches recognized it as a divine institution, and, accordingly, every denomination has provided religious services for its solemnization. So strong a hold did the church in England gain upon it that for a long time the regulation of marriage and divorce was almost exclusively under the church's jurisdiction.

Among the Romans there were three ways of obtaining a wife—by capture, sale or gift. When a Roman bought a wife—and this was the usual way—the ceremony that followed was merely gone through for the sake of having indisputable evidence of the sale. The head of the family had to give her over to the husband in the presence of witnesses, and it is from this that we now have the custom of giving away the bride. Before the period of Rome's greatness the parties could dissolve the marriage by mutual consent.

When they wished to terminate the contract they usually went before an altar and in the presence of witnesses declared the marriage at an end. At and after the time of Rome's greatness the marriage was indissoluble. The Roman husband took his wife not as her husband, but as her father. She came into his family the same almost as an adopted daughter.

Originally the husband had absolute and complete control over her and her property. Even after his death she was subjected to any guardianship that he might have had appointed for her during his lifetime. But a change came in her condition, and came as changes usually come, from one extreme to another. The wife was now subject to the tutelage of guardians appointed by her own family. This tutelage gave her a very independent position as to her separate estate and person.

Before this change came, and even afterward, there was exercised among the Romans complete tyranny by the head of the family over his relations which were members of his family.

As head of the family, the eldest male was always the head; he had power not only over his relatives, but all persons connected with his household and his children's households. While the father lived his son was subject to him, although the son might be 40 years old and have a large family of his own. The grandchildren were subject to the grandfather the same as their own father.

The family was then regarded much as we now regard the individual. If a member committed a crime the whole family was held responsible, and it was perfectly lawful for the injured family to get revenge or satisfaction, even if it were necessary to exterminate the whole offending family. This was carried to such an extent that whole families were destroyed.

The blood feud, and it was well named, descended from father to son. It was to the Roman, in effect, what the inherited curse was to the Greek. The feud was kept up not so much for the sake of punishment as to prevent the supposed liability of the offending family to commit fresh offenses. With all their peculiar customs in regard to the family it must be said to their credit that they never to any extent practiced polygamy.

If the Romans did not countenance polygamy the Hebrews did, and they had a more peculiar custom. There was a law among them called the Levirate, which means brother-in-law, and according to this law, at the death of the husband, the next oldest unmarried brother-in-law of the widow married her if there were no children.

In this way the wife of the eldest brother might, in the course of time, have been the wife of all the brothers. This custom afterward extended to many of the western nations, but the marriage took place whether there were any children or not.

There was another kind of marriage called polygnia, and, like the Levirate, it extended to the western countries. This, however, did not gain much foothold among the Hebrews. Polygnia was simply polygamy reversed. According to it, the woman was the head of the house, and might have as many legal husbands at one time as she pleased. Her children bore her name, and recognized her as head of the house.

Some of the customs attending a Hebraic marriage were peculiar. The bridegroom dressed himself in the most gorgeous style he could command. He next perfumed himself with frankincense and myrrh. Then he went forth covered with garlands, or, if he were rich, he would wear a circlet of gold and ride a gayly caparisoned horse. He was attended to the bride's house by his groomsmen, musicians, singers and torch-bearers.

The marriage was always celebrated at night, and the bridesmaids were provided with lamps to meet the bridegroom when he came. On his arrival, he found the bride, bridesmaids and company awaiting him. As soon as the actual ceremony was over, the entire company returned to the bridegroom's house with great rejoicing. When they reached the house, they partook of the wedding feast. The festivities usually lasted during fourteen days. The groom not only furnished the feast but the robes of those who took part in the ceremony.

Pioneer marriages in this country, not a century ago, had some resemblance to a Hebrew wedding. In those days the marriage was the cause of great excitement, and the whole neighborhood was usually invited.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Beau Ideal of a Family Medicine.

A remedy which promptly and completely relieves ailments of such common occurrence as indigestion, constipation, billiousness and disorders of a malarial type, is assuredly the beau ideal of a family medicine. Such is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is not only capable of eradicating these complaints, but also counteracting a tendency to kidney troubles, rheumatism and premature decadence of stamina. Taking it "all round," as the phrase is, there is probably not in existence so useful, effective and agreeable a household panacea as the Bitters. Nor is it less highly esteemed by the medical profession than by the families of America. Numberless testimonials from professional sources of irrefragable authenticity evince its merit. The demand for it abroad, no less than in the land, of its discovery, is certainly increasing time and experience of its beneficent effects confirming the high opinion originally formed of it.

Must not be confounded with cathartic or purgative pills. Carter's Little Liver Pills are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

Florence Silk Mittens.

This engraving shows the latest style of these goods. It is published as a protection for those ladies who wish to obtain mittens well made from genuine Florence Knitting Silk.

The pattern shown here is lined in back and wrist throughout with silk. They are perfect fitting, and in cold climates are far more comfortable than any glove, and more dur- able and quite as elegant and fashionable as the best of gloves. Sold by all enterprising dealers, who can be supplied at our agency. No. 18 Summer Street, Boston. Our latest book on knitting (1887 edition) contains over 100 valuable illustrated Rules, including full instructions for this mitten. Mailed to any address on receipt of six cents in stamps.

One Fact

Is worth a column of rhetoric, said an American statesman. It is a fact, established by the testimony of thousands of people, that Hood's Sarsaparilla does cure scrofula, salt rheum, and other diseases or affections arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It also overcomes that tired feeling, creates a good appetite, and gives strength to every part of the system. Try it.

A Change in Circumstances.

A despatch of Oct. 24th from Kansas City, Mo., says: "J. F. McKnight, a stranded California millionaire, appeared before the mayor of St. Joseph, Mo., and afte representing that he had not a dollar in the world, begged a railroad pass to Kansas City, which was given him, and he left for New York city, where he says he has relatives who will care for him this winter. McKnight was a partner of the millionaire Mackay in California for several years, was mayor of Oakland, and one of the most prominent men on the Pacific coast. He was a personal friend of the elder Bennett in New York when the latter had his office on Nassau street, and was Jay Gould's friend when Gould was brought into prominence by Jim Fisk. He had met and been on intimate terms with all the great men of the day, and had interesting anecdotes concerning them all. He lost his millions a short time ago, but was cheerful, although he had not a dollar. He says that he will return to California next year and build up another fortune. His clothes were seedy, and for dinner he had only a bun and a slice of cheese that cost him five cents. All his personal effects were tied up in a big red handkerchief. After he had finished his sandwich he lighted an old black pipe and seemed to enjoy it. In his down fall he retains his polished manner, and is still in conversation and deportment the same elegant gentleman he was when he could draw his check for ten millions, and have it honored."

W. C. T. U. CONFERENCE.

At the last Quarterly Conference of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Rockingham county, held in the Methodist church at Greenland, delegates were present from ten Unions; also a considerable number of the people of the town.

Mrs. Helen C. Knight of Portsmouth led the devotional exercises during the first hour of the meeting. Scripture reading was from the 13th and 14th chapters of Numbers. Practical lessons: As God called Israel to conquer the Canaanites and possess the land, so he now calls upon his church and every God-fearing soul to conquer the strongholds, the "walled cities," "the giants," in the realm of the "Liquor Demon." Who shall carry on this work? Let us go forward, do our part in this contest, remembering much of the spirit of Christ is needed to give moral power to the work. Prayers for the outpouring of this spirit, and singing "All hail the power of Jesus' name," closed the devotional service.

The regular meeting of Conference was opened by singing "God bless our native land." Miss McIntire, the presiding officer, then addressed the meeting, urging the importance of evangelistic work, especially in outlying districts; the claims of the "Home for Homeless Women," to be built in Manchester; and recommending that all be interested in the "National Temperance Temple," soon to be erected in Chicago. The "Noon-tide hour of Prayer" was observed; the report of Conference held in Hampton July 13th, was approved; and a statement concerning temperance literature was made. Temperance items were given by Mrs. Knight; and the exercises of the morning session were closed by singing the Temperance Doxology—then adjourned till 1:30 P. M. By invitation of Mrs. Dr. Odell, the basket dinner was much enjoyed in her hospitable home.

Afternoon session of Conference was opened by praise and prayer service, led by Miss McIntire, followed by an instructive Bible reading on "Faith," by Mrs. J. F. Fowler of South Newmarket. Reports of the 14th Annual Convention of the New Hampshire Woman's Christian Temperance Union, held in Manchester Sept. 27-29, were then given. Of these reports we have room only for the following compilation:

The reports of county vice presidents, on the afternoon of the first day, showed that there are in the state eighty-one unions, with 2100 members. Following these reports, memorial services were held in honor of Mrs. Fannie L. Thorndike of Portsmouth, recording secretary of the N. H. W. C. T. U. for ten years; Mrs. Julia F. Ferren, Mrs. Col. Daniel C. Gould and Miss Mary Sheppard, the latter three of Manchester. In the evening Miss Ida C. Clothier, state superintendent of Young Women's Work in Massachusetts, delivered an address on "What young women can do for temperance." She said: "It rests with the young women and young men to say that the great evil of intemperance, which underlies all the evils of society, must not and shall not continue to exist. On the shoulders of young men and young women are placed great responsibilities. The young people of to-day are the parents of to-morrow. It is for the to-morrow, and in the to-morrow that we are all living to-day." She concluded her address with an earnest appeal to all young women to take part in the great temperance work.

On Wednesday, the second day of the state convention, besides the routine business there were reports from the superintendents of departments of work, namely, on sacramental wine, Sunday school work, temperance literature, young women's work, juvenile work, etc. In the afternoon the annual address was delivered by Mrs. N. H. Knox, president of the state union, and was followed by the annual report of Miss C. R. Wendell, corresponding secretary, and reports of department superintendents. At 5:30 o'clock a children's meeting in Smyth's hall was addressed by Miss Anna Gordon, private secretary to Miss Willard, national president of the order. In the evening Miss Willard delivered an address on "Modern temperance reform." On Thursday, Miss Willard and Miss Gordon were voted in as members of the convention. Miss Willard spoke of the Temperance Temple to be erected in Chicago; the Woman's Temperance Publication Association; Blair's educational bill; and the inter-state commerce bill, which she said competent authority had declared could be amended to prohibit any railroad from employing men who used intoxicating liquors. Much routine work was done, officers and delegates appointed, resolutions passed, reports accepted, etc. In the evening the closing address of the convention was made by Pundita Ramabai, a converted Hindoo widow, who was in native dress; she is vice president of the World's W. C. T. U. for India, is highly educated, has taught Sanskrit in Cheltenham university, Eng., and has excellent command of the English language. Her address was deeply interesting. The Hindoo religion prohibits the use of intoxicants, the loss of caste on earth, and all claim to happiness hereafter, being the penalty. She strongly denounced the sending of intoxicants into India as being antagonistic to Christianity. The exercises of the evening and of the conference closed with the benediction by Rev. Mr. Knox of Littleton.

After the reading of the reports of the state convention, and the transaction of some light business, the "question box" was opened; then a vote of thanks was passed to the ladies of Greenland for hospitalities; "Blest be the tie that binds," was sung; and the conference closed with the benediction.

The Boston & Maine managers claim that Governor Sawyer's veto of the Hazen bill was not constitutional because it did not state his objections to the bill itself, as the constitution provides he shall, and that five days having elapsed without his signing the bill or vetoing it constitutionally, it has become a law. They say they shall test the question in court as soon as possible.

100 Doses

One Dollar. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the only medicine of which this can be truly said; and it is an unanswerable argument as to the strength and positive economy of this great medicine. Hood's Sarsaparilla is made of roots, herbs, barks, etc., long and favorably known for their power in purifying the blood; and in combination, proportion, and process, Hood's Sarsaparilla is peculiar to itself.

"For economy and comfort we use Hood's Sarsaparilla." MRS. C. BREWSTER, Buffalo.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla takes less time and quantity to show its effect than any other preparation I ever heard of. I would not be without it in the house." MRS. C. A. M. HUBBARD, North Chili, N. Y. 100 Doses

One Dollar

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures scrofula, salt rheum, all humors, boils, pimples, general debility, dyspepsia, biliousness, sick headache, catarrh, rheumatism, kidney and liver complaints, and all affections caused by impure blood or low condition of the system. Try it.

"I was severely afflicted with scrofula, and for over a year had two running sores on my neck. I took five bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla, and consider myself entirely cured." C. E. LOVEJOY, Lowell, Mass.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla did me an immense amount of good. My whole system has been built up and strengthened, my digestion improved, and my head relieved of the bad feeling. I consider it the best medicine I have ever used, and should not know how to do without it." MARY L. PEELE, Salem, Mass.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

On Tuesday the case of James Campbell, a deaf mute, and a tramp of the worst sort, was given to the jury. He was indicted for breaking and entering a house in Auburn, and the hearing of the case was commenced on Monday afternoon. A verdict of guilty was returned, and he was sentenced to two years in state prison.

Philip H. Kirby, indicted at this term for aggravated assault, was brought into court on an indictment found in 1885, and to which he pleaded guilty at the time, but which was then laid over on his promise to rid the city forever of his worse than worthless presence. On this old indictment he was sentenced to nine months in jail, and to pay costs.

Several divorce cases were heard by the court, after which adjournment was taken to Wednesday.

ELIOT ITEMS.

ELIOT, ME., Oct. 25th.

The present autumn is a beautiful one for the farmers to gather their crops, especially the apples. There is a great and most agreeable disappointment, in quality as well as quantity, in the apple crop, the fruit being large and smooth, and telling up immensely in the barrel. Charles Paul will have about 175 barrels suitable for market, and Miss Alice Paul about the same quantity. In the upper part of the town Joseph Kennard, Wm. Hill and Chandler Shapleigh have large yields. People are holding their apples at $2.50 per bbl., and no doubt will get it,—as they ought, in order to pay for the help and barrels, which have been quite a large output to many.

Mr. Samuel Dixon is handling, quite extensively, potatoes from the eastern part of the state, as the crop was a failure in this section. He has just unloaded one car at Dover and another at Portsmouth, and is expecting more at the latter place immediately.

Prof. Farmer's people recently held a meeting in the Congregational vestry to choose officers for the Eliot Library Association, which they are trying to establish, and in which effort it is to be hoped they will succeed. It is projected to erect in the spring a brick building two stories high, with a hall in the upper story, and a reading room and a room for social gatherings on the lower floor. It will be built in the vicinity of South Eliot, as there are more young people in that part of the town whom it is hoped to draw in, than elsewhere.

Will W. Knight has arrived home from Boston, and is at work in Portsmouth, carpentering for Anderson & Junkins.

Stacy G. Moran of Portsmouth and Fred L. Paul of South Eliot went on Saturday on a gunning trip to Agamenticus and Cape Neddick, and brought back seven woodcock, a hen hawk and some small game.

Mr. J. H. Manson has commenced the school in district No. 8, Bolt hill.

Herbert Spinney has been confined to his house for a week or ten days, but is now convalescent, and will soon be at work again in his shop.

James W. Wherren is expecting to go to work very shortly in the car shops at Salem, Mass.

There will be a dance at Brooks hall on Friday evening, the 28th inst., and a large attendance is likely, tickets fifty cents, at the door; music by Hoyt & Drew of Dover. HARRY.

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

TUESDAY, Oct. 25th.

Mattie King and Julia Carey, charged with drunkenness, were adjudged guilty, and each fined $3, costs $6.90; both were sent to Brentwood in default of payment.

Arvilla Palmer, charged with breaking and entering the stable of August Hett, and stealing therefrom, was held in $400 for the April term of the supreme court. In default of sureties he was committed to jail to await the sitting of the court.

PERSONAL.

Mr. Wilbur L. Davis of Wichita, Kansas, who has been spending three or four weeks in this city, his former home, left on the eleven o'clock train Tuesday for Wichita.

Alderman Boynton returned home on Monday evening from a visit to friends in Limerick, Me. While there he called upon Postmaster Grant, formerly of York, who is getting along very comfortably. Mr. Boynton reports the autumn landscape as being very brilliant and beautiful at the present time.

MARITIME NOTES.

The steam launch Bessie V., the tender of Capt. Symonds' dredging flotilla, stove a hole in her bow on a sunken log in the river at Saco on the 22d inst., and went to the bottom. The crew escaped without harm, and the little steamer will be raised without much trouble.

The brickers G. W. Raitt, D. K. Ham, J. Chester Wood, Estella, Triton and Hattie Lewis, arrived from Boston on Sunday, the 23d inst. The schooners John & Frank and Karen Happuch, from York for Boston, and the Gen. Grant and Ocean Eagle, from Boston for Wells, were in the lower harbor on the same date.

It was not the training ship Portsmouth, but the Saratoga, which was jammed down on a lee shore at Point Judith on the 24th inst.; she was in a very dangerous situation, but her anchors held, and with a change in the direction of the wind along in the afternoon she was enable to get clear and continue her voyage to New York.

There was a pound party at the hall of Rockingham Lodge of Good Templars on Tuesday evening.

The sale of fancy articles by the Unity club will take place at the Unitarian chapel on Court street, Thursday afternoon of this week. Admission—adults fifteen cents, children ten cents; all are cordially invited. Supper will be served at six o'clock. Music and other attractions.

Upon the election of a special policeman for Congress and Market streets, at the late session of the board of aldermen, the yeas and nays were called by Alderman Fletcher, who voted nay. The alderman as a democrat had always expressed himself as being opposed to a further increase in public expenditures, and although in this case not opposed to the candidate personally, considered it his duty to vote against the bill.

Mr. Frank H. Seavey has sold his blacksmith shop and business at the Creek, and will soon open a blacksmith and wheelwright shop at his residence on Sagamore road. The work of getting out the frame for the building has been commenced.

It is understood that the question of the redivision of the wards of this city will be brought up again in the legislature. If this scheme should be carried out for political purposes, it is doubtful of what benefit it would be to any political party, for in consequence of the feeling here it is problematical how the city will vote at the next election.

Edgar D. Stoddard has bought of Mr. E. H. Winchester a very handsome pair of young black horses.

The following are among the recent transfers of real estate in York county, as left for record in the office of the register of deeds: Kittery—Mark Blake of Kittery to H. B. Scott of Burlington, Iowa, the "James Frisbee farm" in Kittery for $3,800... York—Charles I. Hutchins to Julia Hutchins, real estate for $500; Helen E. Baker of York to Amanda B. Parks of Newtonville, Mass., real estate in York for $650; Helen E. Baker to Lillian Lawrence Savage of Boston, real estate in York for $300: Carlos B. Moseley of Concord, N. H., to James A. Edgerly of Somersworth, N. H., real estate in Concordville, York, for $300; Abbie P. Norton to York Harbor & Beach Railroad Co., real estate at Union Bluff, York, for $3,000: Josiah Norton to Y. H. & B. R. R. Co., real estate for $1375; Harriet J. Emerson to Y. H. & B. R. R. Co., real estate for $350.

Payson Gibbs, aged fourteen, son of George K. Gibbs, superintendent of the Pepperell mills at Biddeford, and Hayden Libbey, aged sixteen, are missing. They left home on the 14th inst. with shot guns, and said they were going hunting. Both were infatuated with deer hunting stories, and it is thought they have gone to eastern Maine to try their hand at shooting big game.

E. T. Welch of Brunswick, Me., who has been employed on the Maine Central road for forty years, and been flagman at the Main-street crossing in Brunswick the past fifteen years, was struck by an engine Monday morning, the 24th inst., and had his right foot crushed so that it had to be amputated six inches above the ankle, and had his left hip fractured. He is more than seventy years old, and it was thought his injuries would prove fatal.

Philadelphia has a professional sparrow catcher. His name is Joe Johnson, and he supports himself by catching the pests and selling them for cage birds. He hunts his game at night and early in the morning, principally on the side walls of churches and over ivy-clad buildings. He covers a large space where the vines are thickest with a net, and then his assistant stirs up the vines with a long pole. The sparrows flutter blindly into the net, and Joe pulls the puckering string. He has captured 120 dozen in a single night.

A Great Bargain.

M. C. FOYE,

No. 23 Market Street.

Origin of the G. A. R.

Its originator was Dr. Benjamin F. Stephenson, a physician of Springfield, Ills., who had served as surgeon in the Fourteenth Illinois infantry during the war. He first suggested the idea in February, 1866. Published accounts state that Decatur, Ills., was the birthplace of the order, but the only living comrade of the four who were present at the first muster and mutually took the obligation, according to the ritual Dr. Stevenson had prepared, says that it was founded at Springfield.

The first formal organization of a post occurred, however, beyond question, on April 6, 1866, at the village of Decatur, which contained only forty-three Union soldiers.

Among the originators of the Grand Army of the Republic were Messrs. Coltrin and Pryor, proprietors of The Decatur Tribune, and their compositors, who printed the first ritual of the Grand Army, as written by Dr. Stephenson.

Soon after Post No. 2 was formed at Springfield, and others were quickly instituted throughout Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio, Iowa and Missouri.

On July 12, 1866, the first department encampment was held at Springfield, Ills. John M. Palmer was elected department commander.—New York Herald.

A Serenade in Dahomey.

That night, perhaps, as a soother to my nerves, the king gave us a serenade by his own private band. I was awakened about midnight by a noise that I can compare to nothing but a thunderstorm in scales. They ran from high to low, and got terribly mixed in the middle. It was not really unpleasant, but, like the chiming of bells, should be heard at a distance—the greater the distance the better. I sprang to the window to find that this band consisted of twenty-two men, each with a log or piece of wood, the largest so heavy that it took four men to carry it. These were set, one end on the ground, the other supported by a wooden trestle, and beaten on the high end with wooden hammers, of all sizes, from the hand hammer to a sledge, each stick of log emitting its sound, but no distinguishable air resulting.—North American Review.

JAMES H. YEATON, Oak Hill Farm, Richards Avenue.

THE advantage of using an article that is pure and always uniform, is, you are certain of having the same satisfactory results. Eight prominent Professors of Chemistry, of national reputation, have analyzed the IVORY SOAP, and the variation in each is so trifling that the quality of the "IVORY" may be considered reliably uniform. Each pronounced it to be remarkably pure, and a superior laundry soap.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory;'" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Expositions since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the "greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

by reason of its central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines at terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only true middle link in that transcontinental system which invites and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, LaSalle, Peoria, Geneseo, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Knoxville, Audubon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron and Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its road is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of heavy steel. Its bridges are solid structures of iron and truss. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. It has all the safety appliances that have proved valuable, and has tested and experienced every valuable, its practical operation is conservative and methodical—its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accommodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Day Coaches, Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Louis, Atchison and Kansas City—reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Over this route sold Fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, picturesque localities and hunting grounds of Southern Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat fields and grazing lands of Interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Seneca and Kankakee, offers superior inducements to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and intermediate points. All classes of patrons, especially families and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, courtesy and every attention.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease ever again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of doctors said was leprosy, and was worm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparilla over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA RESOLVENT too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed; head clear, brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy, indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all sufferers. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, convenient in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

Women and Mont Blanc.

Sixty-one women in all have made the ascent of Mont Blanc. "The fact is testified," says a correspondent of Galignani, "by the antique register religiously kept at the office of the guides at Chamonix, as everybody may see for himself. The book is a more faithful record than one might expect. Just as on some ill fated precipice on the Alps a wooden cross marks the spot where a too adventurous climber has met his death, so here a lugubrious cross is set against the name of every victim who has failed to reach his journey's end, and the oft recurring formula, 'Requiescat in pace,' may perhaps account for the reluctance with which the book is shown to intending excursionists.

"The first female ascent of the giant of the Alps was made by two French women, one of aristocratic and the other of plebeian birth. Their example was quickly followed in after seasons, and in the end the record stands as follows: English women, 32; French women, 15; Russian women, 4; American women, 3; Swiss women, 2, and Prussian, Danish, Hungarian, Italian and Austrian, 1 each. Eleven of these ladies accompanied their husbands. The mania for making ascents, through evil and good report, has this year been rather conspicuous, the excursions to the summit having numbered thirty-nine as against an average of eleven. The French on this occasion have taken the lead, followed not very closely by Englishmen and English women, and still further off by Americans and Germans. Most of the French who have ventured forth to the summit are members of the Alpine club, while those of other nationalities depend for the most part upon their own resources or the counsel of guides."—Pall Mall Gazette.

The Value of Pure Coffee.

Mr. W. J. Hammond, engineer and general manager of the Western Sao Paulo railway company, Brazil, bears pleasant witness to the virtues of coffee and strongly denounces the use of adulterants. Many people will be able to indorse his high opinion of the value of "strong, pure, black coffee as a stimulant when the body is run down through physical labor," but his assertion that, beyond this stimulating power, coffee has great disinfecting properties and is used by many who have to travel through miasmatic districts as a preventive against fevers will be new to many.

He states that the Rev. Father Kenelam Vaughan, who but a few years back made a journey by land from Panama down to the River Plate, passing in and among and over the Andes during a space of three years, used coffee alone as a stimulant, although he had once to run the gauntlet through a long, rock bound valley in Colombia in which the water remained stagnant year after year, and the narrowness of the gorge prevented sufficient sunlight and heat from entering to dispel the vapors. When asked what he took in this horrible place, called by the natives by the significant name of Valley of Death, he replied: "Why, coffee, of course!" The same gentleman also reports that since the natives in the pestilential districts near Guayaquil, in Ecuador, have substituted coffee for their former beverages the death rate has fallen very considerably.—Home Knowledge.

Origin of Chili's Vineyards.

When the Spanish first began to colonize in Chili an Andalusian took three grape plants from Seville to Valparaiso. These increased and multiplied, and with the addition of the finest plants from Bordeaux and Burgundy, Chili now ships large quantities of wine all over Spanish South America and to France, where it is held in high esteem by the wine agents. —New York Tribune.

Beau Ideal of Happiness.

When Henry Labouchere was at Dieppe he asked a New Orleans beauty, who is making a sensation there, what was her beau ideal of happiness. She said: "Swinging in a hammock all day and having about a dozen royal highnesses standing around fanning me."—The Argonaut.

The Delights of Collecting.

What boy is there that can look unmoved upon a bird's nest, nor seek to add the eggs it may contain to that cherished depository he proudly gloats over and denominates "my collection?" What young girl is there who never felt the impulse move her to acquire stores of dried fern fronds, wild flowers, seaweeds or shells? There is a delight in the mere fact of collecting that many will carry on far into the riper years, though then they will cheat themselves with the belief that they are studying, or doing something that has wise or profitable aim.—Time.

A Gardener's Discovery.

An English gardener has discovered that the peculiar, strong and to most persons disagreeable flavor of parsnips may be avoided by sowing the seed quite late in the season, so as to have the roots attain most of their size in the fall instead of in the summer.—Chicago Times.

Patch on a Negro's Skin.

There is a negro in a New York hospital who has a patch of light colored skin on his back. It was grafted there, he having lost the original cuticle by falling against a roller in a shoe factory. The pieces were taken from the arms of a young medical student. At first the transplanted skin remained white, but it is said to be slowly turning black.—Chicago Herald.

Belgian Glass Workers.

It is said that the Belgian glass workers are now preparing to make glass into curious shapes and patterns by running sheets of it at just the right temperature to work nicely through steel rollers.

Wisconsin now ranks fourth in the list of paper manufacturing states.

The Beau Ideal of a Family Medicine.

A remedy which promptly and completely relieves ailments of such common occurrence as indigestion, constipation, billiousness and disorders of a malarial type, is assuredly the beau ideal of a family medicine. Such is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is not only capable of eradicating these complaints, but also counteracting a tendency to kidney troubles, rheumatism and premature decadence of stamina. Taking it "all round," as the phrase is, there is probably not in existence so useful, effective and agreeable a household panacea as the Bitters. Nor is it less highly esteemed by the medical profession than by the families of America. Numberless testimonials from professional sources of irrefragable authenticity evince its merit. The demand for it abroad, no less than in the land, of its discovery, is certainly increasing time and experience of its beneficent effects confirming the high opinion originally formed of it.

—"Mamma," was the criticism of a very young gentleman at a rendering of Wagner music during a concert, "it sounds just as if they were tearing cotton cloth!"

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown aw buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

—A farmer who saw his family array in new hats exclaimed: "There goes my wife and daughters with thirty bushels of rye apiece on their heads."

The new combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna, as used in Carter's Backache Plasters, has proved to be one of the best that could be made. Try one of those popular plasters in any case of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia, soreness of the chest or lungs, and you will be surprised and pleased by the prompt relief. In bad cases of chronic dyspepsia, a plaster over the pit of the stomach stops the pain at once. Ask for Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents.

—It is no use for a piano to be square or upright. Mr. Talmage is authority for saying that there will be none of them in heaven.

Must not be confounded with cathartic or purgative pills. Carter's Little Liver Pills are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

—Sam Jones wants to stick to the old Bible and straight preaching. He calls the new name of the old terror a silly, namby-pamby word. "Why," says Sam, "you couldn't frighten a cat with sheol."

It is an established fact that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will speedily cure a cough or cold. Consumption often yields to its great power.

—When compelled to travel all night, the Siberian natives always make a practice of stopping just before sunrise and allowing their dogs to get to sleep. They argue that if a dog goes to sleep while it is yet dark, and wakes up in an hour and finds the sun shining, he will suppose that he has had a full night's rest, and will travel all day without thinking of being tired. One hour's stop however, at any other time will be of no use whatever.

COCKLE'S ANTI-BILIOUS PILLS,

THE GREAT ENGLISH REMEDY

For Liver, Bile, Indigestion, etc. Free from Mercury; contains only Pure Vegetable Ingredients. Agent: C. N. CRITTENTON, New York.

One of Baltimore's foremost commission merchants, Mr. W. Edwin Chipchase, (of Chipchase Bros.,) writes: "A few days since I sprained my left foot, the pain was so severe that I could hardly walk at all. I saw your Salvation Oil advertised, so determined to give it a square trial. A few applications relieved me entirely and my foot is now as strong as ever. For the relief and cure of sprains and inflammations I regard it as a preparation of great merit."

George W. Eaton of Bradford has raised this season more potatoes than any other person in town, nearly 225 bushels.

Rheumatism

Is undoubtedly caused by lactid acid in the blood. This acid attacks the fibrous tissues, and causes the pains and aches in the back, shoulders, knees, ankles, hips, and wrists. Thousands of people have found in Hood's Sarsaparilla a positive cure for rheumatism. This medicine, by its purifying action, neutralizes the acidity of the blood, and also builds up and strengthens the whole body.

A man passed through Kensington recently with a market load of potatoes, which consisted of the total crop of four acres.

The Baltimore Contest.

The municipal election in Baltimore took place on Wednesday, Oct. 26th. The fight was the most important one held in Maryland for years, it being conceded that on the result would largely depend whether Gorman and Higgins, backed by Cleveland and the reform administration, should continue to rule the city and state without regard to what the voting may at any time be, or whether the people should have a chance, through an honest count and a clean judiciary, to manage their own affairs.

The administration did all that could reasonably be asked of a "reform" concern, to aid the Gorman crowd. Not only were Appointment Clerk Higgins and Commissioner Rasin in Baltimore on the night before the election, in close consultation with "Hack" Quinn, "Sonny" Mahon and other trusted cut-throats, but the navy yard and departments at Washington were closely canvassed for Baltimorean voters, all of whom were ordered home to vote the Gorman-Higgins-Cleveland ticket under penalty of loss of place in case of refusal. Those unable to pay their own fare were furnished with tickets, and the trains from Washington on Tuesday evening were crowded with government employes.

Even with the vast odds against them —the federal government, the thieves and thugs of Baltimore under the skilled management of Gorman, Higgins, Rasin et als., and the repeating and false counting of the administration gang—the independent democracy, representing the decent and honest element of the party, expected to win, even after allowing for the stealing of 3000 or 4000 votes by their unscrupulous opponents.

A white man named Parrish shot and killed three negro men in Calhoun county, Florida, a few days since. Four negroes were using Parrish's boat to gather up logs broken loose from a raft. Parrish came along, it is said, and the negroes told him they had no intention of stealing his boat, but Parrish would not receive the explanation. He raised his Winchester rifle and shot one down in the boat, another on the raft, and another who was attempting to run away. The fourth dived overboard and escaped. Mr. Parrish is considered by some to have acted without due thought.

Five walking delegates have been arrested in New York and placed under bonds for conspiracy, as an outcome of the boycott declared against W. J. Merritt & Co., architects and builders, by the Central Labor union, because the firm employed non-union men. The delegates have done all they could to ruin Merritt & Co.'s business, and work on 100 buildings has been seriously delayed.

At Cairo, Ill., Frank Cernington, a barber, shot his wife in the mouth, then cut his own throat, stabbed himself with a pair of shears, took a hatchet and cut several gashes in his head, and then jumped into a dry cistern, from which he was taken and sent to the hospital, where he may die. His wife will probably recover. Jealousy is supposed to be the cause.

A special town meeting is called at Newton to see if the town will vote to purchase one or more fire engines, also to see if the town will vote to build a town house.

—A bed of solid rock salt has been discovered at Ithaca, N. Y. This ought materially to lessen the number of freshmen at Cornell university.

A Cool Man.

"I see," said Col. Boland, as he tried to make a ring of tobacco-smoke which would last till it got to the ceiling, "that some of the papers are talking about instances of coolness and bravery in the early history of the Territory."

"I noticed it," replied Judge Persimmon. "Well, old Cy Weathersby, out at Pierre, used to be a cool one."

"Is that so?"

"Yes. Right at the side of his bed was a window, the bottom of which was just on a level with his bed so he lay there. One day he heard that some fellows were going to gather on the opposite side of the street and shoot him through the window after he had gone to sleep."

"He moved the bed, I suppose?"

"Not much. He simply sawed about six inches off each leg of the bedstead, which let it down below the window a little, rolled in and went to sleep. The boys blazed away through the window and broke his wife's arm in two places. Old Cy never woke up till morning."

"Was he always as cool as that?"

"Usually. One day he was going into a saloon and met a fellow with a double-barreled shotgun. The fellow shoved the muzzle under his nose and says he: 'Smell o' that!' Old Cy sniffed at it a couple of times and then says: 'I don't smell nothin' peculiar.' 'Wy, ye infernal fool,' yelled the man. 'I mean I'm going' to blow the whole head right off of ye!' 'O, thunder!' said Cy; 'that's it, is it? What made ye fool me 'bout the smellin'?' It disgusted the fellow so that he went out and shot himself instead of old Cy."

"Any other instances?"

"Yes. One evening just after dark he was sitting in a rocking-chair by the open door smoking when he saw a man sneaking along behind the fence with a gun. Just then his wife came into the room and old Cy said: 'My dear, won't you take the rocking-chair here by the cool o' the door?' He got up just as deliberate as you please and she hadn't more than sat down till the fellow blazed away and blowed all her back hair off. Old Cy was always very thoughtful that way about his wife. Once they nominated him for the Legislature and a big crowd went up with a band to serenade him and get him to make a speech. He thought the boys were after him again, and he stepped to the door and said: 'Gentlemen, you'll have to excuse me, my wife always tends to these matters!' Then he bowed and went out in the kitchen and told her another woman was going past with an Eastern bonnet on, and she rushed out and got all the music, and bowed and thanked them and threw kisses at the Chairman, and then the crowd went back and nominated another man. This mistake made old Cy feel pretty blue for a long time, and finally he pined away and died thinking about it. But I tell you he was a cool one while he lived."—Dakota Bell.

HARPER'S MAGAZINE.—The November number is a brilliant conclusion of the 75th volume of this popular magazine. It opens with a charming frontispiece, entitled "A Fairy Tale." Both of the serials—"Narka," by Kathleen O'Meara, and "April Hopes," by W. D. Howells—come to a close, with the artistic triumph of Narka and the wedding of the Boston lovers. The last of Mrs. Davis graphic sketches of Southern life and scenery finds a charming subject in the Bayou region, where Joe Jefferson lives. By thus ending the continued series of novels and articles, the magazine prepares for a magnificent holiday number for December, in which every article and story will be complete

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

DAN DARCY AT MUSIC HALL.

This evening, at Music hall, two new candidates for public favor will appear, namely, the Irish-American drama "Dan Darcy," and its author, Mr. James C. Roach, in the title role. The prospective star is under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, who brought out Margaret Mather, Denman Thompson, and many other public favorites, and who has not yet presented to a Portsmouth audience any play that was not a genuine entertainment. Mr. Hill, while enthusiastic in private conversation over Mr. Roach's merits, merely asks for him from the public a careful and close hearing, in what he (Mr. Hill) declares to be "the best Irish-American play now before the public, replete with gems of wit and humor, while the interest of the story is well sustained to the finish."

The Spy, of Worcester, Mass., one of the most careful and conservative papers in the country, in the course of a long commendatory notice of the play gives the following synopsis of the plot:

"Dan Darcy" is purely an Irish-American drama. Its scenes are near Trenton, N. J., and in New York city. Dan Darcy is a well-to-do farmer, with a weakness for politics and a rich, melodious voice, which has made him a popular stump speaker. He has picked up a street waif in New York city, Ally, whom he has reared with care, whom he loves as a daughter and who loves him as a father. But at the age of eighteen she secretly marries the son of a rich neighbor. This makes a great deal of trouble with her husband's mother, and results in the young wife running away from home and falling into the hands of adventurers in New York city. She is followed by Dan Darcy who, with the assistance of a tramp and a bootblack he befriended on the New Jersey farm, recovers the girl, but she loses her reason. Dan Darcy gives out that she is dead. Her husband is about to marry again, but Dan stops the ceremony, and finally husband, wife and mother are reunited over the cradle of the child, the wife having regained her reason. The tramp and bootblack who were befriended by Dan reform, the tramp marries one of the inmates of the den where the girl is found, and both are reformed by Dan's influence. A crusty old Irishman, Tony Dooley, infirm in body but with a very able-bodied tongue, has his home with Dan, and tries to make others as discontented as himself by his crabbed sayings, but his presence is one of the brightest thoughts of the author, for it gives ample opportunity for an abundance of repartee, and the way that opportunity is improved is refreshing.

This play was presented in Dover on Monday evening, Oct. 24th, and the Democrat next day said: "Dan was a perfect Irish gentleman, and the witty sayings and good puns brought down the house many times. This is the first play it has ever been our lot to see wherein the part of an Irishman was not burlesqued, and we honor Mr. Roach, as an author, for it. The play has many merits which we could speak at length upon, but the parts taken by J. C. Roach and Miss Carrie Jackson surpassed anything in their lines ever seen here. The scenery was fine and well set. There was not a stick in the company."

Lizzie May Ulmer and Blanche Morton, well known and favorite actresses, are in the company.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

On Wednesday forenoon, Oct. 26th, case George M. Huntress, administrator, vs. Boston & Maine railroad, was called for trial and a jury empanelled, and after the taking of some evidence the hearing was adjourned to Thursday at nine o'clock A. M., and the jury went to view the premises at Young's crossing, where Huntress' wife and mother were killed by the defendant's train last spring. The suit is to recover damages for the killing of the two women.

All cases to be heard by the court at this term will be in order for hearing on Friday morning.

MATRIMONIAL.

The ultra-fashionable matrimonial event in Boston this week was the marriage of Fred Brewer Bemis and Miss Marion Wells Cummings, daughter of John W. Cummings, which took place in the First church on the evening of Monday, the 24th, Rev. Edward Everett Hale performing the ceremony. The pulpit was elaborately decorated with white chrysanthemums, asters and tropical trees, while dividing the pews set apart for the relatives from those occupied by the friends were huge bunches of the same flowers tied with satin. At 7:30 o'clock the eight ushers, including W. L. Benedict, N. P. Kennard and Geo. W. Benedict, formed in line and marched up the centre aisle. Each wore a tiny gold horseshoe, studied with diamonds, on the lappel of his coat, the gift of the groom. They were followed by Miss Gertrude Bemis, sister of the groom, who wore a toilette of canary tulle over silk slip to match, and a demi-train of moire. Her corsage was cut low, and she wore tan gloves, reaching to the shoulders. She carried yellow chrysanthemums, and, as maid of honor, preceded the bride. The latter was in a gown of white satin, round train, with front of Bretonelace and a side panier of satin. Her corsage was cut V-shape back and front, and half sleeves were worn. She carried a bouquet of nephitis buds and maidenhair ferns. Her hair was arranged high, and the long tulle veil was fastened a la Pompadour. The only jewel worn was a diamond cross. At the altar in waiting were the clergyman, the groom and his attendant, his brother, Harry H. Bemis, and here the Unitarian nuptial ceremony was read by the officiating minister. At the close of the service a large reception was held at the residence of the bride's parents, 232 Marlboro street, where the decorations were extensive. Mrs. Cummings was attired in robin's egg gros grain trimmed with white satin and moire stripes.

Dr. Elliott Coues, the well-known ornithologist of Washington, was married to Mrs. Mary Emily Bates of Philadelphia at the Hotel Vendome, Boston, Oct. 25th. The wedding was in the parlors, in the presence of a number of relatives and friends, including Medical Director Samuel F. Coues, U. S. N., and wife, Miss Olga Bates, Mrs. Bates, Mrs. M. E. Bennett, Mrs. Charles Wentworth of Cambridge, and others. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. E. E. Hale. The bride was attired in a pleasing costume of rich pearl gray silk, and wore diamonds in her hair and at her throat. Mr. Estes, of the firm of Estes & Lauriat, acted as best man, Mr. Eliot Lord and Mr. William A. Hayes, 2d, serving as ushers. The bride was given away by her cousin, Mr. Charles Henroten of Chicago. Following the ceremony there was a breakfast and reception. After a short stay in this city, Dr. Coues and wife will go to Washington to reside.

Manning Hodgdon of this city will represent the Hartford (Conn.) Theological Seminary at the annual meeting of the Inter-Seminary Alliance, at Alexandria, Va., from Oct. 27th to the 30th, inclusive.

The electric-light poles at the lower end of Pleasant street, where the roadway is so narrow that the poles have been a very perceptible obstruction, were removed to other localities on Wednesday.

Messrs. Beacham & Son have purchased the livery stock heretofore owned by Nathan Jones, and will add it to their present stock.—Times.

President Cleveland has designated Thursday, Nov. 24th, as a day of national thanksgiving.

Several residents in this city were on Tuesday, the 25th inst., called before the board of enquiry at the navy yard to testify as to what they knew or didn't know concerning the escape from custody of Paymaster's Clerk Richard H. Paine. Their testimony may possibly have tended to prove him guilty of stealing a large sum from Paymaster Putnam—which he acknowledged himself — but probably threw no light on the method of his escape or his subsequent whereabouts.

The sale of fancy articles by the Unity club will be held in the Unitarian chapel on Court street this afternoon; admission fifteen cents, children ten cents; all invited. Supper at six o'clock. Music and other attractions.

Wednesday morning, Oct. 26th, was quite autumnal in temperature, the mercury being down to twenty-eight degrees above zero at sunrise, and ice freely formed in shallow waters.

Mr. Washington Stott, who has been under the weather with rheumatism, contracted as is supposed by attending upon his father while ill with the same complaint, is convalescing.

The sloop Screamer, from Rockport, Mass., with granite to Philbrick, arrived at this port on Tuesday, the 25th inst., and sailed on the 26th.

The fishing schooner Susie Hooper, of Gloucester, Mass., went ashore on Boon island in the gale on the 24th inst., and came off leaking badly. She was towed to Portland for repairs.

The fishing schooner Richard Lester, of Gloucester, went ashore on the west side of Block island on the night of Sunday, Oct. 23d. The schooner Albert Woodbury, of this port, and the George Willard, of Portland, lost anchors off Block island the same night, but arrived at Newport, R. I., next day, all right.

Portsmouth people, when in Boston, will find the famous old Revere House, now remodelled and refurnished, a comfortable and home-like hotel, where they can enjoy first-class fare and pleasant rooms at moderate prices. The Revere is near all the northern and eastern depots, and guests like its rooms, its table, its many conveniences, and its independence. It has always been a favorite with travellers; is celebrated everywhere for its cuisine, and becomes more popular every day.

A MAN

WHO IS UNACQUAINTED WITH THE GEOGRAPHY OF THIS COUNTRY WILL SEE BY EXAMINING THIS MAP THAT THE

CHICAGO, ROCK ISLAND & PACIFIC RAILWAY

is the great Central position, close relation to principal lines East of Chicago, and continuous lines of terminal points West, Northwest and Southwest, is the only true middle link in the transcontinental system which instructs and facilitates travel and traffic in either direction between the Atlantic and Pacific.

The Rock Island main line and branches include Chicago, Joliet, Ottawa, La Salle, Peoria, Geneva, Moline and Rock Island, in Illinois; Davenport, Muscatine, Washington, Fairfield, Ottumwa, Oskaloosa, West Liberty, Iowa City, Des Moines, Indianola, Winterset, Atlantic, Avoca, Anthon, Harlan, Guthrie Centre and Council Bluffs, in Iowa; Gallatin, Trenton, St. Joseph, Cameron, Plattsburg, Kansas City, in Missouri; Leavenworth and Atchison, in Kansas; Albert Lea, Minneapolis and St. Paul, in Minnesota; Watertown, in Dakota, and hundreds of intermediate cities, towns and villages.

The Great Rock Island Route

Guarantees Speed, Comfort and Safety to those who travel over it. Its roadbed is thoroughly ballasted. Its track is of best rolled steel. Its bridges are solid structures of stone and iron. Its rolling stock is perfect as human skill can make it. Its is all the safety appliances that mechanical genius has invented and experience proved valuable. Its present condition is unexceptionable in methodical, its discipline strict and exacting. The luxury of its passenger accomodation is unequaled in the West—unsurpassed in the world.

All Express Trains between Chicago and the Missouri River consist of Comfortable Day Coaches, magnificent Pullman Palace Parlor and Sleeping Cars, elegant Dining Cars providing excellent meals, and—between Chicago, St. Joseph, Atchison and Kansas City—superb Reclining Chair Cars.

The Famous Albert Lea Route

Is the direct, favorite line between Chicago and Minneapolis and St. Paul. Quick time and fast Express Trains run daily to the summer resorts, prominent localities and hunting and fishing grounds of Iowa and Minnesota. The rich wheat field and grazing farms of Interior Dakota are reached via Watertown. A short, desirable route, via Kansas and Kankakee, connecting interchangeable to travelers between Cincinnati, Indianapolis, Lafayette and Council Bluffs, St. Joseph, Atchison, Leavenworth, Kansas City, Minneapolis, St. Paul and Chicago. Tickets reading via cause of patrons especially families, ladies and children, receive from officials and employes of Rock Island trains protection, respectful courtesy and kindly treatment.

I have been troubled with catarrh for the past ten years and have tried a number of remedies but found no relief until a purchased a bottle of Ely's Cream Balm. I consider it the most reliable preparation for catarrh and cold in the head.—Geo. E. Crandall, P. M., Quonochawntaug, R. I.

I was troubled with catarrh for seven years previous to commencing the use of Ely's Cream Balm, some five months ago. It has done for me what other so-called cures failed to do—cured me. The effect of the Balm seemed magical.—Clarence L. Huff, Biddeford, Me.

During a period of two months nearly $5000 worth of horses and carriages have been stolen within a radius of fifteen miles from the Dover city hall.

The rebuilding of the Boston & Maine freight house at Newmarket, recently burned, is being pushed at a very rapid rate.

The condemned anarchists have been informed that there is little hope of a writ of error being granted in their case by the United States supreme court. The detective force of Chicago is being increased in anticipation of the execution.

The well known strengthening properties of Iron, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

At Keene, in the supreme court, Charles E. Champney of Fitzwilliam, who murderously assaulted his wife last spring, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the house of correction for one year. The same sentence was given Charles E. Fray of Hinsdale for murderous assault on an officer.

Amount of Live Stock at Market: Cattle, 1637; Sheep and Lambs, 11,004; Calves, 762; Horses, 434; Swine, 5,520.

Prices of Market Beef—A few choice, @7 00 ₩ @7 50; extra, @6 50 @ $6 75; first quality, @6 00 @ @6 25; second quality, @5 00 @ $5 50; third quality, $4 00 @ $4 50.

Prices of Store Cattle—Working oxen, ₩ pair, $90 @ $160; farrow cows, $15 @ $30; fancy cows, $30 @ $75; milch cows and calves, $25 @ $48; yearlings, $8 50 @ $18; two years old, $14 @ $28; three years old, $24 @ $40.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs—In lots, $2 00, $3 00 @ $3 50 each; extra, $3 75 @ $4 00, or from 2 @ 4c ₩ lb; spring lambs, 4¾ @ 5½c ₩ lb.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins—Brighton hides, 7c ₩ lb; Brighton tallow, 3 @ 4c ₩ lb; country hides, 6 @ 6½c ₩ lb; country tallow, 1½ @ 2c ₩ lb; calf skins, 6 @ 7c ₩ lb; pelts, 75c @ $1 each; dairy skins, 12 @ 25c each.

The demand for cattle has not in any way improved. We find a fair supply of young country stock that was moving rather quiet. Prices generally sustained on all grades. A fair movement in western cattle.

Milch Cows and Springers—A good run, and the best selling without much difficulty. Sales mostly from $28 @ $35 ₩ head.

The Sheep Call—The feeling somewhat depressed, and values have declined ¼c ₩ lb. Canada is still heavy in arrivals, and Maine not backward in supply. Butchers held back until the decline was effected.

Fat Hogs—The best cost $4 70 in Chicago. We quote 4½ @ 5c the range on western live.

Veal Calves—No material change; supply fair and prices steady on all grades.

Live Poultry—Three tons on sale, besides a quantity of live geese at 85c each; mixed hens and chickens, 7 @ 10c; turkeys, 12½c.

Thos. D. Crump's View on Fairness.

A Journal reporter called on Mr. Thos. D. Crump and said, "I understand that you draw a prize in The Louisiana State Lottery drawing of the 9th ult.?" "I did." "What was your ticket?" "29,146." "Did it represent the whole, or a part of the prize?" "A part—one tenth." "In second capital?" "What amount?" "$65,000." "Did you receive the full amount the ticket represented?" "I received the full amount eight days after the ticket had drawn." "How did you collect the money?" "Our Jonesburg (Mo.) Bank collected it through the Lockside Bank of St. Louis, and paid it to me. I consider that the business of The Louisiana State Lottery is conducted fairly, with partiality or favor."—Jonesburg (Mo.) Journal, Sept. 8th.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $300.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease (Psoriasis) commenced on my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease over again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took .... and .... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my skin as clear and free from scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book of Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

How Salmon is Canned.

In preparing salmon for canning the fish are dressed of fins, head and entrails at the rate of 1,500 to 2,000 a day by each man. They go through three washings and cleanings, and are cut by a machine into lengths just the height of a can. These pieces are each sliced lengthwise into several pieces. The men who do the filling, press the pieces as compactly into the cans as possible; a Chinese will fill 1,000 cans in a day. The filled cans are then taken to the washing machine, where they are rapidly revolved under a spray of warm water and are rubbed with a sponge at the same time, after which they are wiped dry with pieces of netting.

In the crimper the edge of the cover is crimped and the cans then roll across a brick soldering furnace, the ends passing through a trough of melted solder. This machine and furnace will dispose of 20,000 cans a day and over. The completeness of the operation is tested by examination and immersion in hot water, and, if no further soldering is necessary, the cans are immersed again for an hour and twenty minutes in a caldron of boiling water, after which they are again tested by being tapped on the top by a small wooden mallet, imperfections being indicated by the sound. The good cans are punctured to let the hot air escape and are immediately sealed up again.

The cans are now rolled on a truck into an iron retort and cooked by steam for an hour and fifteen minutes. They are next plunged into a vat of hot lye, to remove every particle of grease, and are immersed in a tank of cold water until they are perfectly cool. The final testing is made by two men who both tap each can with a large steel nail, their trained ears detecting any wrong sound. Food canned with all this care is in no way unfit for eating.—Good Housekeeping.

Dinner in a Chinese Yaamen.

A turn in the little ornamental garden of the yaamen, all grottoes and summer house and minute landscape effects, prepared us to return to the women's quarter, and then followed the dinner, supreme effort of the yaamen's chef. It began and ended with tea, and the little plates of bois d'ceuvres, watermelon seeds, pickled almonds and mysteries remained by us to the close. A preliminary bowl of sharkfin soup, with egg curd fish, tested my courage, and then was displayed her skill, acquired by serious practice with chop sticks, as shreds of friend duck were set before me. There followed a pigeon egg stew, from the depths of which my chop sticks brought up pieces of the thin mountain mushrooms, that are really delicacies. Then we had bacon fritters, as far as a hasty analysis could determine, another kind of ragout with mushrooms, fried chicken, an almond cream custard with steamed sponge cake, a stew of Japan shell fish, fresh fish, the famous bird's nest stew, sweet olives, rice, another kind of soup, a fish combination, a deadly pastry, then innumerable sweets and fruits, and the final cup of tea.

The warm champagne was served with all the courses, and the visiting Chinese lady having set us the example we joined her in lifting glasses to our hostess, and saying "Chin ching Huang ta ta," equivalent to "Here's to you, Mrs. Huang." This reckless toasting followed each course, we only touching the edge of the wine; but the Chinese ladies took genuine swallows of it, and only betrayed an effect by a heightening of the color just below the rouge spots on their cheekbones. Towels wrung out of hot water were passed us at intervals of the feast in the place of finger bowls.—"Ruhamah's" Letter.

The bones of another mastodon have just been unearthed in Nebraska. Only fifteen years ago scientific men were suggesting that the famous elephant mound of Wisconsin was good evidence that the mastodon and the mound builders were contemporaries. It was discovered later that the animal's trunk was merely a sand hill piled up by the wind, and the mound no longer figures in books as having anything to do with elephants. It has been left to American archæology, however, to prove that man is at least as old as the mastodon, for in this country alone have the remains of mastodons been found that are incontestably more recent than those of man. One mastodon unearthed in Missouri was undoubtedly killed by primitive hunters, and some of the weapons used were found among the bones of the victim.—New York Sun.

Speed of Expert Stenographers.

I have paid some attention to the speed of expert stenographers, and think that for a short time a man may keep up with a speaker at the rate of 250 words a minute. To do this, however, he must drop his articles, prepositions and conjunctions, which I have found by actual count will average fifty-two words in 200. The physical strain will not allow the speed to be kept up, for the pressure on the nerves situated at the end of the thumb, which is brought into play freely by shading characters, will leave it benumbed and prevent you from doing legible work until the feeling is fully restored.—Globe-Democrat.

Consumption Spread by Flies.

Flies observed in the wards of consumptive hospitals around the sputa of the patients have been caught and placed in a bell jar. On the following day several were dead. Examination of the inside of the jar showed the presence of many tubercle bacilli, which is believed to be the cause of consumption. The observers point out the wide dissemination of the disease which may take place in this way and recommend as a preventive the employment of spittoon covers with a small opening. A much more effective safeguard would be the prompt disinfection or destruction of the sputa.—Chicago News.

The new combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna, as used in Carter's Backache Plasters, has proved to be one of the best that could be made. Try one of those popular plasters in any case of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia, soreness of the chest or lungs, and you will be surprised and pleased by the prompt relief. In bad cases of chronic dyspepsia, a plaster over the pit of the stomach stops the pain at once. Ask for Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents.

There were ten new cases of yellow fever, and four deaths, at Tampa, Fla., Oct. 26th. Weather warm and unfavorable.

Must not be confounded with cathartic or purgative pills. Carter's Little Liver Pills are entirely unlike them in every respect. One trial will prove their superiority.

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

Simon Swartzman, a Hebrew shoe maker of New York city, has been sent to state prison for sixteen years for setting fire to his shop, which was on the lower floor of a five-story tenement house.

It is an established fact that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will speedily cure a cough or cold. Consumption often yields to its great power.

The republicans of New York county nominated Delancey Nicoll for district attorney, and Randolph B. Martine for judge of the court of general sessions. Both are democrats.

MAKE NO MISTAKE.—If you have made up your mind to buy Hood's Sarsaparilla do not be induced to take any other. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a peculiar medicine, possessing, by virtue of its peculiar combination, proportion and preparation, curative power superior to any other article of the kind before the people. For all affections arising from impure blood or low state of the system it is unequalled. Be sure to get Hood's.

The Legislature.

A bill was passed by the legislature on the afternoon of Oct. 25th, regulating the heating of passenger cars; it provides that no passenger, mail or baggage car on any railroad in this state shall be heated by any method of heating, or by any furnace or heater, unless such method or the use of such furnace or heater shall first have been approved in writing by the board of railroad commissioners; provided, however, that in no event shall a common stove be allowed in any such car, and provided also, that any railroad corporation may, with permission of said board, make such experiments in heating their passenger cars as said board may deem proper; provided, also, that the provisions of the act shall not apply to mixed trains, or trains which consist of freight and passenger cars. Any railroad corporation violating any of the provisions of the act shall forfeit a sum not exceeding $5,000. The bill goes into effect January 1st, 1888.

In the house, on the afternoon of the 25th, the bill ratifying and confirming the lease of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad to the Boston & Maine for fifty years was passed under a suspension of the rules, without amendment and without opposition.

Mr. Quimby of Gilford then introduced under a suspension of the rules a bill containing the provisions regulating fares and freights as contained in the Hazen bill, and the same was passed without debate under a suspension of the rules.

The Machine Victorious.

The city election in Baltimore resulted in an easy victory for the Cleveland-Gorman-Higgins machine, Latrobe, the ring candidate for mayor, having about 4000 majority over Bartlett, republican and independent democratic candidate. The special correspondent of the Boston Post says "everywhere the indications were apparent that the heelers of the gang had received their instructions, and were ready to carry them out. There were no open outbreaks, but the negroes were jostled and crowded to such an extent that many of them refused to risk personal violence and declined to vote at all. The poll lists had been prepared with great care by Gorman's men, and when Bartlett's supporters offered their ballots they found that initials were changed, or that they were disfranchised because their names had been misspelled. The entire election machinery has been in the hands of the ring, and as every registry list is copied by the henchmen of Higgins, Rasin, et al., it was an easy matter to make mistakes which deprived independents and republicans of their votes. The apparent result is that Latrobe, the regular democratic nominee for mayor, is elected by a majority of between 3500 and 4000."

"One of 'Em."

A report from Detroit, Mich., says: "It is ascertained that the author of the book, 'See-Saw, by one of 'Em,' a story of department life in Washington, is a Miss Cleveland, a second cousin of the president, who has a government position in Washington. The characters of the book are but thinly-disguised Michiganders, under assumed names. The villain of the book is said to be no less a personage than Governor Swineoford of Alaska, who (in the book) is represented as having jilted the lady to whom he was engaged, and married another. Ella Tripp of the story is Mrs. Electra Smith, postmistress at Sterling, Ill. The president is also introduced into the book, and the heroine is represented as stumping for him during the last campaign, as Miss Cleveland really did. The heroine has all the known virtues, and is, in fact, the authoress herself. Miss Cleveland is well known in Michigan. She has a remarkable gift of being able to raise large sums of money for charitable purposes, and has done such work on a salary."

During a squall in Norfolk harbor recently, the schooner Henry L. James, Capt. Woodruff, collided with the United States frigate Franklin and ran her bowsprit through the cabin of the frigate, carrying away about six feet of joiner work, and damaging the furniture in the cabin to a considerable extent. The schooner lost her bowsprit.—Washington Star.

Meagre as are the details of this engagement, it is still apparent that the schooner easily defeated the naval vessel. For a schooner to push her bowsprit through the cabin of a United States frigate, damage the furniture and escape comparatively unharmed is a feat worthy of remark. In case of war it is to be hoped the schooner Henry L. James will volunteer to protect the country against the enemy.

The victory of the Dolphin in its make-believe fight with torpedo boats will further elate the scoffers at the torpedo, though it may not discourage its friends. As was said here after the recent naval battle of the Atlanta, there is good reason for believing that the aggressive power of the torpedo has been overestimated. But such contests as these at Newport prove little either way. It does not at all follow that because the Atlanta with two lights, nor even because the Dolphin with one light, has prevented slow-going ship's launches from coming within a given distance, that they could have kept off a fleet of quickmoving torpedo boats, nor indeed that at the distance reached by the launches torpedo boats might not have inflicted damage. At least they could have discharged their missiles against the netting, even though these might not have reached the hull. Why then not the Atlanta, the Dolphin and the other vessels of the navy be supplied with wire netting and steel spars, instead of being forced to rig up clumsy make-believe guards of nawsers and gaffs? If there is any lesson to be found in the Newport merrymaking it would be found in this question.—Providence Journal.

The Dartmouth college foot ball eleven were defeated in Boston on Oct. 26th by the Institute of Technology team, twenty-four to thirteen. The game was characterized by brisk, steady playing throughout. Referee, Kelly of Harvard.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had more than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

Huntress vs. Boston & Maine railroad was continued on Thursday. The plaintiff put in as evidence the shattered wreck of the carriage in which the two women were riding when they were killed by the train. The testimony for the piff. was all in at about eleven o'clock, and that for the defence about three; the arguments of counsel were not long, and the case was given to the jury about five.

After being out several hours the jury returned a verdict of $2000 for plaintiff.

GOOD WORDS FOR TWO PORTSMOUTH MEN.

The Sunday News of Ashland, Wisconsin, of date Oct. 23d, had a two-column article on "Ashland railway men—who they are and where they came from," from which we take the following in regard to two former Portsmouth men:

The Northern's station agent is J. P. Bartlett, who came here two years ago from Portsmouth, N. H. He was on the Erie road a long time, is highly educated, good-natured, and the right kind of a man for the place. He was but recently married to a very estimable lady.

Fred L. Ham came here from "way down east" with Agent Bartlett. He is ticket agent for both the Lake Shore and Northern Pacific roads, and has his hands full. He is an experienced man, knows lots of people, and no one knows ill of him. There is one funny thing about him. He can't be "jewed" down on the price of a ticket, and he will tell the man who is sure he is going to get left "that clock is correct," in the sweetest kind of voice.

"DAN DARCY."

In Music hall, on Thursday evening, the new Irish-American drama "Dan Darcy" was presented under the management of Mr. J. M. Hill, with the author, Mr. James Connor Roach, in the title role. The character of Dan Darcy is thoroughly pleasing; he has all the good qualities of the Irish nature—is generous and big-hearted, witty, keenly appreciative of humor, and impulsive; but he never descends to the clownish buffoonery which marks most of the so-called "Irish" impersonation. Miss Carrie Jackson, as Dan's ward, Ally, is admirable; and Mr. Herbert, as the cross-grained and vinegarish old Irishman, Tony Dooley, who has no real place in the story, but fills quite a big place for all that, would be greatly missed if left out. Lizzie May Ulmer and Blanche Moulton fill their roles effectively; in fact, there is no dead wood in the company, and it would not do to have any, for the piece depends almost wholly on the individuality of the performers, and very little on its action; one or two "sticks" would spoil it. The orchestra carried by the company is an excellent one. There was a good audience, and one quick to recognize the wit of the dialogue and the aptness of the repartee; and we do not doubt that Mr. Hill in Dan Darcy has added another to the long list of successful attractions he has placed before the theatre-going public.

A NEW SKETCH OF A NOTED NATIVE.

We have recently read a book loaned to us by a celebrated author whose name we have not for publication but as a guarantee of good faith. It is a collection of sketches of famous American authors, written by Mrs. Bolton and published in New York. One of the sketches describes Colonel Thomas Bailey Aldrich, as Mr. Eugene Field has it. Col. Aldrich was born in this city a few years ago, and lives in Boston, where he edits the Atlantic Monthly Magazine. Col. Aldrich derives his title from his service in the battle of Brimstone Hill, a stirring event which succeeded a long hostile compaign between the North Enders and South Enders, in the times when iced snowballs tried boys' heads when they were so unfortunate to be struck by those savage missiles. Col. Aldrich's experience as a fighting man would have been of inestimable value if the Atlantic Monthly had been placed on a war footing after the manner of the Century Magazine, a periodical in which has been published an occasional war sketch, with engravings of scenes in battle taken on the spot by the Century's own artists. Col. Aldrich, however, has determined to stick to his text, and despite the military knowledge of its editor there are no illustrations more bellicose permitted between the covers of the Atlantic than a side view of the Daisy bustle, or similar peaceful pictures!

DR. GRANT'S CAREER.

Dr. Andrew Jackson Grant, the bigamist and confidence man, who with his "sister" ran matrimonial schemes at Old Orchard beach, Dover, Rye beach, the White mountains and elsewhere, a year or two ago, and who died in Cambridge, Mass., jail recently, where he was awaiting trial on the charge of fraudulently marrying and robbing Miss Lucy Torrey, was none other than the Dr. Conti who was conspicuous in the Fenian raid on Canada twenty years ago, and afterward kept a drug store in Cambridge. Dr. Conti, who among his other assertions, claimed to be an illegitimate son of King Victor Emmanuel of Italy, and a political exile, first came to America with Dr. McSheehy of East Boston, who casually met him in Europe in 1859. Mrs. A. K. Gove, a sister of Dr. McSheehy, says that the two separated in New York. There Conti married a German girl, whom he afterward deserted on enlisting in a New York regiment for the war. In 1869 Dr. Grant married Mrs. Gove's sister, Mrs. Jane Delancy, and after stealing $20,000 of her money deserted her. He was next heard of in Poughkeepsie, N. Y., where he was arrested for bigamy and sentenced to Sing Sing. He was pardoned, and went to Europe. Two years ago he visited Mrs. Gove's sister in Chicago, and tried to persuade her to let their daughter accompany him, promising to send her to a boarding school. Mrs. Gove will try to obtain possession of the property that he left, for the benefit of the daughter.

PERSONAL.

Manager Wm. K. Hill of the Rockingham house, and wife, arrived home on Thursday from a trip to New York.

Mr. John F. McCarthy, accompanied by his sister, Miss Mary McCarthy, started on Thursday for Chicago, on a visit of several weeks.

Mr. Charles Moat of Amsterdam, N. Y., father of William J. Moat of this city, is on a short visit to his son.

Mr. J. Albert Walker and family of this city are to spend the winter at the Vendome, Boston. They are to leave home Sunday morning in their private carriage, if the weather is fair.

MARITIME NOTES.

The schooner Ann, Wooster master, arrived Oct. 27th from Weehawken with a cargo of coal to O. F. Philbrick & Co.

The schooner Daniel Marcy, of Boston, formerly of this port, was towed into Boston on the night of Oct. 25th by the steam collier Centipede, in a disabled condition. On the evening of the 24th, when lying to in a heavy gale twenty miles off Chatham, the schooner's foremast head and spring stay were carried away, causing the mainmast to go by the board. The schooner made Highland light under foresail and jib, and laid at anchor there until taken in tow by the Centipede. The Daniel Marcy had about 7000 lbs. of fish on board.

The Royal Clyde Yacht club at Glasgow, Scotand, on Oct. 26th resolved to challenge for the America's cup in the name of Charles Sweet. The new champion will be a cutter.

The Canadian cruiser Acadia has gone out of commission at Halifax, and her crew have been paid off and discharged. A small steam launch, called the Dream, is the only fishery cruiser now on active service.

Mrs. Wm. A. Plaisted has moved into the house on State street recently purchased by her from the Capt. Bush estate.

It was reported on Thursday that the Dow farm at Rye had been sold to Mr. James Parsons of Philadelphia, the price mentioned being $20,000. The farm has an ocean frontage of a mile and a quarter, and a very diversified surface; and the intention of the purchaser is stated to be to erect upon it a large dwelling of stone, and occupy it as a summer residence. Mr. Charles Wendell, who has occupied the Dow farm for some time, it is said has bought the Eben Seavey place, on Seavey's creek, Rye.

Richard Mayo, the man who was recently pronounced crazy by a medical board of examiners, and sent to an insane asylum, was supposed to be a poor and dependent man. His house was searched on the 26th inst. by the officers, and in it was found a bank book issued from a bank in Newburyport, with $400 entered to his credit, and also five $10 bills.

Messrs. V. K. & A. H. Jones of Lynn, one of the largest shoe manufacturing companies in New England, have closed a contract with Hampton parties for a shoe factory in that town, 180 by forty feet on the ground, and four stories high. The firm will employ from 300 to 400 hands there, in the manufacture of ladies' and children's boots and shoes. The factory will be fitted with all modern improvements, and will be ready for occupancy in December. The firm is a heavy one, having a very large factory in Lynn, and quite large ones in Barnstead and Strafford, this state.

On Thursday forenoon Mr. Charles E. Walker was driving down Islington street, having before him in the wagon a large mirror. The horse took fright from a flash of light reflected from the glass, and ran away, throwing Mr. Walker and the glass out of the wagon, injuring Mr. Walker considerably and somewhat damaging the vehicle.

The dwelling and outbuildings belonging to Caleb Cole, of Limington, were burned Oct. 22d, with nearly all their contents. Mr. Cole was away and no men were upon the premises at the time of the fire, which originated from cinders from a chimney which was burning out. A high wind prevailed at the time, and the buildings were quickly consumed. Insured.

The dwelling of Atwood Allen at Springvale, Sanford, was destroyed by fire on the night of Oct. 23d; contents saved. The cause of the fire is unknown; loss $800; insured $600.

The following change in the star route postal service is announced: "Route 475, York Beach to York. From November 1, 1887, order increase of service six times a week from October 1st to June 30th, in each year."

Have you seen the Ladies' and Misses' Cloaks just received by Lewis E. Staples? They are beauties, and low priced.

Spurgeon, the famous preacher of London, has withdrawn from the Baptist Union. In announcing his decision to withdraw and replying to his critics, he says: "To pursue union at the expense of the truth is treason to Jesus. To tamper with his doctrine is to become traitors to him. We have before us the wretched spectacle of professedly orthodox Christians publicly avowing union with those who deny the faith, call the fall of man a fable, and deny the personality of the Holy Ghost."

At Goodloe, Floyd county, Ky., Ben Howard shot his wife dead because she refused to live with him. A vigilance committee attended to his case.

Attorney General Blair of the New Brunswick cabinet favors commercial union between that province and the New England states.

The editor of the Wexford (Ireland) People has been sentenced to two months' imprisonment at hard labor, for publishing "proclaimed" news.

(ELSEWHERE AT THEIR CALL.)

WHEN "OLE MARSTER" DIES.

"Young Marster" in Possession of His Inheritance.

Then some day "ole marster" dies, and the negroes, one by one, young and old, file into the darkened parlor to take a last look at his quiet face. He had his furious temper, "ole marster" had, and his sins—which God forgive! Today he will be buried, and to-morrow "young marster" will inherit his saddle horse and ride out into the fields.

Thus he has come into possession of his negroes. Among them are a few whose working days are over. These are to be kindly cared for, decently buried. Next are the active laborers, and, last, the generation of children. He knows them all by name, capacity, and disposition; is bound to them by lifelong associations; hears their communications and complaints. When he goes to town, he is charged with commissions, makes purchases with their own money. Continuing the course of his father, he sets about doing for them what is best under the circumstances—making them capable, contented workmen. There shall be special training for special aptitude. One shall be made a blacksmith, a second a carpenter, a third a cobbler of shoes. In all the general industries of the farm, education shall not be lacking. It is claimed that a Kentucky negro invented the hemp brake. As a result of this effective management, the southern planter, looking northward, will pay him a handsome premium for the blue grass slave. He will have no white overseer. He does not like the type of man. Besides, one is not needed. Uncle Tom served his father in this capacity; let him be.

Suppose, now, that among his negroes he finds a bad one. What shall he do with him? Keep him? Keeping him makes him worse, and moreover he corrupts the others. Set him free? That is to put a reward upon evil. Sell him to his neighbors? They don't want him. If they did, he wouldn't sell him to them. He sells him into the south. This is a statement, not an apology. Here, for a moment, one touches the terrible subject of the internal slave trade. Negroes were sold from Kentucky into the southern market because, as has just been said, they were bad, or by reason of the law of partible inheritance, or, as was the case with Mrs. Stowe's Uncle Tom, under constraint of debt. Of course, in many cases, they were sold wantonly and cruelly; but these, however many, were not enough to make the internal slave trade more than an incidental and subordinate feature of the system. The belief that negroes in Kentucky were regularly bred and reared for the southern market is a mistaken one.—James Lane Allen in The Century.

JOHN ANDERSON, MY JO.

John Anderson, my jo John,
When first I was your wife,
On every washing day, John,
I wearied of my life.
It made you cross to see, John,
Your shirts not white as snow,
I washed them with our home-made soap,
John Anderson, my jo.

Ah! many a quarrel then, John,
Had you and I thegither,
But now all that is changed, John,
We'll never have anither;
For washed with IVORY SOAP, John,
Your shirts ARE white as snow,
And now I smile on washing day,
John Anderson, my jo.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

SCRATCHED 28 YEARS.

A Scaly, Itching, Skin Disease with Endless Suffering Cured by Cuticura Remedies.

If I had known of the CUTICURA REMEDIES twenty-eight years ago it would have saved me $200.00 (two hundred dollars) and an immense amount of suffering. My disease began in the second year of my head in a spot not larger than a cent. It spread rapidly all over my body and got under my nails. The scales would drop off of me all the time, and my suffering was endless, and without relief. One thousand dollars would not tempt me to have this disease again. I am a poor man, but feel rich to be relieved of what some of the doctors said was leprosy, some ringworm, psoriasis, etc. I took ..... and ..... Sarsaparillas over one year and a half, but no cure. I cannot praise the CUTICURA REMEDIES too much. They have made my life a happy one. I had no scales as a baby's. All I used of them was three boxes of CUTICURA, and three bottles of CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and two cakes of CUTICURA SOAP. If you had been here and said you would have cured me for $200.00 you would have had the money. I looked like the picture in your book, Psoriasis (picture number two, "How to Cure Skin Diseases"), but now I am as clear as any person ever was. Through force of habit I rub my hands over my arms and legs to scratch once in a while, but to no purpose. I am all well. I scratched twenty-eight years, and it got to be a kind of second nature to me. I thank you a thousand times. Any more that you want to know write me, or any one who reads this may write to me and I will answer it.

Catarrhal Dangers.

To be freed from the dangers of suffocation while lying down; to breathe freely, sleep soundly and undisturbed; to rise refreshed; head clear; brain active and free from pain or ache; to know that no poisonous, putrid matter defiles the breath and rots away the delicate machinery of smell, taste and hearing; to feel that the system does not, through its veins and arteries, suck up the poison that is sure to undermine and destroy life, indeed a blessing beyond all other human enjoyments. To purchase immunity from such a fate should be the object of all sufferers. But those who have tried many remedies and physicians despair of relief or cure

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE meets every phase of Catarrh, from a simple head cold to the most loathsome and destructive stages. It is local and constitutional. Instant in relieving, permanent in curing, safe, economical and never failing.

SANFORD'S RADICAL CURE consists of one bottle of the RADICAL CURE, one box of CATARRHAL SOLVENT, and one IMPROVED INHALER, all wrapped in one package, with treatise and directions, and sold by all druggists for $1.00.

TREASURES FROM THE BAHAMAS.

The little party of biologists sent out by the University of Pennsylvania in June to make investigations and researches have returned with abundance of glory and several boxes, tubs and tanks full of curious specimens. The primary purpose of the jaunt was to give the party an opportunity to determine upon the Bahamas as the site of a biological marine station that the university desires to establish, and hopes to have in existence within three years. It already has a considerable fund for that purpose.

The residence of the party during their stay was at a comfortable house three miles from Nassau, almost upon the water's edge. They lived in community, each member taking charge of the men in turn. The cost was extremely modest. The men went to work at once, taking advantage of such assistance as the people roundabout could afford. A young boatman and diver named Brown was found to be of great use, having already served three distinguished naturalists.

All the party were good swimmers, and soon learned to do their own diving. Each provided himself with a crowbar and a water box, a small box with a plate glass bottom. The glass, quieting the ripples on the surface of the sea, enabled them to see far down into the depths, many times to the very bottom. When any one saw a bit of rock bearing corals, anemones, sponges, or other objects that he wished to secure he tossed the glass aside, dived down and pried the desired specimen loose with the crowbar and carried it up under his arm. Practice enables them all to stay a long time under water. Mr. Marshall frequently remained two minutes submerged. Dr. Dolley says that any man can remain under water a considerable time if he will simply make up his mind to do so. There is an intense feeling of oppression at first, but Dr. Dolley says it is simply nervousness, and soon passes away.

The men could work in pairs, and though the salt water dimmed the sight, they managed to see sufficiently well under water. They had no water spectacles with them. The water round the coral reefs is full of tiny animalculæ, which sting the skin, and the naturalists were obliged to cover their bodies as thoroughly as possible. As it was, their hands, which they kept bare, were stung into a condition of intense redness. The party made such investigations as they could find time for into the habits of the sponge, and besides made a four days' cruise in a schooner.

Altogether specimens were obtained of every variety of coral known to exist in the region, a number of new anemones and sponges were discovered, and the collection of crustaceans and echinoderms is complete. The moths and butterflies are well represented, as are the reptiles, lizards, snakes and turtles. Besides the animals secured, a fine collection of native woods, some seventy varieties, was added, and a large number of tropical plants were potted and brought alive for the new conservatory of the biological department. Among them are specimens of nearly all the orchids found on the islands.

Several medicinal plants were secured, and experiments will be made as to their therapeutic value. Among them is a curious bean that animals are very fond of eating. At first the animals grow beautifully fat and sleek. But in about two weeks their tails and manes drop off, in another week their hoofs and horns, if they have horns, go. Then they grow weaker and weaker, and finally die of fatty degeneration. But even to the end they eat the beans with infinite relish. There are other plants in the collection that are used by the natives in the treatment of rheumatism and dysentery with apparent success. The doctors are "bush men," who have learned the medicinal quality of herbs and roots and trees by tradition. Governor Blake, for the party, sailed to the Island of Alaco one day and settled the question as to whether flamingoes sit in or stand over their nests, a question about which naturalists have been in dispute these many years. Dr. Dolley says Governor Blake reported that flamingoes sit in their nests like other birds. The party went swimming at night in a wonderful phosphorescent lake. At every stroke the swimmers created waves of fire, and when they climbed out upon their boat their bodies seemed to be covered with myriads of flaming sparks. The "sparks," of course, were myriads of copepods, the little glowing creatures who give the appearance of fire to the surface of the lake.

Some skulls of the Luycayans, the original inhabitants of the island, who were exterminated within thirty years after their discovery by Columbus, were found in a cave. One of them will be presented to the Academy of Natural Sciences here. Most of the biological specimens will be placed in the museum of the department at the university.—Philadelphia Times.

Values and Taxes in the South.

The assessed valuation of twelve southern states is now $3,604,800,413, as against $2,164,792,795 in 1879–80, an increase in seven years of $900,000,000. The rate of taxation is now 4 8-50 on the average, as against 5 3-5 seven years ago. Taxation is highest in Texas, Alabama, Louisiana, Kentucky and South Carolina—from 5 1-4 to 7 1-2—and lowest in Mississippi, Georgia and North Carolina—from 2 1-3 to 3 3-4. In other states the tax is about 4. The assessed valuation of Texas is now $621,000,000, and Texas not only leads the twelve states in wealth, but shows the greatest increase during the last seven years, for in 1879 her assessed valuation was $304,000,000. The next largest valuation is that of Kentucky, $483,000,000, and the third is Virginia, with a total of $341,000,000.—Rochester Post-Express.

SAVED HIS LEG!

SCROFULA

BONE CURED!

LITHONIA, GA., August 11, 1887.

THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., Atlanta, Ga.:

Gentlemen—I have been afflicted with ulceration of the legs ever since I was a child, the disease undoubtedly being hereditary, as my mother suffered from scrofulous symptoms. As I advanced to manhood my affliction increased until the malady became harrassing and painful beyond the power of words to describe. My right leg particularly became fearfully involved, the left leg being less painfully affected. Finally, about fourteen years ago, the ulcers on my right leg had eaten through the flesh into the bone. In order to save my life the doctors determined to amputate my leg below the knee. The operation was successfully performed by Drs. T. N. Miller, of Atlanta, and Dr. W. F. Bond, of Lithonia. But the loss of my leg gave me only temporary relief. The poison was still in my system and soon began to show itself again. In a short time after large ulcers appeared on my left leg, covering it from the knee to the instep. Frequently while at work I could be tracked by the blood which oozed from the huge ulcers, and the sores and rottening holes were so offensive that my fellow-workmen could not stand the stench and would move away from me.

Last winter I was persuaded to try S. S. S. As a last effort I consented to do so, and about seven months ago I began taking the specific. I soon began to feel the good effects of the medicine, the offensive running began to grow less and less and finally ceased, the ulcers healed, my flesh became firm and solid, and to day, after using twenty one bottles, I am as hale and sound a man of my age as there is in Georgia. I am seventy one years old, but feel now younger and stronger than I did when I was twenty-five. I weigh about 190 pounds. Nothing is to be more of the terrible disease, or to remind me of the torture I suffered for so many years, except the scars of the perfectly healed ulcers.

I want the world to know of the almost miraculous cure effected on me by S. S. S., and I call upon those who wish to know the particulars directly from me to write, and I will consider it a pleasure as well as a duty to answer their letters. I refer to Dr. W. F. Bond, of Lithonia, as to the truth of my statement. Very gratefully yours,

B. DRAKE.

The Inventor of Shorthand.

There has been held in London during the week an international shorthand congress, which assembled to celebrate the jubilee of Isaac Pitman's system of phonography and the tercentenary of the stenographic method of reporting, which originated with Dr. Timothy Bright. Bright's "Characterie," published in 1587, seems to have been the earliest English manual of shorthand, and it had numerous successors, none of which ever became popular, however, till Pittman hit on the phonetic principle as the basis of stenography. It has recently been ascertained that the credit of inventing the first system of shorthand writing by sound belongs to the Rev. Phineas Bailey, a native of New Hampshire who had settled in Vermont, and published in a book setting forth his system in 1819. This was eighteen years before Mr. Pitman's "Stenographic Soundhand" saw the light, but to the latter is nevertheless accorded the credit of being the father of modern shorthand.—The Epoch.

"Gath" on Journalism and Literature.

Literature as a profession has no existence in America. I have been connected with papers for thirty years, and once thought that writing for the press and literature ran in the same direction. It is not so, and the lines, though in appearance coincidental, are yet in reality widely separated. Literature can in this country be only the profession of the man of leisure. For the hardworking and aspiring young man, whose capital is his brains, literature means hardly a competence, while the press means in comparison affluence. A good story printed in book form will not bring much, but sold to a paper will command a greater price and be wider read. When once engaged in writing for the press, even men of great talent seldom leave that occupation to write books, for the emoluments for newspaper writing will always be greater than those of literature.—San Francisco Call Interview.

Sherman's "Flying Column."

Cock fighting became one of the pastimes of the "Flying Column." Many fine birds were brought in by our foragers. Those found deficient in courage and skill quickly went to the stew pan in company with the modest barnyard fowl, but those of redoubtable valor won an honored place and name and were to be seen riding proudly on the front seat of an artillery caisson or carried tenderly under the arm of an infantry soldier.—Capt. Daniel Oakey in The Century.

The Japanese and Railroads.

An American gentleman who has recently traveled through Japan says that the Japanese will in a few years be the greatest railroad builders of the world. As yet there are only 370 miles of railroad in Japan, but many new roads are projected. The Japanese are good railroad patrons; for even when they have no business to transact they will ride back and forth on the railroad until they have spent their last cent. And the beggars in the large towns nearly always spend the money which they get on a railroad trip.—New York Tribune.

Hideous in Every Guise,

Whether it be the best known form, chills and fever, or else billious remittent, double ague or ague cake, is that abominable disorder involving the liver, the bowels and the kidneys, known as malaria. Every complaint classified under this generic, though erroneous appellation, is destructive of the nervous system, but is, unhappily, not to be subdued, or even checked, by the use of ordinary nervines, febrifuges or tonics. There is, however, prompt relief and ultimate cure to be found in Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, foremost among the proprietary medicines of America, and widely known in other lands. Not only diseases born of miasma, but rheumatic complaints, superinducted by exposure in bad weather, inherited or incurred debility of the kidneys or bladder, dyspepsia and an irregular condition of the bowels, are curable—nay, certain to be cured by this deservedly esteemed and professionally sanctioned corrective.

Within the past few days 450,000 brook trout eggs have been collected at the state hatching house at Plymouth, or about one-half of the whole yield expected. Fifty thousand Penobscot salmon eggs have also been taken from the salmon that passed through the Amoskeag fishway in Manchester. At lake Sunapee the spawning season has thus far produced 50,000 brook-trout eggs.

Deserved to Fail.

A great strike of compositors and pressmen in New York city has utterly failed, as it should. The strike was not against the oppressions of the employers, for more pay or shorter hours, but against the great body of printers throughout the country, to prevent any one not a member of the typographical union of New York from getting employment in the city. The employers flatly refused to discharge valuable men at the dictation of the union, and the strike has now been declared "off," after many of the strikers have lost their jobs through their places being filled by non-union men.

John Teemer and Jacob Gaudaur pulled a race on Lake Maranacook, Me., Oct. 28th, for a purse and the championship of America. Gaudaur at the start gained about a length, but Teemer closed up on him steadily and without apparent effort, and at half a mile from the start the boats were abreast. From there to the turn Teemer gained about thirteen lengths, and the race home was a procession, Gaudaur's time not being taken.

Amount of Live Stock at Market: Cattle, 1722; Sheep and Lambs, 8,881; Calves, 540; Horses, 351; Swine, 11,224.

Prices of Market Beef—A few choice, $7 00 @ $7 50; extra, $6 50 @ $6 75; first quality, $6 00 @ $6 25; second quality, $5 00 @ $5 50; third quality, $4 @ $4 50.

Prices of Store Cattle—Working oxen, ⅌ pair, $90 @ $160; farrow cows, $15 @ $30; fancy cows, $50 @ $75; milch cows and calves, $28 @ $45; yearlings, $8 50 @ $18; two years old, $14 @ $28; three years old, $24 @ $40.

Prices of Sheep and Lambs—In lots, $3 00, $3 00 @ $3 50 each; extra, $3 75 @ $4 00, or from 2 @ 4c ⅌ lb; spring lambs, 4¾ @ 5½c ⅌ lb.

Veal Calves, 2½ @ 6½c ⅌ lb.

Prices of Hides, Tallow and Skins—Brighton hides, 7c ⅌ lb; Brighton tallow, 3 @ 4c ⅌ lb; country hides, 6 @ 6½c ⅌ lb; country tallow, 1½ @ 2c ⅌ lb; calf skins, 6 @ 7c ⅌ lb; polls, 75c @ $1 each; dairy skins, 12 @ 15c each.

The trade in cattle for beef was a trifle quicker, with a steady range in rates. The supply and quality compare well with last week. Really fancy cattle were sold at 7 @ 7½c, with other grade from 6 @ 6½c ⅌ lb, dead weight, as to quality.

New Milch Cows and Springers—A fair trade at prices generally sustained. Sales mostly from $28 @ $50 ⅌ head.

The Sheep Call—Butchers seemed more disposed to purchase, but not to the extent of any advance in price; 5¼c was the outside price on lambs, and the bulk, even if very good, were sold at 5 @ 5½c ⅌ lb. A good lot of 370 Canada lambs, average 75 lbs, at $4 50 ⅌ cwt.

Fat Hogs—Large supplies and prices quite steady on western that cost 4¾ @ 5c if we reckon shrinkage on the way.

THE WILD RIDE.

I hear in my heart, I hear in its ominous pulses,
All day, the commotion of stormy, mane tossing horses;
All night, from their coils, the importunate tramping and neighing!

Straight, grim, and abreast, vault the weather worn, galloping legion,
With a stirrup cup each to the one gracious woman that loves him.

There are shapes by the way, there are things that appall or entice us:
What odds? We are knights; and our souls are but bent on the riding.

I hear in my heart, I hear in its ominous pulses,
All day, the commotion of stormy, mane tossing horses;
All night, from their coils, the importunate tramping and neighing!

We leap to the infinite dark, like the sparks from the anvil:
Thou leadest, O God! All's well with thy troopers that follow.

—Louise Imogen Guiney in The Century.

Japanese Wooden Shoes.

In Japan children's shoes are made of blocks of wood secured with cords. The stocking resembles a mitten, having a separate place for the great toe. As these shoes are lifted only by the toes, the heels make a rattling sound as their owners walk, which is quite stunning in a crowd. They are not worn in the house, as they would injure the soft straw mats on the floor. You leave your shoes at the door. Every house is built with reference to the number of mats required for the floors, each room having from eight to sixteen, and in taking lodgings you pay so much for a mat. They think it extravagant in us to require a whole room to ourselves.

The Japanese shoe gives perfect freedom to the foot. The beauty of the human foot is only seen in the Japanese. They have no corns, no ingrowing nails, no distorted joints. Our toes are cramped until they are deformed and are in danger of extinction. They have the full use of their toes, and to them they are almost like fingers. Nearly every mechanic makes use of his toes in holding his work. Every toe is fully developed. Their shoes cost one penny and last six months.—Merchant World.

City Man in the Country.

The average man, city born and raised, is only too apt to regard somewhat contemptuously the simple art of the countryman as he follows the plow or hews the oak into well balanced rails, lightly imagining such tasks of easy acquirement and on a level with the rural intellect, and the spectacle that he presents when he would go and do likewise is often laughable. There is nothing, in fact, so calculated to shake the confidence of the young man who goes west to embark in farming or some kindred pursuit as the finding of his unfitness for some of the simplest manual tasks. He will discover that his superior metropolitan knowledge avails him but little and is lightly held by those about him—in short, that he is as unsophisticated in his new surroundings as would be the yokel in the city. He learns that even such despised work as carrying a horse or driving a nail requires knowledge, and the chances are that if he is sensible his sense of toleration will be appreciably strengthened and his horizon widened before his palms are fairly hardened and he has grown accustomed to his new conditions. —Globe-Democrat.

Want of Sleep

Is sending thousands annually to the insane asylum; and the doctors say this trouble is alarmingly on the increase. The usual remedies, while they may give temporary relief, are likely to do more harm than good. What is needed is an Alterative and Blood-purifier. Ayer's Sarsaparilla is incomparably the best. It corrects those disturbances in the circulation which cause sleeplessness, gives increased vitality, and restores the nervous system to a healthful condition.

Rev. T. G. A. Coté, agent of the Mass. Home Missionary Society, writes that his stomach was out of order, his sleep very often disturbed, and some impurity of the blood manifest; but that a perfect cure was obtained by the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

Frederick W. Pratt, 424 Washington street, Boston, writes: "My daughter was prostrated with nervous debility. Ayer's Sarsaparilla restored her to health."

William F. Bowker, Erie, Pa., was cured of nervousness and sleeplessness by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla for about two months, during which time his weight increased over twenty pounds.

A Great Victory

A Terrible Case of Scrofula Cured by

Hood's Sarsaparilla

"In the winter of 1879 I was attacked with Scrofula in one of the most aggravating forms. At one time I had no less than thirteen large abscesses over and around my neck and throat, continually exuding an offensive mass of bloody matter disgusting to behold, and almost intolerable to endure. It is impossible to fully describe my sufferings, as the case was complicated with Chronic Catarrh. After three years of misery, having been treated by three physicians, I was worse than ever. Finally, on the recommendation of W. J. Huntley, druggist, of Lockport, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. And now, after having taken twelve bottles, within the last twelve months, the scrofulous eruptions have entirely ceased, and the abscesses have all disappeared, except the unsightly scars, which are daily becoming smaller by degrees, and beautifully less." I do not know what it may have done for others, but I do know that in my case, Hood's Sarsaparilla has proved an effective specific indeed. As an evidence of my gratitude I send these facts unsolicited, and I am ready to verify the authenticity of this cure, by personal correspondence with any one who doubts it." CHARLES A. ROBERTS, East Wilson, N. Y.

This statement is confirmed by W. J. Humfrey, druggist, of Lockport, N. Y., who calls the cure a great victory for Hood's Sarsaparilla. Send for book giving statements of many cures.

SUPREME COURT, BLODGETT J.

On Friday forenoon the case of Daniel Broughton vs. John H. Broughton, for the settlement of an account, was heard by the court; no order was made. Several divorce cases were heard. In the afternoon Nickerson vs. John Kelley, for settlement of an account, was heard, but no decision was announced. Chase vs. Locke, for an assault, parties from Seabrook, was commenced.

POLICE COURT--RATCHELDER J.

FRIDAY, Oct. 28th.

Henry Hall, James Murphy, William McKenzie and George Roberts, for drunkenness, were fined $3, costs $6.90, each. Roberts paid up, but the other three went to Brentwood.

THE MAINE MEN CHUCKLE.

The following, of some local interest, comes from Portland, Me.:

J. W. Mitchell of Belfast, special liquor constable for Waldo county, made a call on Internal Revenue Collector Page in Portsmouth last July. This was but a short time after Mr. Mitchell received his commission, and he was in quest of ammunition with which to carry on war against the rumsellers of Waldo county. But he didn't get any. Collector Page curtly informed him that, law or no law, the records of his office would not be exhibited to anybody trying to find out who paid special liquor taxes into the nation's strongbox and received Uncle Sam's licenses in return. Mr. Mitchell accordingly left the collector without having learned the mysteries of the records. Once in Maine, however, the Waldo constable adopted a new line of action and called the attention of Congressman Dingley to Collector Page's action. Mr. Dingley took hold of the matter, and a letter from the congressman found its way into the treasury department.

In the meantime, Mr. McFadden, Rev. Mr. LeLacheur of Portland and Mr. Luce of Berwick paid visits to the lordly Mr. Page. They did not get what they wanted, however, and came away, as had Mr. Mitchell before them, without a glance at the records.

Yesterday forenoon, however, Mr. Mitchell was in Portsmouth in company with Rev. W. S. McIntyre of Brunswick, and again called at the office of the collector. The collector was not visible, but his clerk made no objections to allowing the gentlemen to examine the records of the office. This they did, and Mr. Mitchell secured information which may make the rumsellers of Waldo county considerable unpleasantness.

Mr. Mitchell was in this city yesterday afternoon and told of his experiences in the office of the collector. He said that Mr. Page had evidently dismounted from his high steed, presumably as a result of instructions received from his superiors in Washington. "While we were looking at the records," said Mr. Mitchell, "Mr. Page went through the room, but he held his head high in the air and did not notice us. I found that in Belfast there are thirteen licenses held, and in Bath there are twenty. There was a goodly string in Portland and Bangor, but I did not count them." A paper which Mr. Mitchell drew from beneath his coat when he gave the number of licenses issued for Belfast and Bath, contained a list of the names of the holders of the documents.

It will be remembered that it was for refusing to show his memoranda that Deputy Collector Thomas F. Murphy spent some time in the Augusta jail. When the first attempt was made to examine the records, after the prohibitory law was amended by the last legislature, Collector Redman, of Ellsworth, was the officer to whom application was made. Permission to examine the records was not then awarded the investigators, and before further steps could be taken the internal revenue collection district of Maine was consolidated with that of New Hampshire, and Collector Page assumed control of the combined districts.

Mr. Mitchell, who has now had the satisfaction of seeing the lists, is the young man who, it will be remembered, shot a man during the Belfast fire, in an assault provoked by a remark of Mitchell's. Mr. Mitchell said that he acted in self-defense, and the grand jury found no bill.

MATRIMONIAL.

Wednesday forenoon, Oct. 26th, at 10:45 o'clock, Orvin S. Hodgdon, aged twenty-six years, of Saco, accompanied by Miss Lydia Sharkey, a buxom young lass of nineteen summers, of Biddeford, arrived at the city clerk's office in this city, and made it known that they wanted to get married. The genial city clerk was in the act of making out the license when in filed another Maine couple bent on a similar mission. They were Jeremiah Towne, of Kennebunkport, aged twenty-eight, and Mary L. Hubbard, of the same place. "Hello Jerry, is that you?" said Mr. Hodgdon. The latter recognized in the former an old schoolmate whom he had not seen for ten years. "'Tis me, but although your face is familiar, I can't recall your your name," said Mr. Towne. "Why, don't you remember your old schoolmate Hodgdon?" "Give me your old-timed grip," said Mr. Towne, and a warm greeting followed. When it became known to both that each was on a similar mission, the ladies were introduced to each other, and when the marriage licenses were made out the quartette proceeded to the residence of a gentleman authorized to perform marriages. They then adjourned to a hotel, and a happier party never sat down to dinner. They started for their respective homes on the 3:14 train.—Dover Times.

Mr. Wallace J. Lear, employed as a cutter at the Portsmouth shoe factory, and Miss Georgie A. Jose, a young lady of the fairest fame and rare personal attractions, on Thursday last entered into a permanent copartnership which we hope will long remain unbroken, and be productive of happiness alone to both parties to the contract. Years ago Mr. Lear was an employe in this office, and though then but a boy his gentlemanly conduct and faithful and efficient service are a pleasant reminiscence to the editor.

PERSONAL.

James Lawry of Kittery has been granted a pension.

Dr. H. F. Clark has moved into the Dearborn house on Middle street.

Mr. Gustave Peyser, wife and son, left town on the 26th inst. for a trip to New York.

Messrs. Charles M. Laighton and Paul Laighton arrived home on Friday from a visit of several weeks to the mountains.

Hon. James W. Locke, United States district judge for the southern district of Florida, and family, who have passed the summer at Kittery, left for Key West on Thursday last. Miss Carrie Locke, daughter of the judge, has entered a seminary at Providence, R. I.

A despatch of Oct. 28th from Concord says: "Warden Kent of the state prison has received information that Dick Paine, the defaulting paymaster's clerk at the Portsmouth navy yard, who escaped from the marine barracks two weeks ago, left Montreal for the west this morning. His whereabouts have hitherto been unknown."

Frank Peavey, alias Hank Thompson, was recently released from the jail in this city after a residence there of seventeen months, including the time he was detained awaiting trial, and the time he was ordered to serve after he was tried and convicted. In Nashua this week he stole a coat valued at $5; the police caught him, and not only took the coat away from him but placed him before the court, where he was fined $8 and costs, with the alternative of three months in jail. He was also charged with indecently assaulting a girl fourteen years old, for which he was fined $10 and costs, or four months in jail. He will be well posted in regard to New Hampshire jails if he keeps on.

The Gowan apple-evaporating works in Stratham were burned last Thursday evening, with about 1000 bushels of apples. Loss $1500.

Rev. George W. Savory of the Congregational church at Stratham, has resigned his pastorate, to take effect Nov. 30th. He is to remove his family to northern California, where he hopes to devote himself entirely to temperance work.

Mr. Walter B. Flanders, who has been supplying the pulpit of the Christian church at York, is to be ordained to the ministry on Thursday, Nov. 3d.

On Wednesday, Oct. 26th, the remains of the late Rev. Charles D. Hainer, pastor of the Court street Christian society, were taken to Newmarket, Canada, for final interment.

The Biddeford Soldiers' monument arrived in that city Oct. 27th, and work at putting it in position on the previously prepared foundation was commenced at once. The dedication of the monument will take place on Memorial day of next year.

James Cole of Malden, Mass., about thirty years old, a brakeman on the night freight train from North Berwick to Boston, slipped from a car at North Berwick on the night of Oct. 26th, and fell between the car and station in such a manner that his head was caught between the two, and shockingly mangled. He was taken home to die, the doctors reporting his injuries to be fatal.

Florence Silk Mittens.

This engraving shows the latest style of these goods. It is published as a protection for those ladies who wish to obtain mittens which are made from genuine Florence Knitting Silk.

The pattern shown here is lined in back and wrist throughout with silk. They are perfect fitting, and in cold climates are far more comfortable than any glove, and more dressy, while and finite as elegant and fashionable as the best of gloves.

Sold by all enterprising dealers, who can be supplied at our agency, No. 18 Summer Street, Boston. Our latest book on Knitting (197 editions) contains over 100 valuable illustrated Rules, including full instructions for this mitten. Mailed to any address on receipt of six cents in stamps.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequalled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions, since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of all countries, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1882, and has been pronounced by experts the most valuable improvement in pianos in half a century."

Students of Hampton Institute.

The body of Indian students has never appeared better than this summer. The most influential element is on the side of right and is striving to build up a healthy public sentiment. There are a certain few who have given trouble, making strict discipline necessary; this has been administered through a council of Indians, selected by the boys and appointed by the faculty. This court tries and sentences, subject to the approval of the school authorities. They are to be commended for their faithful and judicious work. In one case, that of a popular boy, the sentence was more severe than the faculty thought well to inflict.—Southern Workman.

Experiment with a Blind Person.

"I stood in an aisle," said Mr. Harrison of the Institution for the Blind, "when a blind boy was walking toward me, and just as he came opposite I put up my hand before his face. It brought him up short, and he flung his head back to avoid the obstruction. I did not touch him with my hand, nor did I speak, nor give any other indication of my presence. How was he enabled to know the obstruction was there?"

"Has that experiment been tried in more than one case?"

"It has been tried often and in many cases, and always with success."—New York Evening Sun.

Remedies for Bee Stings.

Experienced bee keepers rarely trouble themselves with the bee sting remedies, but amateurs and those in whom the flesh swells when stung near the eyes often wish for something that will reduce the swelling and pain. The best remedy is a tincture of plaintain, made by pouring alcohol over the freshly gathered leaves and allowing it to remain until it turns black, when it is poured off and bottled. If this remedy is applied immediately after the wound is given the swelling and pain will scarcely be perceptible. If the person is severely stung a few drops of the tincture can be taken internally.—Chicago Times.

The Argentine Republic is soon to have a weather bureau equipped with forty-five observatories in different parts of the country.

In San Francisco there are four journals regularly published in Chinese characters. These appear weekly, and have a circulation of 2,500 copies. By the Chinese method a good printer can produce only 400 sheets a day. Five days' work, therefore, is required to print an edition of 2,000 copies. The journals are printed with black ink upon single sheets of white paper, except on a Chinese new year, when the printing is done with red ink or upon red paper.—Printers' Register.

The town of Warren has voted to appropriate $800 towards building the Woodstock mountain road, choosing Captain Geo. H. Head agent to expend the same. Private subscriptions, amounting to about $600, are assured from other parties in town. The above road is to extend from East Warren to North Woodstock. The state has appropriated $2500 towards completing the road.

Mr. Asa Gray and family of Barrington were visited on the 26th inst. by some friends from Concord, who came with a horse and carriage to stay a day or two. The horse was put up in Mr. Gray's barn for the night, but before morning the building was entered by an unknown thief, and the horse, which was a valuable one, stolen.

"On their own merits modest men are dumb" but would seem the height of ingratitude in the thousands who have been happily cured by it—to deny the extraordinary excellence of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The well known strengthening properties of Iron, combined with other tonics and a most perfect nervine, are found in Carter's Iron Pills, which strengthen the nerves and body, and improve the blood and complexion.

The Main street Baptist church of Woodstock, N. B., has been expelled from the Baptist Association because of its members harboring and adopting the doctrine of instantaneous and entire sanctification, which doctrine has been declared unscriptural by the Baptist denomination.

The new combination of Smart Weed and Belladonna, as used in Carter's Backache Plasters, has proved to be one of the best that could be made. Try one of those popular plasters in any case of weak or lame back, backache, rheumatism, neuralgia, soreness of the chest or lungs, and you will be surprised and pleased by the prompt relief. In bad cases of chronic dyspepsia, a plaster over the pit of the stomach stops the pain at once. Ask for Carter's Smart Weed and Belladonna Backache Plasters. Price 25 cents.

James A. Bailey has purchased the entire interest of James L. Hutchinson, F. W. Cole and J. E. Cooper in the Barnum and London circus, menagerie, hippodrome, etc. The firm will now be Barnum & Bailey alone. No movement of equal magnitude has ever before been accomplished in the circus business.

Stop and Think

How much money you have thrown away buying worthless medicines, prepared by unprincipled parties, who care not what harm they may do to your system. You can depend on every bottle of Sulphur Bitters as being a reliable medicine. It searches out and cleanses from the blood all impure matter, and makes you feel like a new person.—Boston Daily Globe.

Cars are now heated by steam on the Boston, Revere Beach & Lynn railroad.

It is an established fact that consumption can be cured; but it is far better to prevent the cruel disease from fastening itself on the system, by the timely use of a remedy like Dr. Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which will speedily cure a cough or cold. Consumption often yields to its great power.

The Harvard university foot ball eleven easily defeated Tufts college eleven at Cambridge.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. Wood, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. Balcom, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. Proudfoot, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

A DELINQUENT ELEPHANT.

A Sight at the Palace of Mandalay—A Beast in Disgrace.

Many were the sights I witnessed in and out of the palace of Mandalay, but nothing struck my attention so much as the number of trained elephants, lately belonging to the deposed monarch, and the splendid quarters in which they were located, and my surprise was still more increased when I was introduced to and entered into conversation with the gentleman who presided over this extensive establishment. He turned out to be a real native of the Isle of Wight. The white or mouse colored elephant was there of course, but "how are the mighty fallen." He was no longer in a magnificent pavilion, alone in his grandeur, surrounded by many servitors of the king; on the contrary, he was in a stall like the rest of the beasts, and, if anything, less noticed than many of his finer brethren.

One more anecdote about this wonderful beast, and I have done with elephants. Shortly before our arrival, one of these animals had greatly disgraced himself by refusing to carry a certain weight of goods which had been piled on his back. There is the regulation weight, and the beasts know to an ounce what they ought to carry, and if any one of the mahouts attempt to put a surplus amount on his or their backs it is immediately shot onto the ground. The animal in question had been duly laden with a weight which was under the regulation scale; but although it had been twice weighed, as Mrs. Gamp would say, before his own eyes, he still refused to carry it. This was too much for even his indulgent driver, so he accordingly reported, and just as we arrived he was about to be tried for his extraordinary and obstinate conduct.

Several elephants were led out into a large courtyard, forming a kind of circle round the delinquent, who seemed already to feel his position acutely, for he glanced anxiously from time to time at his mahout, who was visibly affected and who stood at his head. A karen presided over the court martial and read aloud the indictment against the offender, the elephants which constituted the jury apparently listening with great attention. After the statement was finished and the mahout examined, who, by the way, gave his evidence with great reluctance, the karen decided that the case had been distinctly proved and the culprit was adjudged the punishment of twenty strokes. Upon the announcement of the verdict the jury marched in a most solemn manner to a distant part of the yard and returned with a switch about as large as a fair sized scaffold pole. In the meantime the mahout had been addressing the offender, who was now weeping copiously, large drops of tears falling from his eyes, and occasionally a shrill and peculiar sound issued from his capacious throat.

The executioners of the law were at hand and stood about twelve to fourteen feet apart, each balancing with peculiar nicety in his trunk the aforesaid switch. The culprit was led up to the place, and as he passed number one there was a sound heard which resembled somewhat a sharp clap of thunder; it was the first blow delivered by the dread myrmidons of the law. The blow was followed by a sharp, shrill scream, although there was evidently an attempt on the part of the culprit to suppress any exhibition of pain. This punishment continued until the whole of the sentence had been carried out. Although I felt considerable sympathy with the unfortunate delinquent, I was at the same time intensely amused with the thorough business like air with which these ministers of justice carried out the sentence. There were no light blows delivered; but, as a matter of fact, each elephant determined to administer a heavier amount of punishment than his neighbor, and the sly twinkle in the eye as the blow was delivered was a sight to see.—Primrose Magazine.

Boxes in a Theatre.

I could never understand why people choose boxes in a theatre. Their object is certainly not to see and enjoy the play, because one does not need to go into a box a second time to arrive at the conclusion that that is impossible. There are defects on the stage, lots of them, and a person perched in a box cannot avoid seeing them, and marking them, too; that is, unless he is admiring the audience, or, in case the spectator is a woman, she wants to see if the audience is admiring her. I say there are defects on the stage, and will add that there is not a company without them. Mine has them, and I am free to admit it. And yet local managers think they are doing something nice when they rush a newspaper critic into their box. They, of all others, should have learned that a perfect play seen from in front is not perfect seen from a box.—Manager in Globe-Democrat.

The Antique Pigtail.

A curious evidence of the antiquity and permanence of a Chinese fashion is the presence of a newly discovered Hittite seal, found near Tarsus, of figures with that quasi-Mongolian appendage, the pigtail, one of these being apparently an eagle headed deity. The same appendage is to be seen on some of the monuments which the British museum obtained from the reputed site of Carchemish; and the Khita warriors are depicted as similarly adorned on the Egyptian painting of Abu-Simbel. It appears the pigtail was imposed on China by the Manchus.—Detroit Free Press.

Austria's Crown Princess.

The Crown Princess of Austria, during her sojourn at Abbazia, on the Adriatic, commanded a crew of six young and beautiful countesses of the bluest blood of the empire, who womaned a barge, which the princess steered as they rowed. National Thanksgiving Proclamation.

The goodness and the mercy of God which have followed the American people during all the days of the past year, claim their grateful recognition and humble acknowledgment. By His omnipotent power He has protected us from war and pestilence and from every national calamity; by His gracious favor the earth has yielded a generous return to the labor of the husbandman, and every path of honest toil has led to comfort and contentment; by His loving kindness the hearts of our people have been replenished with fraternal sentiment and patriotic endeavor, and by His unerring guidance we have been directed in the way of national prosperity.

To the end that we may, with one accord, testify our gratitude for all these blessings, I, Grover Cleveland, president of the United States, do hereby designate and set apart Thursday, the 24th day of November next, as a day of thanksgiving and prayer, to be observed by all the people of the land.

On that day let all secular work and employment be suspended; and let our people assemble in their accustomed places of worship and with prayer and songs of praise, give thanks to Our Heavenly Father for all that he has done for us, while we humbly implore the forgiveness of our sins, and a continuance of His mercy.

Let families and kindred be reunited on that day; and let their hearts, filled with kindly cheer and affectionate reminiscence, be turned in thankfulness to the source of all their pleasures and the giver of all that makes the day glad and joyous.

And in the midst of our worship and our happiness, let us remember the poor, the needy and the unfortunate, and by our gifts of charity and ready benevolence, let us increase the number of those who, with grateful hearts, shall join in our thanksgiving.

In witness whereof, I have set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be hereunto affixed.

Done at the city of Washington this 25th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1887, and of the independence of the United States the 112th.

GROVER CLEVELAND.

By the President; Thomas F. Bayard, Secretary of State.

The bill ratifying the lease of the Manchester & Lawrence railroad to the Boston & Maine, and that authorizing the Boston & Maine company to guarantee the rental of the Northern to the Boston & Lowell, were sent to the governor Friday morning. He signed the former bill, but up to the time of his leaving for Dover in the afternoon had not affixed his signature to the latter. Several parties in interest in the bill allowing the the Boston & Maine to guarantee the lease of the Northern to the Boston & Lowell were heard by Governor Sawyer that morning.

It was reported in Concord last week that two spotters, in the interest of the interstate commerce commission, had been in town several days for the purpose of ascertaining whether either of the railroads concerned in the contest before the legislature have been violating the provisions of the interstate law relating to issuing free passes.

The latest railroad rumor from Concord is that the Boston & Maine road in case it fails to get possession of the Boston, Concord & Montreal, will open negotiations for the purchase of the Portland & Ogdensburg, with the view of extending it from Fabyan's to Scott's, in Lancaster, on the Connecticut river, as was originally intended. Then, after the Upper Coos line is completed to Groveton, the building of a section of a few miles only would be required to give the Boston & Maine a trunk line from the Megantic system in Canada through Colebrook, Lancaster, Fabyan's, White Mountain Notch and Portland, to Boston.

Lieut. Henn's sloop yacht Galatea, which sailed from New York on Oct. 11th, arrived at Queenstown, Ireland, on the 29th.

A statute has been found in Pennsylvania which provides that the common wealth shall declare forfeited and sell to the highest bidder the property of a telegraph company in the state which consolidates with another. The act is specified and unequivocal. This would seem to be a bar to Jay Gould's swallowing of the Baltimore & Ohio telegraph.

Dr. William Goddard, now of Charlestown, is the oldest living graduate of Harvard college since the death of Dr. William Perry of Exeter, N. H., and Mr. W. R. Sever. There was much doubt for some time who held that honor. Dr. Goddard was born in Portsmouth, N. H., April 23d, 1796, and was graduated from Harvard in the class of 1815. He is the only survivor of his class, while no member of the succeeding class, 1816, is alive, and but four graduates of 1817 survive, two of the latter being Hon. George Bancroft and Hon. Samuel E. Sewall.—Boston Record.

The Western Union Telegraph linemen were on Saturday changing the wires which formerly entered the Baltimore & Ohio office on Daniel street to the Western Union office on the other side of the street. The Baltimore & Ohio office, which it has been stated would be kept open until April 1st of next year, will be discontinued Nov. 1st; and the courteous, attentive and obliging manager, Mr. T. C. Leckey, will take a position under the Western Union management in Boston.

Payson Gibbs and Hayden Libby, the two Biddeford boys who ran away on Oct. 14th on a hunting excursion in eastern Maine, arrived home on the 28th in company with a United States deputy marshal, who found them at Mapleton, in the Aroostook region. Gibbs had a shot gun only, but Libby had a gun, revolver and bowie knife, at the start; the latter swapped his small arms for a watch in Bangor, and brought the timepiece home with him. The youngsters were in good health and spirits on their arrival home, said they had had a jolly time, and their penitence was not at all conspicuous.

What a Time

People formerly had, trying to swallow the old-fashioned pill with its film of magnesia vainly disguising its bitterness; and what a contrast to Ayer's Pills, that have been well called "medicated sugar-plums"—the only fear being that patients may be tempted into taking too many at a dose. But the directions are plain and should be strictly followed.

J. T. Teller, M. D., of Chittenango, N. Y., expresses exactly what hundreds have written at greater length. He says: "Ayer's Cathartic Pills are highly appreciated. They are perfect in form and coating, and their effects are all that the most careful physician could desire. They have supplanted all the Pills formerly popular here, and I think it must be long before any other can be made that will at all compare with them. Those who buy your pills get full value for their money."

"Safe, pleasant, and certain in their action," is the concise testimony of Dr. George E. Walker, of Martinsville, Virginia.

"Ayer's Pills outsell all similar preparations. The public having once used them, will have no others."—Berry, Venable & Collier, Atlanta, Ga.

Rheumatism

It is an established fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla has proven an invaluable remedy in many severe cases of rheumatism, effecting remarkable cures by its powerful action in correcting the acidity of the blood, which is the cause of the disease, and purifying and enriching the vital fluid.

It is certainly fair to assume that what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done for others it will do for you. Therefore, if you suffer the pains and aches of rheumatism, give this potent remedy a fair trial.

A Positive Cure.

"I was troubled very much with rheumatism in my hips, ankles, and wrists. I could hardly walk, and was confined to my bed a good deal of the time. Being recommended to try Hood's Sarsaparilla, I took four bottles and am perfectly well. I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla as one of the best blood purifiers in the world." W. F. WOOD, Bloomington, Ill.

For Twenty Years

I have been afflicted with rheumatism. Before 1883 I found no relief, but grew worse. I then began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla, and it did me more good than all the other medicine I ever had." H. T. BALCOM, Shirley, Mass.

"I suffered from what the doctors called muscular rheumatism. I took Hood's Sarsaparilla and am entirely cured." J. V. A. PROUDFOOT, letter carrier, Chicago, Ill.

We shall be glad to send, free of charge, to all who may desire, a book containing many additional statements of cures by

POLICE COURT--BATCHELDER J.

SATURDAY, Oct. 29th.

William Welch, Charles Hines and James Hart, for drunkenness, were each fined $3, costs $6.90. Three more recruits for the county farm.

Officer Richard D. Smart on Saturday took to Brentwood six bummers sentenced in the police court, all of whom are no doubt glad to find themselves in snug quarters for the winter at the county farm, where they will find warm beds and good food without having to beg or steal, or what is far worse, to work.

Charles E. Meloon, insane, was taken into custody Friday evening, and committed to the insane asylum at Concord on Saturday.

"THE UNIVERSALIST CREED: SHALL IT BE CHANGED?"

The text used in the Pleasant street church, yesterday morning, is I Thess., 5:21: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good; abstain from every form of evil."

The Universalist National Convention in session at New York, Oct. 19th, 20th and 21st, discussed a change of the three articles of the Profession of Faith held by that church. The question was finally laid upon the table, that the proposed creed might come before the people of the church. The authorized creed of the Universalist church, framed and adopted by the church fathers at Winchester, N. H., in 1803, is as follows:

1st, We believe that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation of the character of God, and of the duty, interest, and final destination of mankind.

2d, We believe that there is one God, whose nature is Love, revealed in one Lord Jesus Christ, by one Holy Spirit of Grace, who will finally restore the whole family of mankind to holiness and happiness.

3d, We believe that holiness and true happiness are inseparably connected, and that believers ought to be careful to maintain order and practice good works; for these things are good and profitable unto men.

The proposed creed is as follows:

1st, I believe that the Holy Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments contain a revelation of God to mankind.

2d, I believe in one God, the Father Almighty, maker of heaven and earth; in Jesus Christ his son, who is the Revealer of God, and Savior of the world from sin; and in his Holy Spirit the comforter, through which all disciples of Christ are united in one spiritual body.

3d, I believe in the necessity of personal holiness; in the forgiveness of sins; in the certainty of retribution; in the immortality of the human soul; and in the final holiness and happiness of all mankind.

4th, I believe that the opportunities, obligations and rewards of religion are in their nature eternal, and that I ought to strive earnestly for salvation by repenting of my sins and diligently using the means of grace which God has provided.

In the opinion of the pastor of the Universalist church in Portsmouth the first and original creed, the Winchester Profession of Faith, is by far the best.

Firstly, The new creed is too long; it will not be much used, less remembered, and rarely understood.

Secondly, It is a compromise, and contains words like "Savior of the world," "spiritual body," "personal holiness," "retribution," "repenting of my sins," "eternal obligations," "means of grace," which are not ordinarily understood in their true sense, and will lead to misunderstanding with other churches and controversy in our own.

Thirdly, The above objectionable words are too vague, and are apt to hide the practical morality of Christ.

Fourthly, The foundation fact of Universalism, "We believe in one God whose nature is Love, and whose character is so revealed in the Old and New Testaments," does not appear in the new creed.

Fifthly, The duty of and motive for maintaining order and practicing good works does not appear in the new creed.

The objections to the Winchester profession are chiefly the word "restore," the affirming the character of God before his existence, and the utilitarian tone of the third article.

1st, The word "restore," as understood by the Fathers, may be wrong as implying a fall from holiness through Adam, which we do not believe; but it is religious and scientific perhaps unless one believes in the eternity of matter. The mind of God was the first thing in the universe. The universe is to be restored to that mind.

2d, The better knowledge of the character of God is the only thing that has saved his existence in the minds of thinking men.

3d, We believe that Godliness is profitable unto all men. [See the Beatitudes.]

PERSONAL.

Hon. Frank Emerson of Farmington was in town on Saturday.

Lieut. William H. Everett, U. S. N., left town last Friday for Norfolk, Va., where he is to join the training ship Saratoga, having been ordered as her executive officer.

Mrs. James Pinder and her son, Willis E. Pinder, of Little Harbor, have moved into town to pass the winter with Mr. Horace W. Gray, whose wife is Mrs. Pinder's daughter.

John J. Anderson, son of Mr. Robert Anderson, for many years the faithful and efficient watchman at the navy landing at the foot of Daniel street, arrived in this city from New York by the nine o'clock train on Saturday evening, on a fifteen days' leave of absence from the United States training-ship Portsmouth. The young man is seventeen years old, has been eighteen months in the service, and expects to be shortly transferred to the U. S. S. Nipsic, for a voyage around the world; the elder's naval record is probably completed, he having served with marked gallantry during the war.

The lions in front of the Rockingham house have received a new winter coat.

A delegation from New Hampshire Lodge, I. O. O. F., on Saturday accompanied the remains of the late William P. Burley to East Wakefield, where interment took place.

There have been two more bogus checks for small amounts presented to the New Hampshire national bank—one sent by express from Lowell, and the other through a bank in Boston, signed and endorsed by the same person.

Miss Frances L. Huntress, an inmate of Faith Home, died quite suddenly last Friday evening, at the age of seventy-four years. She retired at the usual hour, apparently as well as usual, but died in a few minutes without a struggle, probably from disease of the heart. She entered the home June 4th, 1885.

Ex-County Treasurer Dow is erecting a stable in the rear of his new house at Exeter, which exceeds in style anything of this kind outside of Portsmouth.

DR. BULL'S COUGH SYRUP

For the cure of Coughs, Colds, Hoarseness, Croup, Asthma, Bronchitis, Whooping Cough, Incipient Consumption, and for the relief of consumptive persons in advanced stages of the Disease. For Sale by all Druggists. Price, 25 cents.

Mr. August Hett is having a new sled built in anticipation of winter; it is being constructed by Mr. Reuben Snow, at Mason's steam mill.

Mr. John H. Locke, who since the retirement of Richard H. Paine from the management of the Granite State Manufacturing Co., several months ago, has been conducting the business, has sold out his interest to Mr. Joseph Philbrick, a cutter in the establishment, who will hereafter run the concern himself.

Seven loads of hay were standing on Market square at one time Saturday forenoon, for sale; and as soon as one was driven off another appeared to take its place. There seemed to be a call for all that was offered.

Mr. William Sullivan, one of the party of five young men who left this city about five months since to be engaged at the Union house, Williamstown, Mass., returned home last week. He remained in the service of the hotel until the close of the season, the others having departed earlier. Mr. Sullivan will remain in his native city for a few weeks, when he expects to be occupied elsewhere. He is a person who readily finds employment at his business.

Sam Small, the noted revivalist, is to be in this city on Tuesday evening, Nov. 22d. He will have an audience limited only by the capacity of the building in which he may speak.

The Boston & Maine railroad station at Old Orchard was burglarized on the night of Oct. 27th, and the safe blown open by dynamite. The thieves, who were evidently professionals, got about $100 out of the safe, and also a few papers and some tickets. There is no clue to the perpetrators of the crime.

The revival meetings at the Beech Ridge church, York, under the charge of Eld. John H. Mugridge, will continue through the present week. Great religious interest prevails.

William Keene and Newell Armstrong have put up a new building at York village, where they will carry on carriage iron work and horse shoeing.

Bicycle Riding.

The city marshal gives notice elsewhere in this paper that bicycle riding on the sidewalks of the public streets is strictly forbidden. He says that men, women and children ride on the sidewalk without regard to foot passengers and in some cases the latter named class are obliged to leave the sidewalk to allow these usurpers on wheels an opportunity to pass. This bicycle riding is getting to be somewhat of a nuisance and we hope it will be stopped. Some of the bicyclists have heretofore made great pretentions as to the manner in which they have obeyed the laws of the city, but we have on more than one occasion noticed some of them ride on the sidewalk to the disadvantage of pedestrians. We do not say or wish to be understood to infer that all bicyclists do this, but there are certain full grown men with more cheek than brains, who ride on sidewalks every time they get on their machines. We should admire the officer who would bring them into court that they might feel the force of one of Judge Batchelder's sentences.—Times.

The strictures of our State street contemporary are fully warranted by the facts in the case. It has come under our personal observation that on Richards avenue, in particular, bicycle riders seem to think that pedestrians have no rights which "wheelmen" are bound to respect. We have seen ladies and children compelled to range themselves flat up against the fence there, or step into the gutter, to get out of the way of two or three bicycle riders running along abreast on the sidewalk; and a lady friend some time ago informed us that she avoided that avenue entirely, ever since she was driven into the ditch with her baby carriage by a lot of young fellows on bicyles one Sunday afternoon. These "fresh" youths make no bones of blowing shrill whistles as warning to people on the sidewalk to get out of their way, and are very indignant and not seldom abusive if their signals are not heeded. The police should teach them that their place is in the street.

Have you seen the Ladies' and Misses' Cloaks just received by Lewis E. Staples? They are beauties, and low priced.

The moon gets full twice in October—on the 1st and the 31st. Some of the young men about town can give the moon big odds in that line.

PROTECT OUR BREAD.

The machinery of the law cannot be put at work too speedily or too vigorously against the wholesale adulteration of the things we eat. Both the health and the pockets of the people demand protection.

There is no article of food in general use more wickedly adulterated than the lower grades of baking powder.

For raising bread, biscuit or other food only the very best and purest baking powder should be employed. The use of the ordinary cream of tartar, or of baking powders containing lime, alum and phosphates, carries deleterious ingredients into the food to the prejudice of the life and health of the consumer.

The sale of adulterated baking powders has been prohibited by statute in several localities. It will be in the interests of the public health when their sale is made a misdemeanor everywhere, and the penalties of the law are rigidly enforced.

The ordinary baking powder contains either lime, which, introduced into the system in too free quantities, causes serious disorders of the kidneys; alum, a corrosive poison, or lime phosphates, which are condemned by physicians as deleterious in their effect when taken under certain physical conditions. The Royal is the only baking powder on the market that is free from lime, alum and phosphates, and absolutely pure.

The absolute purity of the Royal Baking Powder makes it pre-eminently the most useful and wholesome leavening agent known. Containing no lime, alum, phosphate or other impurity, it leaves no alkaline or other residuum in the food, and its use always insures pure, light and sweet bread, biscuit and cake, that are perfectly digestible and wholesome whether hot or cold, fresh or stale. Its leavening power has been determined the highest whenever tested by official authority, and all chemists and writers on food hygiene commend it for its sterling qualities.

ANNOUNCES FOR

WEDNESDAY AND THURSDAY,

OCT. 19th and 20th,

HER OPENING OF

PATTERN HATS AND BONNETS.

For more than twenty years Mrs. Tebbets has invited the Ladies of Portsmouth and Vicinity to semi-annual exhibitions of Fine Millinery. Each succeeding season the selections have been finer and richer, the tastes of her customers calling for the best the market affords. The New Fall and Winter Styles in Trimmed Goods will surpass any ever seen in this city.

All Cordially Invited.

THIS PAPER may be found on file at Geo. P. Rowell & Co's Newspaper Advertising Bureau (10 Spruce St.), where advertising contracts may be made for it in NEW YORK.

THERE is no class of persons who should pay more attention to the quality of the soap used upon their clothing than salaried men or persons of limited income. Three dollars per year saved in the cost of soap is more than likely to result in fifty dollars worth of damage to the articles it is used upon. Professor Cornwall, of Princeton College, says, "The IVORY SOAP is of great purity and "more than average cleansing power." A word to the wise is sufficient.

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT; but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

MASON & HAMLIN ORGANS.

The cabinet organ was introduced in its present form by Mason & Hamlin in 1861. Other makers followed in the manufacture of these instruments, but the Mason & Hamlin Organs have always maintained their supremacy as the best in the world.

Mason & Hamlin offer, as demonstration of the unequaled excellence of their organs, the fact that at all of the great World's Exhibitions since that of Paris, 1867, in competition with best makers of Europe and America, they have invariably taken the highest honors. Illustrated catalogues free.

PIANOS.

Mason & Hamlin's Piano Stringer was introduced by them in 1881, and has been pronounced by experts the greatest improvement in pianos in half a century."

A circular, containing testimonials from three hundred purchasers, musicians and tuners, sent, together with descriptive catalogue, to any applicant.

Pianos and Organs sold for cash or easy payments; also rented.

Too Much For His Nerves.

It is told in Boston that an order was received in the compositor room of the Advertiser, one day recently, that Christian names were to be invariably indicated by initials, the name in no instance to be printed in full. The next issue contained mention of G. Cleveland, G Washington, and so on. It is said the order was revoked when the editor found Don Quixote's squire figuring on a proof sheet as "S. Panza."

The America's Cup.

The New York yacht club has accepted the America's cup, which had been returned to George L. Schuyler, the only surviving donor, in order to have changes made in the conditions under which future races shall be sailed. Among the conditions of the new deed are the following:

The challenging yacht must be constructed in the country of the challenging club, and the yacht defending the cup must be built in the country holding the cup. If the yachts have one mast they must be between eighty-five and ninety feet in length; if two masted, between eighty and 115 feet. Ten months' notice of challenge must be given, and the race must be sailed under the rules of the club holding the cup, between May 1st and Nov. 1st. Vessels must proceed under sail to the port where the race is to be sailed. The name of the owner and a certificate of the name of the boat, rig, and the following dimensions, must be sent: Length on load water line, beam on load water line, and extreme beam and draught of water. An important change is that all races must be sailed on ocean courses, the first race to be twenty miles to windward and return; the second must be a triangular course of thirty-nine miles, the sides being of the same length, the first side to be a beat to the windward; the third race is to be the same as the first. Should the club holding the cup be dissolved the cup must be transferred to a club of the same country, the transfer carrying with it the same conditions.

Murder by Wholesale.

Advices from Vienna, Austria, say that it has just been discovered that a ferryman on the lower Danube, who has been in the habit of conveying across the river workmen returning from Roumania, who took this route to avoid producing certificates that they had paid taxes in Roumania, or money in default thereof, has taken them to a small island, where he murdered and robbed them of their savings. A judicial inquiry into the case reveals the astounding fact that hundreds of workmen have been despatched by the fiend, and their bodies buried or thrown into the reeds along the river banks.

An Old Citizen.

The oldest citizen of Barrington, Mr. Richard Critchett, died last Thursday, at the age of ninety-eight years. His wife survives him, at the age of ninety-seven; they were married when he was seventeen and she sixteen, and have lived together eighty-one years. Both were born in Barrington and have always lived there; they have one son living, John Critchett, and one daughter, the wife of Ephraim Caverly.
